Mariner Begins Sending Mars Picture

(Times News Services)

PASADENA, Calif. — Scientists received from Mariner 4 today what they hoped for.

Late today or early Friday they plan to make public what should be the first close-up photograph of the unknown planet's surface.

It could indicate whether Mars harbors life, solving a mystery that has intrigued man for ages.

Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday night and its signals hinted at trouble in the camera's tape recorder.

But this morning, transmitting from beyond Mars en route to an orbit around the sun, the windmill-shaped, 575-pound spacecraft began relaying the first of a hoped-for score of photos.

Jubilant scientists at the jet propulsion laboratory, which built and controlled Mariner, said "the raw data is exactly what we expected."

Two hours after the start of signals 35 lines had been received, and one expert said a definite pattern was showing.

The program called for Mariner to take up to 21 pictures as it passed within 5,600 miles of Mars, store them on tape, then play them back starting today.

The pictures were planned to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes, showing objects as small as 1½ miles across.

The fly-by climaxed a 228-day, 325,000,000-mile curving voyage from earth.

At 6:02 a.m. PDT, an 85-foot dish antenna at Johannesburg, South Africa, caught the first picture signal 12 minutes after Mariner-4 launched it on a record trip from nearly 135 million miles deep in space.

Thus ended a night of agonizing suspense in which scientists had feared the probe's tape recorder might have failed.

Line by line, eight tiny pieces at a time, earth carefully collected the fantastically weak radio pulses that computers would turn into a photograph—a process so delicate that transmission of the first picture would take eight hours and 35 minutes to complete.

As many as 20 other photographs may follow between now and July 2.

Scientists expected to have picture No. 1 fully in hand by about 2:30 p.m. PDT today. Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said that "if it is good, it may be released late tonight."

Even without pictures, said JPL director Dr. William H. Pickering, the fabulous voyage of Mariner-4 to within 6,013 miles of Mars "is a magnificent scientific achievement" that should pave the way for an attempt to search for life on the surface of the baffling planet in 1971.

As it swung by on the picture-taking mission Wednesday, Mariner-4 also studied the martian atmosphere, its radiation fields and its gravity pull. However, Pickering said, it will take many weeks to completely study the information.

Mariner-4's first picture was believed to be a shot of elysium, an unusually bright, rather circular desert in the planet's northern hemisphere.

If the "cosmic eye" cut its planned 4,000-mile visual swath across the planet's mottled red face—"and we have no reason to believe it did not," said officials—picture No. 2 would show trivium charontis, a so-called "oasis" with six "canals" jutting from it.

Transmission of the second photograph, which may help scientists solve the 88-year-old mystery of the linear formations known as "canals," was scheduled to begin about 4:28 a.m., PDT, and finish by 1:03 a.m., PDT, Friday.

After a balky start because of a blank spot at the start of the tape, the signals began flowing smoothly across the cosmos from the world's first interplanetary television station. "Things look good," a JPL spokesman announced matter-of-factly.

The first three pictures were scheduled to be released between late tonight and late Friday.

As it beamed back its signals, Mariner-4 itself sped beyond Mars into an endless orbit of its own around the sun.

It will return to within 25-30 million miles of earth, perhaps close enough to re-establish radio contact with tracking stations in September, 1967.

Mariner keeps the pictures on tape just as videotape for television shows is stored. A timer starts radioing the data as a stream of digits received at tracking stations at Goldstone, Calif., Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. The data is relayed here for processing by computers.

"Mariner gave an additional cut-off signal showing the tape had been turned off," aid Pickering.

Scientists said this could have meant that the tape had gone around again—putting more pictures on top of earlier pictures in a sort of double exposure. The timing of the additional signals indicated two-thirds of the tape could have been thus ruined, leaving only six or seven of the hoped for 21 pictures.

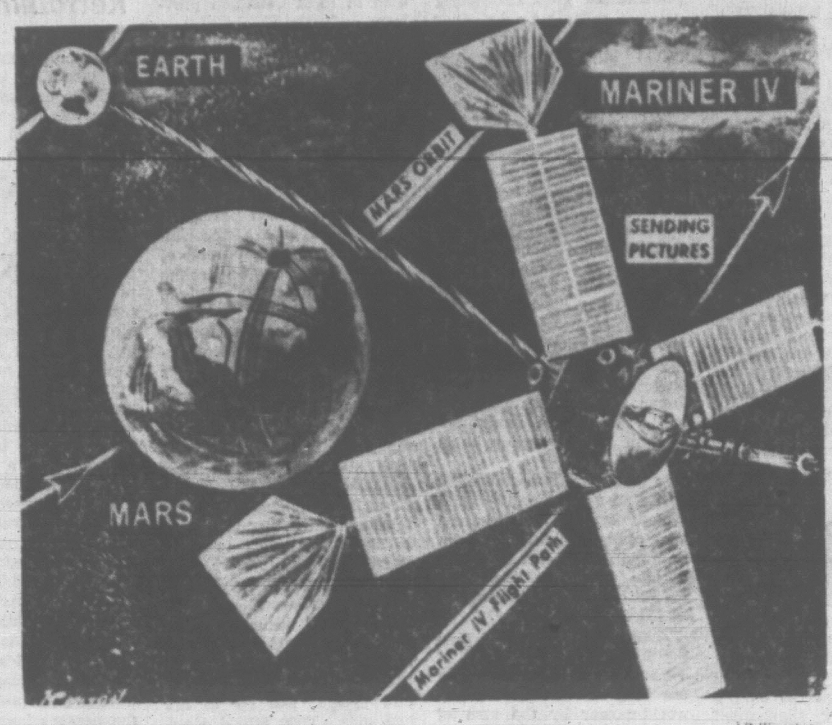

But another communications system aboard the ship indicated the tape functioned just as planned.

"We did indeed take some pictures," said Schneiderman. "But there was this indication that the picture-taking was not precisely as predicted."

Schneiderman said the tape was so arranged that if only a few pictures were obtained, they will be the first to be relayed to earth.

As Mariner disappeared around the white-capped south polar region, its radio signal waned and faded, giving what scientists said was valuable data on the Martian atmosphere, proving it could bend radio waves.

Scientists said this proves Mars has some atmosphere, something long believed by experts.

SKETCH OF MARINER 4 shows how the 575-pound satellite will send pictures from Mars to Earth. The satellite was launched last Nov. 28 and has travelled 325 million miles. It will take approximately eight hours and 35 minutes to transmit each of the pictures taken by the space probe.

$215 MILLION DEAL

Canada Buys Fighter-Bomber

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved purchase of the U.S. Northrop F-5 fighter-bomber for the Canadian Air Force, the defence department announced today.

It will be built to Canadian specifications and called the CF-5.

A statement by Defence Minister Hellyer said the multi-purpose aircraft will be used primarily in tactical support of ground forces, "and as such will be a new plane for a new role."

Mr. Hellyer later told a press onference that Canadair Ltd., Montreal, will build the airframes and the Orenda division of Hawker-Siddeley the engines.

Canadair will get about $80,000,000 of the total $215,000,000 program and Orenda $35,000,000.

Some $75,000,000 will be subcontracted to United States firms but, Mr. Hellyer said, Canada will get at least this much back through U.S. firms placing defence contracts in Canada.

Mr. Drury said the program will provide about 2,100 jobs during the four-year production program.

The first plane will come off the assembly line in about two years, the last in early 1970.

The Canadian version of the F-5 will have more powerful engines and equipment to refuel in flight. Most of them will be single-seat aircraft, but some will be two-seat machines to be used as trainers.

HAD PLANNED PURCHASE

The defence department earmarked $215,000,000 for 125 tactical aircraft in its five-year re-equipment program outlined in the latest defence white paper. This sum covers necessary spares and support equipment.

The announcement said that as the new CF-5s are received and squadrons formed, the squadrons will be incorporated into Mobile Command. This is the new command in the recent armed forces reorganization which will be responsible for maintaining combat-ready integrated land and tactical air elements, capable of rapid deployment in a wide range of contingencies.

"The CF-5's agility, weapons mix, speed, ease of maintenance and versatile conventional (non-nuclear) capability made this aircraft the logical selection for the new global-mobile role of the Canadian forces," the announcement said.

HAS TWO JETS

In its Canadian version, the Northrop plane will be powered by two jet engines, each with a thrust of 4,300 pounds.

Denis to Fight Bribery Charge

Not Guilty Plea To Be Entered

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis, the ex-ministerial aide accused of offering a $20,000 bribe in the Rivard affair, appeared briefly in court today and was remanded until July 29.

He entered the plea through counsel Lou Assaly of Ottawa during a brief court appearance after his arrest in Montreal Wednesday night and booking here on charges arising out of the Dorion report.

Magistrate L. A. Sherwood set July 29 as the date for preliminary hearing.

Denis, a 32-year-old lawyer who was executive assistant to then - immigration minister Tremblay at the time of the alleged offences, was in the half-filled court room for barely five minutes.

LAWYER COMMENTS

Mr. Assaly, a veteran Ottawa criminal lawyer, told Magistrate Sherwood Mr. Denis "in all likelihood" will choose trial by judge and jury when he appears from preliminary hearing.

The defence elects the trial method at this stage of the proceedings even though the preliminary hearing could quash the charges and result in no trial at all.

Mr. Assaly told The Canadian Press in an interview that he had been "prepared to make an absolute plea and election this morning" but Magistrate Sherwood is about to start his vacation "and would have been seized with the case."

To avoid the delay Mr. Assaly "only indicated my client's intention to plead not guilty and that we will likely elect trial by judge and jury."

Outside the court, Mr. Assaly told reporters he will consider between now and July 29 whether to seek a change of venue on grounds it would be difficult to recruit 12 fluently-bilingual jurors in this city. In

CONG BADLY MAULS LARGE GOV'T FORCES

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas badly mauled two large government forces in widely separated attacks today on the eve of the arrival of U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Government losses were reported from "fairly heavy" in one engagement 33 miles north of Saigon and "moderate" in a battle 30 miles south of Da Nang. Two American advisers were reported killed and four injured in the fighting near Saigon.

Another 100,000 U.S. Troops Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military chiefs have recommended unanimously that the strength of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam be boosted to 179,000 men by the end of the year, it was learned today.

This would be more than 100,000 above the 75,000-man U.S. force now scheduled to be in South Viet Nam.

This recommendation by the joint chiefs of staff will be considered by the government in the light of what Defence Secretary Robert McNamara determines during his week-long inspection visit to Viet Nam. McNamara left Wednesday night.

Sources told The Associated Press the joint chiefs would include the remainder of the 1st Infantry Division in the new projections for a buildup to meet growing Communist strength. One brigade of that division landed in Viet Nam this week after travelling from its home base at Fort Riley, Kan.

A buildup as big as 179,000 men could well bring at least a limited mobilization of reservists and national guardsmen to replace regular troops drawn into the growing conflict in Viet Nam.

The armed services, it was disclosed, are starting to gear up for such a possible muster of guardsmen and reservists.

They have submitted to defence officials tentative estimates totalling more than 200,000 citizen servicemen.

Victory Soon Expected By Viet Reds

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson said today the North Vietnamese declined to talk peace with his envoy, Harold Davies, because they think they are going to win the war against South Viet Nam.

Wilson told the House of Commons the Communist North Vietnamese are convinced "their prospects of victory are too imminent for it to be worth their while to forsake the battlefield for the conference table."

Davis, a deputy minister of pensions in the Labor government, returned Wednesday from a frustrating trip to Hanoi. He was denied an audience by President Ho Chi Minh or any other ranking member of the government.

Johnson to Attend Stevenson Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military, religious and state honors were planned today with the funeral services for United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

As the presidential jet plane bearing Stevenson's body was flying across the Atlantic, the White House announced plans for tributes to Stevenson, including memorial services at Washington's National Cathedral Friday, with President Johnson attending.

The cathedral services are scheduled for 11 a.m. EDT. A close friend of Stevenson, Judge Carl McGowan of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, will deliver the eulogy. Officiating will be Dr. Richard Hall Graebel, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Stevenson's home town of Springfield, Ill.

The funeral plans, arranged by the family with government officials co-operating, call for Stevenson's body to lie in repose in the National Cathedral after its arrival late today until the services are completed there Friday.

The body will then be flown to Springfield to lie in state in the Illinois Capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday.

West Shipyards Guaranteed Work

OTTAWA (CP) Government shipbuilding contracts will be put up for national competition but with a certain percentage of work guaranteed for British Columbia for five years, it was learned reliably today.

The new policy, expected to be announced formally next week, will apply to all government-purchased ships including naval and transport department construction.

Informants said that because it would be uneconomical to build west-coast ferries on the east coast, British Columbia will consequently always be guaranteed a certain amount of shipyard work.

The special five-year gurantee has been given to British Columbia because its labor costs are higher than in east coast and St. Lawrence River shipyards.

FOUR WOUNDED IN BUTTOCKS

Shotgun Halts Garden Raid

PENTICTON (CP) — Four juveniles bent on stealing from a backyard vegetable patch were shot in the buttocks by the owner, police disclosed.

The juveniles were treated in a hospital and later released.

RCMP said that on the advice of city solicitor F. H. Herbert no charges would be laid.

Frank Czeczei, 74, told police that when he discovered the juveniles in his garden Tuesday night he ordered them to leave. They refused to do so.

Czeczei said he fired a warning shot in the air with his shotgun because he couldn't chase them. He has a wooden leg.

He said he fired a second shot. The spray of shotgun pellets struck all four juveniles, police said.

It was the second recent incident in B.C. involving youths being shot.

Two weeks ago a White Rock trailer camp operator who had been beaten by a gang of youths the previous night shot two youths in the leg when a gang of 50 advanced on him.

Everett Dick said he, too, had fired a warning shot but it was ignored. The wounded youths were not seriously hurt.

Seven of the youths later were charged with interfering with a camp owner and his property.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

This week a spelling error saved a man from jail. Brian Watson, 421 Durban appeared in court on an impaired charge. He has had two previous convictions and as a third-time offender jail appeared a sure thing, if he were convicted.

Well, he was. But in the original charge Brian was spelled Brain. The charge was amended in court and in effect became a new charge.

Before moving for a jail sentence Prosecutor George MacMinn had to prove however, that Watson had been warned by police that the crown would seek the jail penalty.

Watson had been given this warning under the original charge, when his name was mis-spelled. But defence lawyer Owen Flood said this was not relevant to the amended charge and Magistrate Harold Alder agreed.

Watson had to be treated as a first offender.

Who says spelling isn't important?

Former city planner Roderick Clack isn't in favor of a sports stadium complex for a Centennial project. "It may not make me popular, but this area is overdone on the sporting side," he says. "Wherever you go you can see people golfing, playing tennis, fishing, swimming or playing hockey. We have an overabundance of sporting facilities."

Clack

Mr. Clack went on to ay that the method of selecting a project for the big year had been wrong from the start. "A project like this needs a great deal of study and checking with the final decision something the entire community benefits from, not just one segment."

The Red Ensign Club's birth pangs have been almost as painful as the long debates that led to the adoption of our new Maple Leaf flag. But apparently all is settling down now.

At latest word, Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire, 146 Simcoe has been named official organizer for Victoria until a branch forms here. She reported 20 paid members.

The B.C. organization has split the provincial jurisdiction into 42 branch areas.

Confusion reigned in June when an Abbotsford founder George Burnham came over to sign applicants and promised a Tory government would return the red ensign to national supremacy.

Tory officials rapped his knuckles and said they would do no such thing. Then B.C. president Douglas Taylor arrived, said Mr. Burnham had no authority even though Mr. Burnham said he had signed 60 members.

Mr. Burnham was banned by the club from further speech-making activities.

Now the group wants some good publicity so it can get down to the job of democratically removing the Maple Leaf which was democratically adopted this year.

★ ★ ★

No one would think of spoiling Victoria's inner harbor vista by erecting billboards along the Causeway. So why does city council permit a certain truck, carrying billboard signs advertising an entertainment, to park all day, day after day, in front of the Legislature, on Belleville?

A row of scruffy, beat-up garbage cans along Dallas Road visitors, but that's what Victoria has.

The city parks department's bashed-in, faded blue waste receptacles desperately need a face-lifting or replacement by a type of waste-eating container found so satisfactory by the provincial government along main highways.

"It would be terrific if we could get some of those gadgets," commented Visitors' Bureau president Nick North.

The recreation and conservation department's garbage-gobblers—a copyrighted, gape-mouthed, owlish creature made of concrete or fibreglas—draw favorable comment from tourists the breadth of the continent.

Victoria parks administrator Herbert Warren said he has no budget for anything elaborate, but maybe the cans will get a coat of paint this summer.

He pointed out that special roadside waste containers can cost from $200 to $500 each.

Well, how about this suggestion:

Get the Capital Improvement District Commission, which Put up funds ot rebuild Dallas Road, to borrow "gobblers" from the recreation department.

That spare tire you haul around in the trunk of your car can be a real lifesaver when it comes to rescuing people at the lake or seashore this summer, says the B.C. Automobile Association.

Water rescue demonstrations by police and safety groups have shown that a spare tire—wheel and all—can support four grown men in the water, the BCAA says. It is just as effective in winter, too, for rescuing persons who have broken through ice.

In addition to its use as a lifesaver, it comes in mighty handy if you have a flat.

JAPAN FAR ADVANCED IN RETRAINING PROGRAMS

Education Leads to Greatness

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

(Fifth of a Series)

The great difference between Japan and the rest of Asia—and its fundamental meeting point with the western world—is education.

Japan has some 23.5 million students, about 4 million more than the total population of Canada. They attend more than 47,000 schools, including 584 universities, junior colleges and professional institutes.

Canada has about the same proportion of students, one-quarter of the population, but in absolute numbers they only total about 4.75 million—over half a million fewer than the number of girls alone in Japanese elementary schools.

Multi-digit statistics tend to become meaningless but one of the figures reveals the gigantic size—and success—of the Japanese school system. While Canadians are worried about absorbing 1 million students into the labor market over the next five years, Japan finds jobs for about 1.75 million young persons coming out of the schools each and every year.

Class Tours

School children are easy to spot in Japan because all wear uniforms until they enter university. June and July are the months for class tours, from a few hours' jaunt in a bus to as much as a week. I saw several thousand on my travels, being shepherded through factories, airport terminals, temples, subways, concert halls, hotel lobbies and parks. They are taken everywhere to see the adult world.

Many a time, I would round a corner and see a regiment of black-and-white uniformed boys and girls advancing in column of route, each platoon with a flag-bearer (for use in crossing traffic arteries) chattering like magpies. Seeing my white face and beard, they would break out into a cheerful chorus of "Herro" (one group, inexplicably, called out Herro Canada) and wave their arms, some of the girls smothering giggles with hands over mouths while a few boys would stroke their smooth chins and grin archly.

Started In 1872

Although the importance of education is dawning slowly in the Orient, it is not a new idea in Japan. The modern educational system was begun in 1872 with establishment of elementary schools throughout the country, enrolling about half of the boys and 15 per cent of the girls of school age—an amazing development when it is remembered that only five years previously Japan was cut off from the world and had a feudal society of lords, warriors, serfs and tradesmen.

In 1886, an imperial edict enlarged the educational system and introduced free compulsory schooling of a minimum four years, barely a decade after the idea had caught on in "the new world" of North America.

These developments formed the basis, from the start, of Japan's tremendous leap from obscurity to the status of a world power by the turn of the century. In 1907 the compulsory term was raised to six years and by 1912, 98 per cent of all school-age children, even those in remote mountain villages, were attending class.

Today, nine years is the compulsory minimum, six years of primary and three of junior secondary. Beyond that, there is another three years of senior secondary and two years of junior college, a frequent route for girls, or four years of university.

The average pupil-teacher ratio in primary schools is 34, in junior secondary 30 and in senior secondary 25—better than in most Canadian provinces.

Free Lunch

Most primary pupils, by law, receive a free lunch at school and PTA groups are active in helping provide kitchen facilities and similar projects. A recent addition, the school lunch program promises to give a new impetus to the general trend of recent years in which the "average" Japanese physique has been growing.

The children go to school from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. weekdays and until noon Saturdays and take home about two to three hours' homework each day, for almost 11 months of the year. Instruction is of a high standard. English is a compulsory second language throughout high school and a third and fourth language often is studied. Algebra is introduced in Grade 6.

"Back home both were A students but here they're finding it a real struggle just to pass," the mother of a Japanese-Canadian family from Victoria, posted to Tokyo for three years, told me of her two boys. They attend a private international school that is a cut, but only somewhat, above the average urban public school.

This year the universities are crowded with more than 1.1 million students, an increase of 700 per cent since 1935. The gross population has only increased 50 per cent during the same period. More than 250,000 attend college with the help of 20-year government loans.

Suicides

Because of the carry-over of the paternalistic traditions of feudalism, resulting in a Japanese spending his entire working life with the same company and his pay depending entirely on starting qualifications and subsequently on seniority alone, there is an almost unbearable emphasis on academic achievement. The graduating marks literally determine the rest of a student's life—although there are signs of a gradual change.

Several dozen students each year commit suicide because they fail or can't take the strain. It is not unheard of for an ambitious student to end his life even on successful graduations if his marks were not high enough to open the doors into a desired career or starting position.

A high proportion of vocational subjects in high school helps Japan accomplish the annual absorbtion of close to two million youths into the labor force. (In fact there is concern that as a result of birth control measures the student population will begin receding in 1967 after the last wave of post-war babies passes out of the schools.)

But another factor is the supplementary training provided as a matter of course by large firms to its new recruits and old employees. Private industry devotes a considerable expenditure for schooling the new comers in their future jobs, retraining those whose jobs become redundant and, latterly, financing promising high school graduates through university, particularly those bent on engineering careers.

Retraining

In one of the large electrical appliance plants which I toured, where a total of 10,000 workers earned their living, there was a school accommodating 450 and it was full at the time, with new and old employees being retrained for new jobs—all at their regular salary.

As a result of centuries-bred traditions, the master-servant exchange of loyalties prevents managements from laying off workers except in the most dire circumstances so retraining employees has developed as the favorite method of keeping them occupied between useful periods. It works in well with the transition to automation and also is justified by companies as a method of retaining a cushion of workers—a concept developed during the years of rapid expansion and labor scarcity.

A firm announced it had to lay off about 1,000 workers in order to survive a potential bankruptcy while I was there and the next day I read that other companies in the same field had immediately agreed to take on a pro-rata share of the persons involved in order to save them a single day of joblessness—an example of both the "cushion" concept and also the ingrained paternalism of the employer class.

More evidence lies in the fact that automation is burgeoning in Japan but there are no visible signs of worker unrest or anxiety about losing their jobs. In fact, some workers in the more boring production line jobs, I was told, welcome automation as the only chance to enter more interesting work.

Loyalty Strong

Why don't they just quit and take another job? Even though there are plenty to be had—unemployment currently is running at .06 per cent of the 50 million-strong labor force—quitting is almost as inconceivable as firing. The master-servant loyalties cut both ways and they've continued for more than 1,000 years because they give security to each side.

When I mentioned the number of jobs I've held, it amazed my listeners, particularly those who had not been abroad. I think they regarded me as an unsteady character, and I'm told that is precisely the social stigma that job-jumping would bring to a Japanese.

Loyalty is expressed at the bargaining table, too. For the past few years, unionized plants—there are more than 47,000 unions with almost 9 million members—have been receiving annual increases averaging about 10 per cent, the employers' expression of loyalty in fantastically good times. This year, amid worries of a recession, the unions reciprocated by asking only 5.2 per cent on the average.

'Very Proud'

Guy Smith, Canada's commercial minister in the Tokyo embassy, told me that the Japanese have an incredible cohesiveness and drive for a national destiny, and this is reflected in the work-a-day world as well as at patriotic events.

"They (workers) held down their demands this year because of the business slowdown and when the economy breaks a record they all take off their caps and cheer the announcement—and so they should when you think of their achievements.

"But this shows that wages are not the most important thing for them. They are very proud of their achievements and these mean a great deal—more than they do to us."

However, now that the material things of life—first radios, then television, refrigerators and washing machines—are becoming common, the old patterns are beginning to break up. More and more married women are going to work (delinquency is rising) and hubby wants more money because eyes now are fixing brightly on a family car or even ownership of a house.

CALLAGHAN CLEARED

LONDON (AP)—A House of Commons committee today cleared James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor government, of a potentially damaging charge of breach of parliamentary privilege.

The charge was lodged by Conservative Sir Robert Cary after Callaghan made a speech a fortnight ago implying some Conservative members of Parliament are more concerned with the interests of big business magnates than of their other constituents.

In his reply to the charge, Callaghan told the investigating committee:

"I submit to the committee that if political speeches calling attention to such interests are to be regarded as a breach of privilege, then legitimate comment and the rights of free speech will be seriously impaired."

HOME GARDEN

Good Hedge Needs Care and Attention

By JACK BEASTALL

Hedge plants need just as much care and attention as other plants if they are to remain vigorous and attractive.

Jack

As with a lawn, the better the treatment the more trimming is needed, and very few gardeners will permit their lawn to die in order to save work.

While a lawn is considered as lending prestige to a property, the hedge is seldom thought of in the same class, despite the hedge being the only part of the garden visible to outsiders.

The desire for a "hedge in a hurry" has led to the popularity of plants which have an insatiable hunger and roots that forage for yards.

The roots head for the lawns and borders where water and food is plentiful, robbing the plants to which the nourishment rightly belongs. After all, the hedge wants to live—if possible.

Regular watering and spring fertilizing will keep the roots of a young hedge close to home, and they will not wander far in later years if their needs are supplied.

Neglected hedges should be well watered between now and the end of the month. After August begins, water must be withheld as much as possible so that this summer's growth can ripen before winter. Fertilizer should be applied in February for the spring rains to wash down to the root area.

Newly-planted hedges should not be allowed to make much height before the plants are touching at the bottom. Growths which have made excessive length this season should be shortened to conform with the average height of the hedge.

All other new growths should have the growing tip removed with the thumb and finger to encourage side-shoots that will keep the base well filled. Striving for height before the base is tight is the first step towards an unsatisfactory and unsightly hedge.

Four Youths Reserve Plea In Camp Row

CLOVERDALE (CP)—Four youths appeared in magistrate's court here Wednesday and were remanded to Aug. 11 without plea on charges of unlawfully and wilfully interfering with a camp owner and his property.

The four released on their own recognicance were William Forney of New Westminster, Ronald Anthony of Burnaby, and Lawrence Forster and Joseph Lamontagne of North Surrey. All are 19.

A fifth youth, Lawrence Eyre, 19, or North Surrey was recovering in hospital from a gunshot wound to his knee and was unable to appear on the charge.

The charges followed a shouting battle at a campsite in White Rock July 4 in which a number of youths threatened operator Everet Dicks.

The camp operator fired several shots, wounding two youths, but was not charged by police.

Suspects Remanded

EDINBURGH (CP) — Two Scots, wanted by Canadian police in connection with the armed theft of some $1,200,000 in Vancouver, have been remanded in custody to await the arrival of details of the charges from Canada.

Joseph Percival, 37, and James McDougall, 31, were arrested in Blantyre, Lanarkshire, last month. Percival is a former member of the Vancouver police force. McDougall was a real estate salesman.

The sheriff's court had been scheduled to decide Monday, on the basis of the deposition of evidence, whether the men should be extradited to Canada. However, Vancouver authorities had reported the legal documents were still not ready.

70 Killed In Sudan

KHARTOUM, Sudan (Reuters) — Seventy persons were killed in a clash with government forces at Wau, capital of Sudan's southern Bahr el Ghazal province, an information ministry official reported here.

LOT OF 'WRONG' TIMES FOR A GENTLEMAN

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, civilized, gentle and articulate, was the ideal politician to a lot of people but, unfortunately for him, never to enough people.

And he appeared at the wrong time and against the wrong man.

He truly represented something too seldom seen in American political life — the thinker—when he ran against Dwight Eisenhower and lost the presidency to him twice.

The 1952 race wasn't a time for thinking.

It was an emotional time. The country was tormented over the Korean War and split to its roots by McCarthyism with all that it meant in bewilderment, suspicion and revulsion.

What Stevenson offered, with his probings and often painfully polished language, was a self-examination of the American conscience at a moment when Americans apparently felt they needed something else.

That something else was a return to tranquility, of cohesion instead of division, and of proven strength in leadership to eliminate misgivings. Eisenhower symbolized all those needs.

WAS UNKNOWN

Stevenson, governor of Illinois, was almost unknown.

Eisenhower, proven commander and national hero, could be expected to restore sanity even if he had to knock heads together. And he was a friendly man who could be trusted not to engender new antagonisms.

While Stevenson seemed a little in awe of Eisenhower in the first campaign, in 1956 he was rougher on Eisenhower than John F. Kennedy was on Richard Nixon in 1960.

And in 1956 he did worse than in 1952.

Stevenson was a hero to liberals, intellectuals, college youth and faculties because he had a perspective on history, compassion for mankind, lucidity in language and a reasoning mind.

But it is questionable whether he would ever have been a good president.

WAS GENTLE

He had all the instincts of the lamb, while all the first-line presidents at one time or another had to show the teeth of a tiger.

Nothing showed better the lack of aggressiveness than that night in Chicago in 1952 when, after getting the Democratic nomination, he made his acceptance speech.

Where another candidate would have responded with vigor and fire to the challenge handed him, Stevenson made himself appear a reluctant martyr.

He said: "I have asked the merciful Father of us all to let this cup pass from me." But, since it did not pass, he said he would drink it.

Here he was both indecisive and self - conscious, qualities that often appear later.

But, despite these defects, he remained in American life a shining figure until he died without malice, a man of good will, kindness and infinite concern for the people of his own country and the world.

He was a gentleman and a gentle man.

ADLAI WANTED TO QUIT POST

LONDON (AP) — In death, Adlai Ewing Stevenson started the journey home today—back to Washington where the highest gift of the American people eluded him, then on to Illinois for burial in the state that elected him governor.

Accompanying the body were Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, Stevenson's three sons and a party of U.S. officials.

The eloquent spokesman for U.S. policy as ambassador to the United Nations since 1961 and twice the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, Stevenson collapsed and died outside the U.S. Embassy Wednesday. The embassy said he had suffered a heart attack. He was 65.

The coffin was removed from a crimson-sovered catafalque in the foyer of the U.S. Embassy for the trip to the airport, where President Johnson's plane was waiting.

Humphrey, the three younger Stevensons and a delegation of U.S. officials had arrived in Johnson's plane three hours earlier.

A funeral service will be held in the Washington Cathedral Friday.

Among those accompanying Humphrey were Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, Undersecretary of State George Ball and Stevenson's sons, Adlai, John and Borden, and the wives of Adlai and John.

SERVED AS GOVERNOR

After the Washington service, the body will be flown to Springfield, Iill., to lie in state. It was there Stevenson served as governor of Illihois from 1948 until 1952.

Sunday, the body will be taken to Bloomington, Ill., where he grew up. Funeral service and burial in the family plot will take place Monday.

Meanwhile, correspondent Eric Sevareid of the Columbia Broadcasting System said Stevenson told him Monday night he wanted to resign from his UN post. In a broadcast from London, Sevareid said Stevenson told him, "for a while I would just like to sit in the shade with a glass of wine in my hands and watch people dance."

Stevenson had said he planned to return to law practice in New York and Chicago, but he wasn't sure how or when to tell Johnson he wanted to quit, Sevareid said.

David Schoenbrun, an American radio correspondent, said in a broadcast from Paris that Stevenson, during dinner last Friday with him and roving ambassador Averell Harriman, told them that U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic was "a massive blunder" and that defence of the move in the United Nations "took several years off my life."

Clayton Fritchey, long-time associate of Stevenson, told a reporter at UN headquarters he had never heard Stevenson utter such statements. He said the ambassador had "vigorously defended U.S. policies."

Johnson May Name Rusk to UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians speculated today that President Johnson may want to choose an American with world standing to succeed Adlai Stevenson as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Administration officials said no consideration has been given to naming a successor for Stevenson, who died Wednesday in London. But it was expected that Johnson might wish to fill the position soon after the ambassador's funeral, because of the pressure of coming events at the United Nations.

Francis Plimpton, No. 2 man in the U.S. delegation to the world organization, takes over Stevenson's duties until a successor is named.

Johnson's comparison Wednesday of Stevenson with Lincoln in his accomplishments was interpreted as indicating the president looks upon the UN assignment as one of the most important in shaping world opinion.

For this reason, there was some speculation that the president might want State Secretary Dean Rusk to transfer to the UN post.

'RUSK RANKS FIRST'

Johnson said Tuesday Rusk "ranks first in the cabinet and ranks first with me."

State Undersecretary George Ball is another who has had wide contact with top-ranking diplomats and heads of state, as has Ambassador - at - Large Lleweflyn Thompson.

Those who thought Johnson would pick a knowledgeable diplomat who is a close personal friend mentioned Thomas C. Mann, Latin American expert who is undersecretary of state for economic affairs.

Others who figure in speculation around the capital include Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee; the committee's second - ranking Democratic member, Senator John Sparkman of Alabama; Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. envoy to the Organization of American States; and Ambassador-at-Large Averell Harriman.

Camp Fee Urged For Police Guard

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Motels and Resort Association asked Wednesday that government campsites charge high enough fees to pay for police protection. Provincial sites are either free or else charge $2 a day after three free days.

End Farm Machinery Monopoly: Says NDP

TORONTO (CP)—The New Democratic Party continues today to churn out guidelines for its next election campaign—along with the election of a leader — after treading gently through the potentially - explosive Viet Nam issue Wednesday.

The election of a party leader is not likely to produce any upsets. Leader T. C. Douglas, who must put his leadership on the line every two years under the party's constitution, is expected to have the field to himself during the 15 minutes devoted to the election. He has been receiving standing ovations from the 800 delegates with virtually every speech.

Since the Viet Nam issue was carefully settled by a massively - approved resolution at noon Wednesday—followed by a 150-member parade of protest to the United States consulate—the convention has been concentrating on the party's economic and social progrma.

SEEK SOCIAL BENEFITS

Among other things Wednesday, the delegates approved:

—A resolution on social security calling for a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians, a new comprehensive retirement pension plan to supersede both the old-age security program and the Canada Pension Plan, upgraded family allowances, and other social benefits;

—A resolution to amend the Criminal Code so instruction on birth control will not be illegal.

—A national medical care scheme.

—An agricultural program, criticized by some delegates as being too vague, which outlines the party's basic approach to the farm question.

The agriculture brief says that maximum food production must be attained, along with orderliness of marketing. "The New Democratic Party will lower the costs of farm production by ending private monopoly control over farm machinery, fertilizers, chemicals and other supplies. Co-operatives will be encouraged and assisted to enter these fields and, where necessary, public ownership will be developed."

IMPROVE RURAL LIFE

A family farm and rural life improvement fund would provide capital on a shared basis with the provinces. Additional funds would be provided to the provinces through federal-provincial planning for improved rural transportation. Money would be provided to farmers who relocate.

The only criticism from the floor on this resolution was that it didn't go far enough.

Retiring president Mervin Johnston said the vagueness would disappear when party officials hammered it into a clear-cut election platform.

The resolution on Viet Nam was approved without opposition. Andrew Brewin, NDP member of Parliament for Toronto Greenwood, described it as "reasonable, firm and balanced."

The committee's resolution called for an immediate halt to U.S. bombings and for "all interested parties including the Viet Cong to enter into negotiations based on the Geneva agreement without imposing difficult or impossible preconditions."

The Canadian government was condemned for its support of "the dangerous and disastrous course pursued by the government of the United States."

Regier Defeated

TORONTO (CP) — Eamon Park of Toronto was elected to a two-year term as federal president of the New Democratic Party, it was announced Wednesday. He defeated Erhard Regier of Burnaby, B.C.

The vote count was not announced.

Five vice-presidents were elected: F. W. Dowling of Toronto, Louise Laberge of Montreal, David Lewis of Toronto, Ed Nelson of Wetaskawin, Alta., and Allan O'Brien of Halifax. Only other candidate was Colin Cameron, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands.

Strike Shelved At Montreal PO

OTTAWA (UPI) — Montreal postal employees have decided at an all-day meeting here to withhold strike action over demands until they know definitely what increases the government will offer them.

Possibility of a nation-wide strike of postal workers appeared to have been averted—at least for the time being—following the meeting with national president Les Hood and other officers of the 8,000-member Canadian Postal Employees Association (CLC) and the Federation of Letter Carriers.

The answer is remarkably simple.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Wanted: Workers (Skilled)

CANADA FACES A SHORTAGE of skilled and professional men which could amount to 150,000 by the end of this year. This presents a challenge to our educational institutions, our labor re-training programs and our immigration department. None of these agencies alone can fill the need, and according to Immigration Minister Nicholson, it is not likely that all three together can meet the requirements of the expanding Canadian economy.

A special study in Ontario, says Mr. Nicholson, based on interviews with employers, shows that there is an existing shortage of some 35,000 skilled and professional workers, and that this total will be doubled by the end of the year. In British Columbia a similar survey showed that more than 20,000 of this type of worker will be needed within the next six months.

In these two provinces alone, then, more than 90,000 professional and skilled positions will be seeking workers. And it must be remembered that many of these jobs will be of a nature that will create a demand for more workers.

UBC President John Macdonald said recently that for every potential PhD who does not get his degree, there will be about 100 unemployed down the line. The reverse should be true: highly trained workers create jobs.

Mr. Nicholson estimated that only about two per cent of the needed 90,000 workers in Ontario and British Columbia "can be met during the next year by the present school system". He urges more attention to channeling young people into appropriate training for the opportunities that lie ahead. The current vocational training programs in Burnaby illustrate this trend.

Along with this, says Mr. Nicholson, there must be re-training of workers whose skills have become obsolete, and he says this with Canada's current 265,000 unemployed in mind. This he sees as "a primary responsibility of education, of employer, of labor and of government."

Most countries with a supply of skilled workers today offer full scope for their own labor force. There is less incentive to emigrate to another land. And other countries, also short of labor, are bidding for the available supply in Europe and elsewhere. Canada must compete with the homelands as well as with energetic campaigns by such countries as Australia.

Mr. Nicholson stresses that immigration, to be effective in meeting our needs, must consist of the classes of workers needed here. There is no point in adding to the large pool of unskilled unemployed, whose plight will become still more precarious as technology proceeds. This is also the principle of the new United States immigration regulations, which give a high priority welcome to skilled workers in fields where there is a shortage.

Thousands of suitable immigrants cannot be plucked out of a hat in a few weeks. There must be a long-term, carefully planned program of immigration for Canada's needs and the benefit of those who come here.

Obviously the skilled labor shortage is not a problem that will soon be solved. Obviously we are going to continue with the anomaly of many unemployed persons in a country clamoring for workers. This is going to require a co-operative and understanding approach by government, schools, employers and unions. Education and training are the only permanent answer. The day is almost gone when in an emergency anyone could grab a shovel to make a living. A man's hands today are worth in the market only what they have been trained to do.

Adlai Stevenson

THE UNITED STATES HAS lost a great public servant and the ranks of diplomats throughout the world are impoverished through the sudden death in London of Mr. Adlai Stevenson, one of the great liberals of our era.

He was fashioned in that mould of international statesmen which can ill be spared in these times of trouble. To Adlai Stevenson was granted the gift of eloquent championship of peace and human dignity. He used that gift with a mastery admired throughout the Western world and beyond.

There have been occasions, many of them recent, when American policy which he supported with the utmost loyalty has not won the whole-hearted approval of America's friends. The fact that Adlai Stevenson stood up and spoke out in its behalf helped to blunt criticism which might otherwise have been sharper and more divisive.

Canadians will have a warm memory of his personality as revealed in his many public speeches, notably those of his presidential campaigns in which he exhibited sincere humanitarianism and a logical mind spiced with wit. He may well be credited with having brought a new respect for learning to the American political scene.

He knew that his career in public life demanded a high price of him personally—success that would have come his way in a private professional career and the rewards of domestic comfort which he relinquished to the calls of dedicated service for his country.

President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson have paid impressive tributes to the man they held in such high esteem. They are tributes that will be echoed by many of his countrymen and by legions of admirers he could not know he had won in this and other countries.

A graceful spirit has departed. Men of good will have lost a friend.

Two Hundred Albatrosses

THE AMERICAN SAILOR WHO turned the wrong tap on an anchored U.S. aircraft carrier and dumped 2,650 gallons of horrible black oil onto the beaches of the Riviera at the height of the summer season is in an unenviable position.

It is not so much the fact that four miles of the world's most expensive beach have been ruined for weeks. It is not so much the opinions of the hundreds of resort proprietors, the wealthy and high-born vacationers, the thousands of natives who would have lived off the largess of the visitors. It is not so much the man's feelings of guilt at the havoc he so innocently wrought. Or the huge expense his government may be put to before the damage is repaired.

No. These things are bad enough. But the heaviest cross the poor fob must bear is the presence of 200 of his shipmates who, with shore leaves cancelled, pulled on work clothes and spent the whole hot, aching night digging trenches in the sands of the Mediterranean shore to prevent the spread of the oil.

The ship will eventually sail away and leave behind the tar-sands of Cannes. But that unfortunate sailor cannot leave his exhausted, oily, resentful shipmates behind. They will be with him, day and night, for the duration of the voyage.

—Bierman, The Victoria Daily Times.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Clarifying the Eskimo Issue

THE federal government has now issued a statement of policy on the subject of the Ungava Eskimos which is generally reassuring. It is not in form a denial of the Lesage assertions of last week — evidently the prime minister attaches a high value to politeness on the eve of a federal-provincial conference — but the several propositions set out in the statement do constitute implicit denials of the Quebec claims.

Western

The Eskimo fight has not been concerned about ultimate objectives. Everyone agrees that we should look to a goal in which the Eskimos will be on exactly the same footing as other Canadians. It has been a fight about means; about the protections to be accorded these people in a period of transition which may last for generations. Those who have resisted the Quebec pressure have argued that the Eskimos must be consulted at every turn and in meaningful fashion.

Soothing assurances from civil servants will not suffice. There must be no change without the approval of the Eskimos.

Although the statement attributes to Mr. Pearson's answers a clarity they did not possess, it does of itself clarify the situation in respect to consultation. The following paragraphs are important for the record.

"Yesterday's statement clearly reaffirmed the position of the Government of Canada with respect to the gradual extension of provincial services to the Eskimo people commensurate with their growing involvement in Canadian life and subject always to full consultation and in accordance with the wishes of the Eskimos concerned."

Again: "One other principle is most important, namely that since the efforts of all concerned with this matter relate to the wellbeing of the Eskimos, the opinions of the Eskimos on this subject are of paramount importance. This is a matter of fundamental human justice. The Eskimo community will progress far more rapidly and maintain its own culture and dignity more completely if it has entire confidence in the governments and other groups with whom they associate."

It may be added, parenthetically, that in the case of the Indians this confidence has been lost. That of the Eskimos must have been shaken by Mr. Levesque's disreputable campaign of last year and there is, accordingly, need for extreme care in any future dealings in Ungava.

The statement continues: "Therefore the Government of Canada has taken the stand that meaningful consultation is a necessary prerequisite to any change in matters so important as the administration of the basic government services. 'Meaningful' has two aspects — the mechanism of the consultation must be such that the feelings of the Eskimos are properly conveyed to the governments in a way that has the confidence of the Eskimos; and the governments must be prepared to take into account the feelings they discover through such consultation."

Political Questions

There are political questions on the margin of the Eskimo issue. As the municipal agreement is to set a pattern for similar agreements at other points in Ungava, Parliament will presumably require an explanation for Mr. Pearson's failure to reveal it for two months. It will be appropriate at the same time to obtain detailed information about the consultations. Who acted for the government or governments and how?

Mr. Lesage claimed an agreement "to proceed step by step so that the province will eventually have complete jurisdiction over Eskimos." He added that: "What you saw (the Fort Chimo school referred to in the Quebec estimates) is part of this."

The statement repeats the earlier assertion that "the only current discussions with Mr. Lesage" have involved the Great Whale project. Thus the Fort Chimo school cannot be part of the agreement claimed by the Quebec premier. Quebec has a right, as noted, to operate schools anywhere in the province but it has no right of its own to educate Eskimo children. The federal government may welcome a supplementary service for Eskimos to use if they choose. But it is bound to continue and proposes to continue its own federal school at Fort Chimo.

As for the Lesage claim about "jurisdiction," the statement denies that there has been any "federal abandonment or denial of a federal responsibility or a federal 'sellout.' It repeats the words of the memorandum of February 1964: "It is agreed that Canada cannot divest itself of its power to legislate regarding Eskimos."

Quebec demanded last year that there should be a transfer of administration (not jurisdiction) according to an agreed schedule. This is ruled out by the statement "The need for special services and federal involvement must be considered in longer terms than the immediate future. Nor will the end of this requireemnt for special federal intervention come at any particular point in time; rather, it must be expected that some federal activity will continue for an extensive period, but that particular services may be undertaken by the provinces, at points in time commensurate with deevlopments."

Standards

The last paragraph of the statement contains an important assertion which also raises a question. Speaking of a period of gradual change, it says: "The federal government stands ready to provide such services as may be required, and must satisfy itself that the standards of services being provided by other agencies are appropriate and adequate." This might mean at Fort Chimo that the federal government would have to satisfy itself as to the standards of a Quebec school.

It will, of course, be the duty of Parliament to hold the government to account. But if there is to be a delegation of administration, how will Parliament perform its duty? Will federal ministers presume to answer in the House of Commons for the actions of Quebec ministers?

If there was doubt on this point before, there must be more after the events of last week and the prime minister's delicate refusal to take direct issue with the unfounded claims of the premier of Quebec.

To the Editor

Without Honor at Home?

When one considers how much Mr. Roderick Clack has done to upgrade downtown Victoria in spite of civic bureaucracy and at times apparent "blockages" one cannot fail to wonder just what could have been done, and what might be done in the future with the full understanding and co-operation of his fellow civic servants.

It is a most serious matter for Greater Victoria when this brilliant man, dedicated to the betterment of our city, is forced to leave an atmosphere that considers urban renewal "just a matter of knocking down a few houses and putting in a road".

It would appear that Mr. Clack's country can better assess his worth than can his own home town. Good luck in Ottawa, Mr. Clack. Let us hope that better sense prevails in Victoria when you return following the municipal elections in December.—Peter G. Bunn, 888 Linkleas.

Swim Pools

Now that you are running this project ballot I thought it fitting to write about something I learned about while visiting Calgary last year.

Calgary may be a city in a province whose water supply isn't as abundant as ours. But Calgary can put Victoria to shame any day when it comes to what they are doing for their children and young people in encouraging them to take part in the healthy outdoor sport of swimming.

In each park they have a good-sized swimming pool and in several a good diving tank alongside it. The pools are nice, clean, well supervised and there is only a small charge for a child.

Looking Back

From The Times of July 15, 1890:

Nanaimo: Striking miners in Wellington have been ordered to vacate their company-owned homes by the County Court here. Judge Harrison granted up to 10 days grace for the miners to leave. He said R. Dunsmuir and Company simply asked for possession of their property to which the miners had no right since they had not paid rent. A telegram from Tully Boyce, president of the Miners Union, appealed to Victorians for tents to shelter the evicted families.

More Bombs

By CHARLES BARTLETT from Washington

RICHARD NIXON'S acute sense of issues has led him to detect that the Democrats who oppose the war in Viet Nam are more promising targets for the Republicans than President Johnson and his course of deepening the American involvement.

This is an instinctive theme for Nixon, who has long held that Democrats are soft and that communist penetration must be arrested. But it is also good politics because the grumbling in Washington at President Johnson's personal style does not change the fact, underlined by every poll, that the American public has rallied behind the goal line stand in Asia.

But Nixon is more venturous, politically and tactically, in his indorsement of the proposal by Republican House leader Gerald Ford that the five SAM missile sites under construction in the region around Hanoi, be immediately destroyed. This is part of a larger thesis, advanced by Ford and Nixon, that the full potential of airpower should be applied to North Viet Nam before more American soldiers are consigned to jungle warfare.

This Republican emphasis upon bombing as a means "to avoid involvement in a large-scale ground war" will gain importance if Mr. Johnson is obliged, as he may be shortly, to call up the reserves.

The pulverization of North Viet Nam is not the present U.S. policy. The bombers are said to have destroyed only one-fifth of the country's petroleum storage facilities and power generating capacity.

The chief arguments against pulverization are these: it will probably not end the effectiveness of the guerrillas fighting in the South; the psychological impact will damage the anti-communist cause and finally the destruction of North Viet Nam's economy will create an enticing vacuum for the Chinese.

Negotiation Hopes

The President's reluctance to take steps that will complicate the task of negotiating a settlement has deterred him from ordering his bombers to take out the SAM missile sites before they can fire against American aircraft. This is a calculated risk predicated upon an apprehension that the Soviets will be jolted into a more aggressive role, perhaps in places like West Berlin, if their missile-launching equipment is destroyed.

The price of permitting the SAMs to be installed is judged acceptable here. The missiles will scarcely impede air reconaissance because they have narrow cones of effectiveness which can be avoided by the use of drones and oblique photography. Since they are ineffectual under 10,000 feet, the sites will remain vulnerable to low-flying bombers. The strategy once readied against 25 similar SAM-sites in Cuba can be quickly invoked against the five in North Viet Nam.

The Ford-Nixon advocacy of heavier air bombardment does not answer the challenge on the ground which is the Viet Cong's imminent test of American determination. The uncertainty of the bombers' effectiveness against these ground forces makes it imperative to have troops on hand with the capacity to repulse the attacks that are anticipated.

The Republicans retain, as Sen. Thomas Kuchel pointed out, their right to criticize the government's actions in Viet Nam. But for the present these criticisms are likely to contribute less to the party's posture than gestures of solidarity like the admirable readiness of Henry Cabot Lodge to return to Saigon.

FROM WASHINGTON — By WALTER LIPPMANN

France and ECM Federalists

IT would be most surprising if the current crisis led to the breakup of the Common Market. Each of the countries concerned has much to lose by a rupture, and none has anything to gain. All of them know that they would be much poorer and that the French farmers and the German and Italian manufacturers would make life miserable for their governments if they allowed the Common Market to break up. The occasion out of which the crisis grew was a highly technical and quite manageable financial controversy about payments to agriculture. But contained within this controversy there is a deep issue which involves the shape of the European future.

Lippmann

Conceivably this issue also can in the end be compromised. But as it now appears it poses the question of whether the six continental West European countries shall move toward a confederation, which could include the whole of Europe, or toward a federation of the six with a central government, superior to the governments in Paris, Bonn, Rome and so forth.

Supra-National Government

The immediate practical question is whether the development of the Common Market can for the time being be separated from a decisive move affecting the constitutional future of Europe. The current crisis has been precipitated by the attempt of the Federalists, such as Dr. Hallstein, the president of the Commission of the Common Market, to graft onto the financing of agriculture a very big decision toward a supra-national European government.

How? By the terms of the Treaty of Rome, the Common Market is to be "completed" by Dec. 31, 1969, and there are proposals to accelerate the completion. This means that in four and a half years at the latest the six Western European countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—are to have a common tariff as against the rest of the world, no customs barriers within the market and to pay farm subsidies and export rebates entirely from a common pool.

The Federalists, who want to create a supra-national West European state, have thought that they could move ahead by feeding this common agricultural fund with revenues from the duties on industrial products. These revenues, according to the Federalists' proposal, would go increasingly to the common treasury instead of to the member states. In 1972, all such revenues—amounting to over $2 billion—would go to the community treasury.

By the terms of the Treaty of Rome, budgetary control of this financial pool would remain in the hands of the Hallstein Commission, subject to approval by the council of member states. The Federalists are proposing to strengthen their power by bringing the European parliament into the budget-making process.

Ingenious Device

This is an ingenious device for using the Common Market to bring about a West European federal state. It would be a long, perhaps a decisive step. Gaullist France is refusing to take that step. That is why there is a crisis.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's resistance to the creation of a supra-national West European state is widely regarded as a piece of reactionary nationalism which is preventing the rise of a new great state. It is quite true, of course, that Gen. de Gaulle is profoundly opposed to the reduction of French sovereignty and to any developments in which France would tend to become in Europe something like one of the states in the American federal union.

But are we in any position to blame him? Would any American President or any American Congress be willing today to enter a supra-national state? We must not be shocked or surprised that France is as nationalist as the United States under President Johnson.

Sovereignty Issue

We should pause, too, before we pronounce the Gaullist conception of Europe as reactionary. If the Federalists prevail and construct a supra-national state, it will be extremely difficult for the British Parliament, with its world-wide responsibilities, to surrender large elements of its sovereignty to it. Moreover, a federal government in Western Europe with a supra-national bureaucracy would close the door for a long time to the inclusion of Eastern Europe in the Community of Europe.

In fact, the underlying issue between Gen. de Gaulle and the Federalists is between a tight little Europe of the six and a looser greater Europe which would include the whole continent. Can it truly be said that the idea of a greater Europe—which would mean the reunification of Germany and a settlement with the Soviet Union—is reactionary according to American principles or contrary to our real interests?

Fathers and Sons Key Soviet Issue

By STEPHEN S. ROSENFELD

MOSCOW — The Communist Party has decided to tackle head-on a problem which enraged and confounded Khrushchev even while he denied its existence, that of differences between "fathers" and "sons."

The problem is that the "sons," the younger generation, did not know the revolution, sacrifice, terror and war which shaped the "fathers"

KHRUSHCHEV

Elsewhere this dissonance might be dealt with philosophically and privately but here the Communist party's concern that all citizens share the the same values and ideals makes the problem political — one not for sociologists and commencement speakers but for the rulers in the Kremlin.

"There are no contradictions between generations," Khrushchev stormed in 1963, "and the problem of 'fathers and sons' does not exist."

He referred to the title and theme of Turgenev's 19th century novel which stamped the conflict of generations into the Russian scene.

Alluding to youth, he said the "young builders of communism should know very well with what fervent enthusiasm their grandfathers fought for victory in the Russian revolution of 1917, with what unprecedented enthusiasm and selflessness their fathers and grandfathers fought to turn backward Russia into an advanced industrial country."

"Our youth should know that their fathers and mothers not only experienced the joy of great victories, but also had to overcome a great number of difficulties on the road to constructing socialism."

His words suggested that unlike his predecessor he is not starting by denying that the generations rub, but is determined to try to ease the friction.

PREMIER ROBARTS

Messiah Runs Into Color Bar

JOHANNESBURG — The 18th-century composer George Frederick Handel has become a victim of the South African government's apartheid policy of racial segregation.

A performance of Handel's Messiah by South Africa's leading all-Negro choir, a major annual event on Johannesburg's music calendar, was banned by the government for a time because the choir was black and the orchestra white.

Two days before the performance, officials informed the white organizers their application to perform the oratorio had been rejected.

After a last-minute appeal to the minister of community development, Piet Botha, a white organist was allowed to play instead of the white orchestra. The organizers told Botha there was no competent black organist available.

A Sense of Achievement Grows Stronger in Canada

The premier of Ontario, Mr. John Robarts, has emerged as a posible future candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. In a recent speech in Winnipeg he expressed views of interest to all Canadians. The following is an excerpt.

I should like to explore with you those elements in our society that influence the operation of our political process.

There has been a marked shift in our population from a rural environment to urban centres. Even among rural residents in Canada the impact of the modern communication media of television and radio has had an enormous effect on their attitudes and values.

We are, for better or worse, an urban society with urban tastes. This is the result of industrial and social development and change that is common through the whole of North America and Western Europe.

Sophisticated financial systems encompassing all forms of consumer and other types of credit are the basis upon which this edifice is built; a high degree of social and work mobility, and a marked increase in leisure time.

In turn, these factors lead to increased demands for all forms and types of material goods and a broadening out of the cultural interests of our people.

Want Comforts

Our people have gone beyond a bare subsistence level of existence and are now demanding and expecting that life will provide them with such creature comforts as automobiles, television sets, two or three-week paid holidays and a host of other goods and services.

In other words, the very essence and character of our lives — our standards and modes of living, our attitudes — have been radically altered in the past two decades.

I realize that social critics will immediately say this concept of our Canadian society is one of affluence and thus has no meaning for large numbers of our people in all areas of our country.

The essential point is that, within the past 20 years in Canada, the majority of the people have come to earn and to enjoy the fruits, both material and cultural, of our industrial society while the minority, who are not fully participating in these benefits, are asking for and must be given the opportunity to acquire a fair portion of the fruits of this society.

Seek Identity

I also believe that Canadians are beginning to look beyond their immediate domestic concerns and interests and are attempting to find a common identity as Canadians. In the past, Canadian national identity has been dominated by either pride in the British connection or a negative reaction to the attraction of the United States.

Indeed, there have been occasions in our history when anti-Americanism almost took the place of Canadian nationalism. This day is gone. Canadians are now far more positive in their feelings toward Canada.

I believe that we are consciously seeking to find expressions of our common heritage, traditions and experience which bind us together. I believe that today Canadians are seeking their own manifest destiny.

As part of this process, it is my belief that Canadians in all the provinces are rejecting the attitude of mind which dictates an unquestioning adherence to our existing social, economic and political system. As a nation, we are challenging accepted beliefs and attempting to find new and more creative social, economic and political forms.

This does not mean that, as a nation, we should be or are prepared to do away with our traditions and shared experiences just for the sake of change. Rather, we are asking basic questions, and putting accepted beliefs to the test of practicality and rationality and measuring them against the needs of our time.

This is evident in the debates and discussions with respect to our constitution. This is evident in the establishment of the Bilingualism-Biculturalism Commission. It is also evident in the creation of metropolitan governments in the Toronto and Winnipeg areas.

In all these fields we Canadians are building on the past and developing new and imaginative ways of answering questions posed by the needs of the people of Canada in 1965.

Vast Changes

Finally, in my view, we Canadians have never really been able to comprehend the vast economic changes that have taken place in the past one hundred years.

Our continuing fascination with the vast untapped economic potential of this country has blinded us to the reality of what he have actually achieved.

We have in this country, and especially in the past one hundred years, achieved miracles. In 1867 the provnices of Western Canada did not exist. Only a few thousands of people lived west of the Lakehead. There was no adequate means of communication.

Within a few short years a great railroad was built and the west was opened up to settlement by men and women from every corner of the world who came here to build a new life for themselves and for their children. They brought with them the intangible assets of hope for the future and faith in their adopted country.

Over the years, Canada has emerged as a strong and wealthy nation. We have seen the development of our economy and the enrichment of our culture.

In my own province, I have, within my lifetime, witnessed the development of one of the world's largest and most diversified industrial complexes. It is almost impossible to comprehend the changes that have taken place in all aspects of our society.

Benefit All

Canadians today are developing a fuller, prouder sense of their achievements than ever before. They recognize not only the potential of Canada, but also the true magnitude of the economic development that has taken place in this country.

I believe that we are also beginning to be aware that, by our own efforts, we can mobilize the human and material resources of this half-continent for the benefit of all Canadians in all provinces.

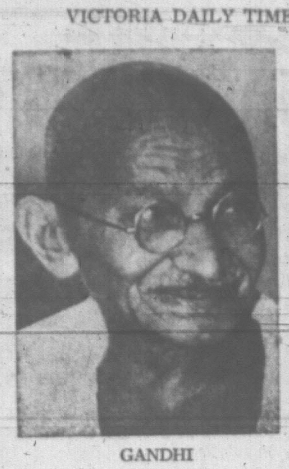

I believe, too, that Canadians are becoming increasingly more conscious of their obligations to the less developed nations of Asia, Africa and South America. We have not yet begun to make full payment on these obligations and I am convinced that this is an area which needs a far deeper and more sincere commitment on the part of Canada.

I also believe that the people of Canada are prepared to make the contributions of material, money and manpower which are so urgently needed.

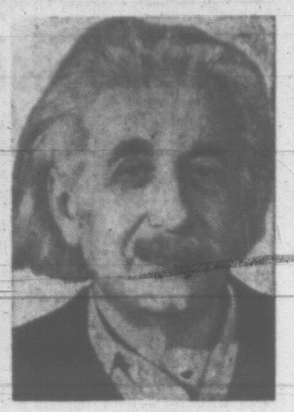

These, in general terms, are some of what I consider to be the major changes in values and aspirations of Canadians in the second half of the Twentieth Century.

The people of Canada are proud of their country; proud of its rich traditions and heritage; proud of its economic and social development; and proud of its stature among the nations of the world. Beyond this sense of pride in Canada's past is a sense of confidence in its future.

Underlying the uncertainties of today rests a vast reservoir of faith in the ability of Canada to rise above the divisive arguments that sometimes plague our country, a vast reservoir of faith that we will find common goals and objectives which will hold our people united.

GANDHI

EINSTEIN

Letters Reveal Bond Of Ei nstein, Gandhi

LONDON — Hitherto unpublished correspondence between Mohandas K. Gandhi and Albert Einstein has become public after nearly 34 years.

The famed physicist voiced approval of Gandhi's policy of non-violence. The Indian leader replied that Einstein's support gave him great consolation.

The letters were published in the Indian Weekly, an English-language publication for the Indian community in Britain.

Einstein wrote in October, 1931, the publication says:

"You have shown by all you have done that we can achieve the ideal even without resorting to violence. We can conquer those votaries of violence by the non-violent method. Your example will inspire and help humanity to put an end to a conflict based on violence with international help and co-operation guaranteeing peace to the world.

"With this expression of my devotion and admiration I hope to be able to meet you face to face."

Gandhi replied Oct. 12, 1931:

"I was delighted to have your beautiful letter. . . . It is a great consolation to me that the work I am doing finds favor in your sight. I do indeed wish that we could meet face to face. . . ."

The letter was written by Gandhi when he was in London, the Indian Weekly said. Einstein received the letter in Caputh, near Potsdam, Germany. It was found there by Dr. F. M. Friedmann, now a resident of London, after Einstein left Germany.

In the United States, Einstein, the former pacifist, supported the Allies in the Second World War against Nazi Germany. He suggested, in a letter to President Roosevelt, the possibility of building the atomic bomb.

There is no record that Einstein and Gandhi ever met. Gandhi was assassinated in India Jan. 30, 1948, by a Hindu extremist. Einstein died at Princeton, N.J., April 18, 1955.

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

Sand may not seem to be an ideal material to live in, yet many kinds of animals use it for this purpose. In fact, a surprising variety of creatures spend all or part of their life in this seemingly inhospitable environment, each kind solving the problems involved by various clever devices.

The unsuitability of sand as a habitation is largely due to its unstable, shifting nature. Excavations in it are short-lived because the walls tend to collapse particularly when the sand becomes too dry or too wet. Animals living in sand holes therefore have to clear out the passage-ways constantly or move into sand that is still cohesive or devise some method to prevent sand walls from caving in.

Sand also tends to clog gills, jaws, and other exposed moving joints of creatures digging beneath its surface. It therefore restricts its inhabitants to those animals that have successfully solved the problem by keeping this destructive abrasive from cutting off the flow of water or air or from entering and damaging their vital machinery.

Sand is notoriously poor as a retainer of water. On land it dries out rapidly creating a desert in which only a few drought-tolerant forms can live. At the same time the upper strata may become exceedingly hot by exposure to the sun for prolonged periods which makes these layers practically untenable by animal life.

One might wonder, then, why some animals choose to live in a substance that seemingly is so unsuitable. The reason is two-fold. First, sand offers a ready cover against predators or unfavorable conditions above the surface and second it sometimes contains vast quantities of food materials available to all with the ability to extract it.

As a shelter sand is almost ideal; because of its mobility animals can quickly dive into it and bury themsleves out of sight and they can emerge equally rapidly. The system works both under water and on land. On lakes or sea bottom sand has the properties of a semi-liquid, permitting relatively fast travel beneath its surface. On land there is another advantage; the digger can penetrate below the super-heated layer to levels of almost any desired temperature using the upper strata as insulation. In this situation penetration of the upper layers or actual emergence is usually restricted to night time or periods of dull weather when the surface strata are more bearable temperature-wise.

Its use as a cover works both ways, too. Besides shielding the prey from the predator it enables a hunter to remain concealed until a victim comes within striking distance. Both the pursuer and the pursued seek the shelter provided by layers of sand but for diametrically opposite reasons.

The food resources found in sand are also partly the result of the mobile nature of this material. Decaying plant and animal tissues become ground up by wave action on the beach and the resulting mulch becomes thoroughly mixed with sand by the same water movements. Here the minute particles of organic matter remain trapped until a sand-burrowing animal arrives equipped in some special way to tap this rich resource.

Although sand offers living conditions that are much less attractive than those in other environments it is by no means a desert. In fact it is populated by a large number of creatures that, in some cases, have turned the drawbacks to their own advantage.

Western Ideas Seep in Albania

By JOHN RUTHERFORD

VIENNA — Albania has so completely cut itself off from normal relations with other countries that it seems impossible that outside ideas might make their entry. But that is what seems at last to be happening.

For nearly 20 years Albania has been little more than a name to the outside world—a tiny enclave of Communism frowning from a fastness between the Adriatic and the savage mountains which separate it from Greece and Yugoslavia.

Something one can listen to on the radio, as the Tirana shortwave transmitter pours forth its nightly diatribes against Khrushchev, Tito and all the other "revisionist renegades" of the Communist world.

War With Greece

It is still technically at war with Greece. It is at loggerheads with all the Communist East Europeans who were once its allies and, though Khrushchev is out, it still equates Soviet Russia with American "imperialism."

If belongs to the United Nations, yet has trading contacts with only 40 of its 100-odd members and will allow none of UN's purely social-economic agencies to set foot inside its frontiers.

Its only "friend" is distant China—China which came up with $123 million worth of credits to finance its industrialization after Moscow had cut off aid because Albania's incorrigibly Stalinist leaders switched their ideoligical allegiance to Peking when the rift between the Communist giants opened in 1960.

China which saved Albania's five-year plan from collapse and equipped 25 major enterprises all of which will be in production by next year.

China which has just promised more credits—amount so far undisclosed—to help the country through the 1966-70 plan starting next January.

Tirana's politics and ideology, of course, are pure Peking —or the "only genuine Marxism-Leninism" and "proletarian internationalism" in a naughty "revisionist" world, as its party chief Enver Hoxha and Mao Tse-tung would have it.

For two decades, Albania's 1,500,000 people have lived on an economic shoestring and been ruled with a discipline comparable to Stalin's in his heyday.

No liberalization here, no curbing of police power. The mice of Yugoslav "heresy" have nibbled vainly a that mountain wall.

And yet, recent news from Albania itself begins to suggest that it is no more so completely immune from the ideas which have swept other Communist countries and changed them dramatically in recent years.

Youth, it is said, is getting "ideologically soft." Young dramatists are writing plays which flout "our reality." There are complaints of the "danger" of radio and other foreign (western) influences.

One has heard all this before, from Poland to Bulgaria. But not previously from Albania, snug, as its leaders believed, behind their own ideological cordon sanitaire.

Other "new ideas" are cropping up in Albania's economic world. There is some courageous talk going on about improving the quality of Albanian products as a means of expanding trade, not only among the Communist countries but with the few Western countries — principally Italy, France and Austria — which have relations with Tirana.

Lesage Pours It On

OTTAWA—Whenever Prime Minister Pearson's political stock is low, as it is now over influence-peddling in the Rivard case, Mr. Pearson has one political friend on whom he can count to drive it lower.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec seems to pick these times to press demands that can only be satisfied by some further surrender to Quebec City. He has a whole bagful of demands, and has chosen this moment to press the issues of jurisdiction over northern Quebec Eskimos and offshore oil rights.

In so doing, he is jeopardizing the success of the federal-provincial conference scheduled here on Monday. The main purpose of the conference is to forge a united front for Mr. Pearson's War on Poverty. This is a war that cannot be won without provincial co-operation. But side issues like Quebec Eskimos and offshore rights can turn the conference into stark confrontation, and kill the spirit of co-operation.

Pearson and Lesage are more like heads of rival governments than brother Liberals dedicated to the same political ideals and objectives. Between them there are the main elements of a power struggle, a contest of wills, a fight for political domination with a great deal of booty of one kind or another hanging on the outcome.

Because of his political muscle as leader of French Canada, Lesage is the focal point of provincial opposition to and intimidation of Ottawa. More and more Mr. Pearson's "co-operative federalism" has come to mean giving Mr. Lesage what he demands.

Lesage forced out of Ottawa a whopping increase in Quebec's cut of the tax pie. He got an opting-out formula that allows him to reject any federal-provincial program and take cash instead.

He outmanoeuvred Ottawa on the pension plan, thus assuring his treasury of billions in compulsory premiums. He got a formula for amending the BNA Act that will give Quebec a veto on constitutional change. For practical purposes he established Quebec's right to negotiate treaties with foreign states—although Ottawa still insists on counter-signing them.

He frightened Ottawa out of any idea of declaring the Churchill (Hamilton) Falls power development to be a project in the national interest. And he intimidated Ottawa into turning a blind eye to his violation of the Constitution in the matter of his petition to the Queen to curb the powers of the Quebec Legislative Council.

It is a commentary on national cohesion that relations between Ottawa and Quebec City are less like those between two levels of government than between foreign states with conflicting national interests, when the greed of the strong is insatiable and the demands on the weak are unending.

★ ★ ★

So long as the Pearson government remains weak this situation will persist, for Lesage wants more than Eskimos and offshore rights. He wants Labrador power and real estate. He wants to control federal fiscal, monetary, trade and immigration policies so far as they affect Quebec. And if he gets all he demands, the real prime minister of Canada will be the one residing in Quebec City.

Our New Flag Illegal?

TORONTO — A Toronto monthly newspaper, The Independent Businessman, has published a letter which, the paper says, shows "our national flag came about in a way that was unprecedented and so illegal."

The letter, addressed to Prime Minister Pearson from John Fenston, a Toronto lawyer, contains a legal argument which concludes that the recently adopted maple leaf flag is not necessarily Canada's flag in law.

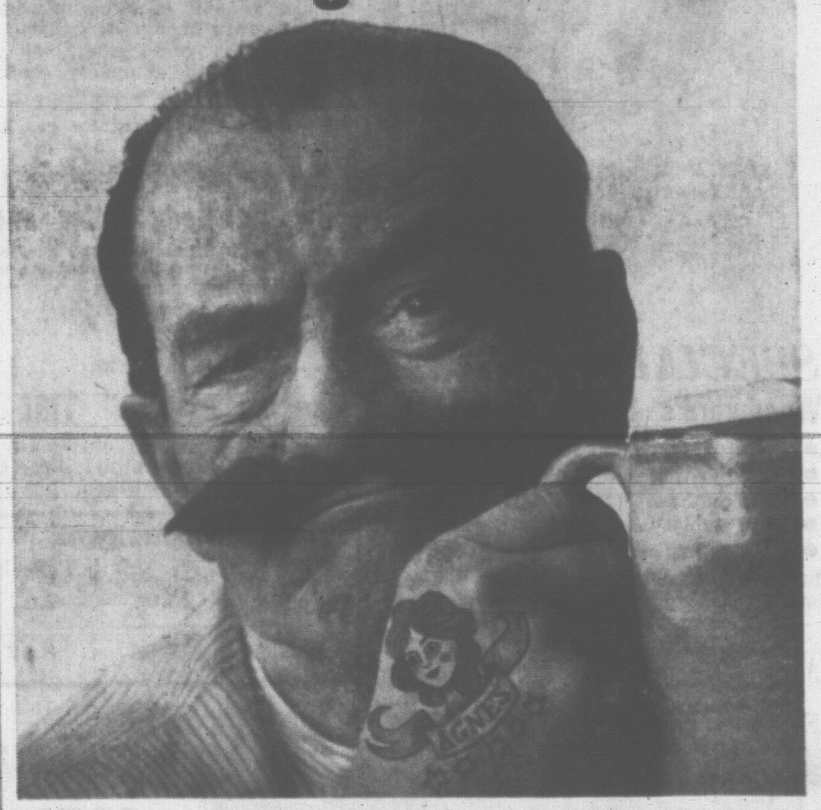

The letter reads in part: "If I am correct, it would appear that having started with some 2,000 flags, having gone through months of agony, distress and anguish in the parliamentary debates . . . we now end up with no flag at all, in law."

The letter quotes British parliamentary precedent to show that Canada's flag which was designated by royal proclamation is not legal since royal proclamations must first be authorized by parliamentary statute.

'Thin Skinned' MPs Win Vote

LONDON (AP)—A score of rebellious Labor members of Parliament have challenged one of the House of Commons' most hallowed traditions and accused some Conservatives of being too thin-skinned to stay in politics.

Up and down Britain the Labor MPs, most of them young and impatient with parliamentary processes, repeated a phrase that the House Speaker already has referred to the committee of privileges for investigation. They said they were raising a fundamental issue of free speech.

It began when James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, who has been steering a complicated new tax and revenue bill through the House against line-by-line Conservative opposition, told his constituents in Cardiff:

"When I look at some of the (Conservative) members opposite, I don't think of them as the honorable member for X, Y or Z. I look at them and say, 'investment trusts,' 'capital speculators' or 'that is the stock exchange man who makes a profit on gilt-edged government bonds.' "

When Conservative Sir Robert Cary heard this he accused Callaghan of a breach of privilege — impugning the integrity of the House and its members—and demanded an investigation. Speaker Sir Harry Hylton-Foster ruled it was a breach, and turned it over to the committee on privileges.

"There should be competition in argument and invective instead of sending issues to the committee," Foote complained. He demanded a vote on the Speaker's ruling, and got a lot of support.

"We have become far too sensitive," said Eric Lubbock, Liberal whip.

But when the vote came, the rebels failed by six votes to overturn the Speaker's decision, although almost all the Labor back-benchers voted against Herbert Bowden, Labor's leader in the House, who supported the Speaker.

ARREST ORDER went out today for John Christopher Doyle, 49-year-old Canadian mining magnate when he failed to surrender to a U.S. marshal at Hartford, Conn., on a stock trading offence. Chairman of Canadian Javelin Ltd. he was sentenced to three months' jail for using mails to sell unregistered shares. He now runs risk of three-year term. His $10,000 cash bond was ordered forfeit.

Water Bombers Set War On Remote Timber Blaze

A 3,000-acre forest fire spread Wednesday into another 2,000 acres of remote timberland 100 miles north of Fort Nelson.

Late Wednesday it was out of control and leaping hastily constructed guards.

Two other major fires covered 16,000 acres in the lush Rocky Mountain Trench. One was out of control.

A Forest Service spokesman said in previous years fires in such remote areas were ignored.

"But now that there are going to be all these new pulp mills up there, we have extra funds to fight them."

He said a 1958 fire in the trench area covered 800,000 acres—almost half the size of Vancouver Island — before it burned itself out.

More than 200 men and a number of water bombers are engaged against the three blazes.

The huge Prince George forest district, the Okanagan and Merritt areas are the only regions with a high to extreme fire hazard.

Most other parts of the province have been damp.

Buy a Volvo Canadian, keep it a long time, and get out from under car payments for a change.

What's a long time? Eleven years is a long time. That's how long Volvos are driven in Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways and there are 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

How long will a Volvo last in Canada? We don't know yet. Volvos have only been here nine years. But if you had a Volvo compact and kept it half that eleven years you could spend your money on something besides car payments. And you'd save money on gas, too. Volvos get 30 miles to the gallon even with automatic transmission. Come in any time and test drive one.

Ceremony Set For 'Miracle' Alps Tunnel

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP) — The monumental Mont Blanc auto tunnel, under the highest mountain in the Alps, will be officially opened Friday.

President Charles de Gaulle of France and President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy will take part in the ceremony.

The auto tunnel is Western Europe's newest transportation miracle — opening a way to speed freight and travellers past the giant Alpine barrier between northern Italy and France.

The two-lane, 7.2-mile tunnel road, started in 1959, bypasses 60 miles and several hours of travel over the mountain road.

Thirteen workmen—eight Italians and five Frenchmen—have been killed and scores injured in the six years it took to build the tunnel, 11,400 feet below the snow-covered peak of the 15,800-foot mountain. In addition, three Italian security men, making a helicopter check of arrangements for the opening, were killed last week when the helicopter crashed near the tunnel approach.

Traffic moving 30 to 40 miles over the 24-foot-wide roadway, will pass through the tunnel in just a little more than 10 minutes.

Champ Clears First Hurdle

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Mickey Shaw of Milwaukee, Ore., got over the first hurdle of his Pacific Northwest Golf Association men's title defence Wednesday, but Mrs. Edean Ihlanfeldt of Seattle stumbled in quest of her fourth straight crown.

Mrs. Ihlanfeldt, five times a PNGA champion, lost to 19-year-old Mary Wolfe of Portland on the 19th hole.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Few Below-Belt Hits Mark Gas Hearings

By JIM HUME
Business Editor

While the majority of British Columbians look forward to a long- lazy summer one man is preparing for a rugged task.

The gentleman, Judge C. W. Morrow, calls Vernon in the Okanagan home—when he can get there.

Hume

Almost two years ago Judge Morrow was honored by Premier Bennett and named the royal commissioner charged with the duty of finding a solution to the province's highly varied gasoline prices.

Tuesday, at 12:20 p.m. he rapped his gavel and declared the commission over. Lawyers, oil company executives and public relations men and an assorted bag of private citizens who had faithfully followed the commission proceedings all over B.C. heaved a sigh of relief.

Judge Morrow heaved a sigh, too, but not of relief for his big job was just starting.

The testimony is all in, millions of words of it. The briefs, hundreds of them, have been filed. The protesters and the defenders have had their day. Now it rests with Judge Morrow to sift the evidence, the depositions, the briefs, the claims and counter-claims and come up with a solution.

LONG HEARINGS

During the long months of the hearings a steady procession of experts has marched through the various court rooms of the land to voice their opinions. That they were contradictory was not surprising.

Economists brought in by the oil companies said Cyril Shelford's plea for a one-wholesale-price system would reduce competition and wouldn't work anyway.

'Independent economists called to testify, said the idea was sound and a possible answer to the fluctuating price system.

Once in a while tempers frayed and the in-fighting got a little rough.

By innuendo it was suggested that Mr. Shelford was pushing a family issue too far. His brother runs a service station.

"Of course," purred one lawyer, "the difference between this witness (Mr. Shelford) and his brother is that his brother does have a gas pump and was charging more than 10 cents by way of mark up."

Mr. Shelford lashed back.

He charged that the oil company was trying to discredit the Shelford name in the eyes of the press and public and for good measure accused the oil companies of deliberately withholding vital information from the commission.

Addressing the assembled lawyers a few minutes before the final adjournment he said: "At the outset, on behalf of your companies, you assured the commission of their intention to cooperate and they have spared neither time, money or effort in their endeavor to put forward their point of view and constructively critize the point of view of others."

FEW TANTRUMS

But, by and large, it was a gentlemanly fight and the tantrums and below the belt shots few and far between.

Now we wait.

The personality clashes will soon be tossed aside by the learned judge, the figures and charts of the economists will be studied and, sometime in the fall, Judge Morrow will tell us that (a) Oil companies should have a standard wholesale rate for all customers (b) That though there be evils in the present gasoline price system the cure would be worse.

Either way we should find out, once and for all, why gasoline costs up to 10 cents more in one community than it does in another.

U.S. MONEY NO WORRY TO FRENCH

PARIS (AP) — A government report said today that foreign investments in France have not reached an "excessive level."

The report, made by the ministry of industry, said the total value of foreign investments is 25,000,000,000 francs ($5,500,000,000), about half of which is by American interests.

But the report said French investments in foreign countries are much greater—40,000,000,000 francs.

The de Gaulle government has often expressed concern in the past about American investments in France, and has sought in some cases to prevent American control of companies in France.

Vancouver Grain Men Back at Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Suspended grain handlers started back to work Wednesday, but a touchy dispute still shadows grain exports to Pacific markets.

Three terminals suffering side effects of an enduring strike against Alberta Wheat Pool were expected to operate almost normally today.

The companies and members of the International Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America (CLC), remained sharply at odds over alleged rerouting of "hot" grain destined for the Alberta elevator.

Refusal of handlers to work what they labelled "hot boxcars" resulted in suspensions, walkouts and what the men termed as lockouts at Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, United Grain Growers and Pacific Elevator No. 3.

Four other elevators, one used only for storage and all able to handle only a small percentage of shipments from the port, were not affected.

The union charged railway companies had changed destination cards in boxcars destined for Alberta's elevator, strike-bound since June 2. The charge was denied by the railways.

Meanwhile, a new round of talks between the disputants and a federal mediator were expected to continue.

Signing Opens Doors For Giant Pulp Mill

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston signed an agreement Wednesday that paves the way for construction of a giant pulp mill in northern B.C. by two of eastern Canada's largest pulp interests.

The minister's signature on a document creating a new pulpwood harvesting area in the Houston district of northern B.C. was witnessed by senior officials of the two firms, Bowaters Canadian Corp. Ltd. and Bathurst Paper Ltd.

Bowaters and Bathurst have become equal partners in purchase of controlling interest in Bulkley Valley Pulp and Timber Ltd., the firm that researched and promoted construction of a mill in the Houston area.

Bathurst president R. A. Irwin who is to become president of Bulkley Valley Pulp, said the firm plans to start work on a mill costing $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 in late 1968 or 1969.

The agreement signed Wednesday stipulates that Bulkley complete the mill by the end of 1971.

TWO CHOICES

Mr. Irwin said no final decision has been made on the product of the mill but choice has been narrowed to one of kraft liner board or sulphite pulp.

Nor had the mill site been determined finally; while Houston was at the centre of the new harvesting area, water supply and pollution problems might force the mill to be located elsewhere, possibly on Babine Lake north of Houston.

J. H. Mowbray Jones, president of Bowaters Canadian, said he was "delighted" at the Bathurst-Bowaters partnership in the venture, first in B.C. by either firm.

PULP GIANTS

Mr. Williston said he was delighted to see the two pulp giants entering B.C.

The minister observed that the government and the two firms have had a "long courtship."

"Thank goodness it has now come to fruition."

Mr. Irwin said final decision on when to start construction will depend largely on world markets, manpower and availability of power — first power from B.C.'s Peace River development is expected in 1968.

Influx of Teen-Agers Swells Worker Corps

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada dropped to 257,000 at mid-June from 265,000 in mid-May, but the drop was not as great as usually is recorded in this period.

A labor department and bureau of statistics report said a heavy influx of teen-agers seeking work for the first time slowed the rate of decline in unemployment which usually occurs with growing summer activity.

The number of employed workers rose in the June survey to 7,049,000, an increase of 191,000 from May. In the same period the labor force increased by 183,000, an above-average increase for the month.

The labor force report said there was a heavy influx of teen-agers into the labor market during June this year, as there was in the previous three years. It estimated 118,000 teen-agers entered the labor force and 39,000 of them were unable to find jobs immediately.

With the labor force at 7,306,000 and the unemployed numbering 257,000, the unemployment rate in June was 3.5 per cent of the labor force. The rate in June, 1964, was 4.0 per cent and in June, 1963, 4.5 per cent.

	June 1965	May 1965	June 1964
Labor force	7,306	7,123	7,055
Employed	7,049	6,858	6,773
Unemployed	257	265	282

BASED ON SURVEY

The labor department — DBS estimates are based on a sample survey of 35,000 homes taken during the third week of June.

The report said that farm employment remained virtually unchanged from May. Seasonal gains in employment were fairly general in non-farm industries and the construction industry was especially active during the month.

Employment of people 20 years old and older increased by 112,000, which the report said was a normal increase for this age group.

Total employment in June was substantially higher than a year earlier. The June estimate of 7,049,000 was 4.1 per cent over June, 1964. The largest advance was made in the service, trade and construction industries, and all regions contributed to the increase.

Among those 20 and over, unemployment declined by 47,000 which the report said was about normal for June. The high proportion of men and women in the labor force, 19 and under, who were unable to find jobs slowed the rate of decline of the total.

"In recent years, teen-agers have been accounting for an increasing portion of the unemployment total," the report said.

Of the 257,000 unemployed in June this year, 127,000 had been out of work for less than a month. The figure was 128,000 in the same week of 1964, and the report said it included 16,000 who were on temporary layoff.

British Columbia's unemployment rate rose in June this year to 4.2 from 3.9 in May but was lower than the 5.1 per cent rate which prevailed in June last year.

All Matter Of Fringe Benefits

But the difference is $1 an hour when fringe benefits and overhead costs are added to wages, said John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows.

The $1 an hour difference has frequently been written as a wage difference, but correctly should be called a wage-cost difference, he said.

The gap between east and west coasts costs is a chief reason why shipbuilders here cannot compete with the east in national bidding on government contracts.

The difference in wages alone between the two coasts varies, but is between 57 and 62 cents an hour compared with the Montreal shipyards of Canadian Vickers.

This was the yard that won the $3 million reconversion contract for the Esquimalt-based HMCS Fraser.

The union contract between Canadian Vickers and an affiliate of the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions provides for $2.38 an hour for tradesmen.

The coast rate varies between $2.95 and $3 an hour.

Rocks' Playoff Hopes Have Quicksand Quality

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

"Hot rodding is a manifestation of the originality that is inherent in most young Canadians. It is indicative of the ever-present desire to improvise and improve. It is a mirror of the inventiveness and ingenuity possessed by so many Canadian boys. It is a reflection of the love of competition and, in that light, assumes many of the elements that buttress our cherished ideals of free enterprise . . ."

This is the tone of a letter sent out recently to government leaders, civic authorities and handpicked organizations.

It represents the views of the Victoria Quarter Milers Club, an organization of healthy, zestful young men with heavy throttle feet and, obviously, an articulate author.

JIM-REDECOPP

Some psychologists think otherwise. They consider the dragster, the teen-ager in his chromed and channelled-down hot-rod who leans out at stop lights and sneers: "Wanna race, mister?" as a victim of locomotor philia. They concede the dragsters' vast interest in nuts and bolts, but wish they would keep a few upstairs.

"Trouble is," Jim Redecopp was saying, "that some kid causes a fuss with his stupid driving and we get thrown in the same jam-pot.

"People forget the other side. We deliver Christmas hampers. And last year the Quarter Milers won the Car Cup for the auto club with the best blood-donor record."

Redecop is revving along toward his 22nd year on this planet, a tall, muscular citizen, relaxed and affable. Nights he spends pushing a pencil as a payroll trainee for a mill. His days are dedicated to seeking recognition and respectability for the Quarter Milers. It isn't easy.

The object of the Quarter Milers' adoration, the dragster, is the very instrument which a large segment of society finds difficult to embrace.

There is nothing beautiful about a dragster, except to the dyed-in-the-spark-plugs set.

It is an uncommonly long, skinny beast with small bicycle wheels on the front of an open frame. The power plant, hand-tooled, throbs like a Cape Kennedy rocket in front of the driver, who is barely visible between giant rear tires—slicks to the hicks—which cost $120 each.

Too Much Nitro Means Bye-Bye Nellie

More sedate motorists drive with hi-test gas. But the Don Garlits' and the Jerry Ruths' prefer more spirited beverages.

Into their tanks go a blend of nitro-glycerine, alcohol and benzoline. Nitro puts pep into the buggy; benzoline acts as a tranquilizer.

When an afficionado says a driver has "tipped the can" he means the blend is 98 nitro to two benzy.

Too much nitro can mean "goodbye, Nellie" but when you drive for dough the trick is to walk the line of danger and hope you measured correctly.

The idea of the game is to navigate the 1,200 horses a quarter of a mile in the shortest possible time.

The North American record is 211 miles-an-hour or 7.42 seconds, without oxygen masks, held by an Art Malone. All us Malones are noted for haste, especially at the feed bin, but at anything over 50 this one begins reciting psalms lest he end up clutching a palm in a long, black box.

Nobody has touched 211 at San Cobble Dragways, the exotic mating grounds for the Quarter Milers thrashing machines at Cobble Hill.

"The best at our strip," Reddecopp says, "is 177. And that was too fast. There was only about four inches of paved road between driver and dirt."

An Angel Lurks Among Tree Stumps

"That's our problem," Redecopp admitted. "We race on a road only 22 feet wide. No stands, no concessions, no — er — indoor plumbing. We wouldn't have a place to let the steam fly if it wasn't for Ocean Cement Company. They've been very kind.

"We draw 2,000, maybe 2,500. Where do they sit? On the grass or tree stumps."

Now, the Quarter Milers have unearthed an angel, ready to take the latch off his wallet and get up $100,000 to build a strip 88 feet wide and 5,000 feet long, plus fringe benefits.

The embryo promoter's enthusiasm was probably whetted by the sight of 10,000 or so spectators who regularly cough up $2.50 at tiny Arlington in Washington State.

Before he parts with a pfennig, the promoter wants assurance, through the Quarter Milers, of public interest. Few people are prepared to spend $100,000 on landscaping for the sheer joy of it.

No Thanks, I'll Snuggle Up to Hydro

To this end the Quarter Milers planned to import Jerry Ruth, a pro, to burn a hole in the wind at their summer championships Sunday at San Cobble.

"Ruth won't be coming," Redecopp was saying. "But Harold Gunderson will. He's hit 160 so there should be some smoke flying."

What happened to Ruth?

"Wrong fuel mixture," Redecopp said. "Down at Kent, Washington, the other day.

"Ruth blew his big Chrysler engine right out of its mind. He spun completely around five times at 200, hit dirt, rolled end-over-end six times. And skidded upside down for 200 yards."

That, presumably, wipes out Mr. Ruth for a while.

"Oh, no," Redecopp said. "He suffered some facial bruises and pulled muscles. But he was on the phone right away. Told me he'd be back racing in two weeks. We'll have him up here later."

Art Malone would probably react the same way.

But not this Malone.

Irish Fall Further Behind; Have Only Nine Games Left

Coquitlam 11, Shamrocks 5
By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria Shamrocks may well remember July 14 as the night they blew their Inter-City Lacrosse League playoff chances out the window.

Only the best three teams participate in the post-season series. If Wednesday's effort at Memorial Arena is an indicator, the betting is that the Shamrock team won't be one of them.

The Rocks, bringing back the sad memory of victory-starved years in the '50s, tumbled further into the league basement, four points deep, by kissing an 11-5 decision away to Gordie Gimple's hustling Coquitlam Adanacs.

Gimple's gang takes over the driver's seat in the run for the third and last playoff spot because only nine games remain on Victoria's schedule. That includes three with rapidly-improving Coquitlam.

Wednesday wasn't intended to be Victoria's giveaway night. It only seemed that way because Adanacs simply outthought, out-hustled, out-shot and out-roughed the Rocks.

MARVELLOUS MERV MURDER

And on the occasions the Shamrocks managed to do something right, Merv Schweitzer stepped forward as the last straw. The Coquitlam goalkeeper, in fine form, was asked to stop 26 shots.

He did the job 21 times, and there were many in that total that have to be considered "big saves."

Both Gimple and Victoria coach Jim McNeill felt it was Schweitzer who broke the Shamrocks' hearts. The coaches' beliefs are true, but something nice also should be said about Coquitlam's penalty-killers.

Shamrocks failed, in four cracks, to score a goal while enjoying the odd-man advantage. The back-breaker, from Victoria's standpoint, was a seven-minute stretch that saw Shamrocks sink into depths of futility.

EFFECTIVE AS 'MA'

Adanac forward Mike Gates was tagged with a minor at 14:50 of the third quarter and teammate Jack Barclay followed him into the box with a major for high-sticking Ranjit Dillon at the 46-second mark of the fourth quarter.

In that seven-minute stretch, the Rocks looked as dangerous as Ma Perkins wielding a feather duster. They managed only four shots at Schweitzer and spent most of the time chasing fleet-footed and thinking Adanacs in disorganized fashion.

Barclay was the visitors' big gun. He scored three goals and set up two more for a five-point night. Gimple, Ken Oddy and Gates each contributed a pair of goals.

★ ★ ★

REBOUNDS: It was a rough night for Victoria's Dillon Brothers . . . Nirmal was knocked unconscious when boarded by Dick Crompton at the five-second mark . . . He was carried off on a stretcher but returned in the second half . . . Then Ranjit was clipped by Barclay's stick and required stitches to close a cut under his right eye . . . Crompton also drew a major for high-sticking Bob Harris . . . Harris went swinging after the Coquitlam forward and drew a five-minute penalty for fighting . . . Crompton, wisely, refused to retaliate and escaped a second major . . .

Harris played in his seventh game Wednesday and McNeill announced that the former senior "B" performer will remain with the Rocks for the rest of the campaign . . . Larry Biggs and Ted Leibich were the pick of the Rocks . . . Bill Munroe missed Wednesday's game but is expected back in the lineup for Saturday's visit to Coquitlam . . .

Brentwood Boys Softball Champs

Brentwood boys' softball team, who compiled an outstanding 18-2 record this season, captured the B.C. midget boys' softball championship with 6-0 and 6-3 triumphs over North Vancouver.

The team advanced to the best-of-three provincial final after winning two games from Nanaimo in the Island playoffs.

WHERE DID HE COME FROM?

Probably most surprised guy in Memorial Arena on this play Wednesday night was John Surinak (3) of Coquitlam Adanacs, checked from behind by Victoria's Terry Davis. This was one of few good moves made by Shamrocks. They dropped 11-5 decision to Adanacs to slide deeper into Inter-City Lacrosse League cellar. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

'MECHANICAL MARVEL' GIVES HOCKEY A FLING

The electronic computer has been plugged into hockey.

The Western Hockey League's 1965-66 schedule was to have been released earlier this month. But the delay, explained Victoria Maple Leaf manager Buck Houle, can be blamed on the computer.

A California firm informed WHL directors it could "guarantee a better schedule and save several thousands of dollars in travelling costs" with the aid of its computer.

Miss Thomas advanced to the women's singles finals, disposing of Margaret Lyons, 7-5, 6-4. Her opponent will be Sally Wood, 6-3, 6-2 winner over Nancy Hill.

LAC Jim Hennok, 27, stationed at Cold Lake, Alta., put eight shots in the bull at 300 yards to defeat three other sharpshooters who had also scored "possibles" of 75 in the first stage Tuesday.

SECOND STAGE

The 14 Canadians were among 300 marksmen scheduled to compete today at 600 yards in the second stage of the three-stage competition, rated second in prestige to the Queen's Prize.

S. Sgt. Frank Jermey of Kingston, Ont., and Cpl. Derek Daines of Calgary, members of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team, and Capt. Braves Hustle To Triple Play

Associated Press

Triple plays are rare but Chicago Cubs pulled one off in defeating Milwaukee Braves 5-2 in the opener of their twin bill Wednesday. They lost the nightcap 6-3.

It was only the third of the major league baseball season, but may rank among the tops for zany base running and fielding.

In the only other game played, in the American League, Eddie Fisher fluttered Chicago Sox to a 12-10 victory over Cleveland Indians in 12 innings.

The Cubs 5-2 win was their fourth straight victory, their longest string of successes this season.

The Braves put across two runs in the second inning of the nightcap on a walk off Cub pitcher Bill Faul to Gene Oliver, and singles by Ed Mathews, Rico Carty and Mack Jones.

Carty was on third and Jones on first when Woody Woodward, Braves' shortstop, lifted a foul back of home plate which Cub catcher Ed Bailey grabbed at the screen. Both runners tagged up, then started off Carty for home, and Jones for second.

CATCH CARTY EASILY

Bailey's throw was cut off by Cub shortstop Don Kessinger, who fired the ball to Faul, protecting home plate, to catch Carty with plenty of time.

Jones, seeing the throw to home, again reversed himself and started toward second. Faul threw a perfect strike to second baseman Glenn Beckert, catching Jones.

Fisher, sailing along toward the winningest season ever for a relief pitcher, reached the midpoint of what could be the first 20-victory season for a non-starter Wednesday night.

He gave up a game-tying ninth-inning homer to pinch hitter Fred Whitfield, the first man he faced. Then went three strong innings for his 10th victory.

The White Sox, outhomered 5-2 in the marathon slugfest at Cleveland, scored three unearned runs in the 12th after an error by shortstop Dick Howser and handed the Indians their sixth straight setback.

The Colts gave Wellington a fine fielding display and some spectacular bowling by Arthur Shaffer of Victoria who took 5 wickets for 35 runs.

The Colts played today against Hurstpierpoint School, Sussex.

THIS SMITH . . . . . DIDN'T TARRY

Boy, Did He DRIVE!

LONDON (AP) — Russell Tarry-Smith, fined £5 ($14) for playing the fastest round in the history of the Boxmoor Golf Club, said today he plans to appeal.

In court Wednesday prosecutors said he drove off from the first tee, neatly avoided the bunker and went straight on to the green.

He drove into the sandtraps on the third, fifth, seventh and ninth, but on the 10th he hit the pin.

The trouble was — he did it by car.

And the club charged he caused damage totalling £50 ($140) and the course had to be closed for two weeks for repair.

Tarry-Smith, son of a former club captain, denied making the drive. But Scotland Yard scientists said paint from the pin matched exactly with traces of paint found on his car.

Up-Island Pucksters Hop Into New League

COMOX — North Vancouver Island centres have banded together to form a new intermediate hockey league.

Formation of the Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League means that Vancouver Island circuit, formed last year, will be no longer in operation.

The new league consists of Port Alberni, Nanaimo, Powell River Regals, Comox Totems and Courtenay Mustangs.

Alberni and Nanaimo performed in the Island loop last year with two Victoria-area clubs—Saanich Safeways and Dorman Cavaliers.

The new league, which has announced its intention of campaigning for the Coy Cup, is expected to play a 25-30 game schedule.

For Margaret, Fishing Is Wonderful on Derby Day

Salmon fishing means different things to different people.

For some, it means a continual and often frustrating quest for big fish—derby winners and trophy-sized lunkers—the kind that put extra strain on shirt buttons and give a guy reason for subtle boasting.

Some care little about the size of salmon, believing the little ones are best on the table and that even small fish provide big fun. Others like fishing for the sheer pleasure of being on the water. And there are even those who consider it a sleep-wrecking, skin-withering, time-consuming bunch of nonsense.

To Margaret McClung there are some days when fishing is wonderful. One of those days arrives this year on August 15, when the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Associaion and The Daily Times stage their annual Handicapped Children's Salmon Derby.

Mrs. McClung is secretary-manager of the Handicapped Children's Clinic, formerly the Cerebral Palsy Clinic. She and her staff attempt to make life better for unfortunate youngsters through treatment, teaching and therapy in a small building on the Royal Jubilee Hospital grounds.

In recent years, proceeds from the VSIAA-Times derby have been divided between the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, the Queen Alexandra Solarium and the Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island.

Since the event was launched in 1946 it has raised almost $90,000 for handicapped children.

Every bit received by the Palsy Association has lightened a burden but there has never been enough money for Mrs. McClung and her friends to escape the financial pinch. One-quarter of clinic expenses are taken care of by a government grant. The rest must come from donations.

Their problems are larger than usual this year. They must find another building because of expansion plans at the hospital.

"We don't know where we are going, but we should have more than twice as much space," says Mrs. McClung. "We are looking after 84 youngsters and just bursting at the seams.

"Funds we have received from fishing derbies have been a wonderful help," she said. "If it wasn't for things like that we just couldn't keep going.

"The anglers have been wonderful friends to us. There seems to be a real affinity between fishermen and handicapped children."

This affinity is what drives people like Fred Post and other members of this year's derby committee to labor long hours for several months in an effort to help the youngsters by staging a successful derby.

For most, helping requires much less time and far less effort. It consists merely of buying a $1 derby ticket, which can be obtained from VSIAA members, sporting goods stores and Saanich Inlet boathouses.

With the ticket goes an opportunity to fish in the derby in a chase for a flock of prizes, topped by a portable television set. And any ticket purchaser is eligible to win the derby's "consolation" prize—a new automobile.

Buying a derby ticket puts you in the kind of a spot gambling men love. Even if you lose in one way, you still win—by helping unfortunate youngsters.

Campbell in Front After Six Cigars and 29 Putts . . .

By JIM CRERAR

TORONTO (CP) — They got down to sorting out the men from the boys today in the Canadian Open golf championship as 144 hopefuls battled to stay alive.

The low 70 scorers and ties survive for Friday's third round of the 72-hole, $100,000 event at the 6,828-yard Mississaugua Golf and Country Club.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 to 10,000 jammed the course for Wednesday's first round despite threatening skies and a brief shower in the afternoon. They saw a cigar-smoking 29-year-old blond from Perdido Bay, Fla., take the lead with a four-under-par 66.

Joe Campbell, who hasn't won a tournament on the tour since 1962, went through six cigars and just 29 putts on his way to a 34 on the front nine and a 32 on the back.

CAMPBELL TARGET

That left him the target for the rest of the field which began teeing off today at 7:30 a.m. EDT.

Most of the field got at least one practice round in before play began, but Campbell hadn't even seen the course before Wednesday. He arrived in Toronto nine hours before he teed off and borrowed notes on the course from fellow golfer Sonny Methvin of Baton Rouge, La., who shot a 74. Campbell tuned up with a one-over-par effort for the first seven holes, then blazed his way to five birdies on the last 11 holes.

Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., was second with a 67 and would have tied Campbell if he hadn't overshot the green with his approach shot on the par-four 18th. Rudolph took a five.

PUTTING STRONG

Putting was also Rudolph's strong point. He had seven one-putt greens and three-putted just once. He was over par only once, on the 18th, and fired four birdies.

Seven players, including Montreal's Al Johnston, were grouped at 68.

Then came the big-name players like Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, and defending Canadian Open champion Kel Nagle of Australia, both with one-under-par 69s.

WENT UNDER

Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa., drew his usual huge gallery, estimated to have reached 2,500 at times, and came in with an even-par 70. He got off to a bad start by going over par on four of the first nine holes and had a 38 at the turn, but he settled down for a hot 32 on the second nine made up of three birdies and six pars.

PLAYER OFF FORM

South African star Gary Player, just recovering from a neck injury he picked up while doing exercises in a bath tub during the British Open last week, had a bad first round. He shot a four-over-par 74, going over par on five holes and shooting a birdie just once.

Johnston's 68 highlighted a good showing by the contingent of 20 Canadians. Tour regular George Knudson of Toronto, Quebec Open winner Adrien Bigras of Montreal and Bob Rose of Toronto all had 70s and Lawrence O'Hearne of Dartmouth, N.S., shot a 72.

Only 15 of the 144 golfers bettered par and 16 more matched it.

"I like the course," Campbell said. "It's a tight course, not a test of strength." Campbell also had praise for his caddy, who paced off the course for him Tuesday night.

Aussie Clarke Singes 10,000-Metre Record

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Australia's Ron Clarke shattered the 28-minute barrier for the 10,000 metre run and eclipsed two world records Wednesday with a fantastic time of 27:39.4 over the Bislet Stadium track.

The tall, lean Aussie was clocked en route at 26:47.0 for six miles, surpassing the pending world record for that distance.

Clarke's time for the 10,000 metres—about 6¼ miles—was 34.6 seconds faster than his pending world mark of 28:14.0, set at Turku, Finland, last June 16.

The 28-year-old Aussie's time for the six miles smashed the pending mark of 27:11.6 racked up by two Americans, Bille Mills and Gerry Lindgren in their virtual dead heat in the U.S. AAU championship at San Diego, Calif., last month.

Clarke's sensational times overshadowed everything else in the first day of the two-day international meet.

Bill Crothers of Canada scored his second straight victory over Olympic champion Peter Snell of New Zealand in the 800-metre run. Crothers, who was second to Snell in the Tokyo 800 last year, was timed in 1:47.1 to Snell's 1:47.8. Britain's John Boulter, the pace-setter for the first 400 in 53.0, was third in 1:48.7.

Clarke is the listed world record holder for six miles—25:15.8 and 10,000 metres — 28:15.6, which he set in one race at his home town of Melbourne on Dec. 18, 1963.

Clarke's two competitors, Jim Hogan of Ireland and Claus Boersen of Denmark, were no match for the powerful Aussie.

Hogan was lapped once and Boersen twice in the course of the race. Still Hogan was clocked in the good time of 29:19.6 and Boersen in 31:03.2.

Mrs. Bennett Wins Novice Tray Event

Mrs. J. Bennett of Burnside Club has won the Greater Victoria Ladies' Lawn Bowling Association's Novice Tray competition.

Runnerup in the event, for first and second-year bowlers, was Mrs. T. J. Johnston of Oak Bay.

GREAVES ON TOP

Workers Walloped By Moving Squad

With first place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League at stake, the Movers shifted their van into high gear and slammed the Workers with a stunning 17-0 trouncing.

Transports, who have usually been able to come up with crushing attacks in key games, were on the receiving end this time in the wild and strange struggle.

With the pounding, their game burst at the seams and several other places. Transport pitchers gave up 21 walks, the infield came up with six errors and batters produced a measly two hits against the pitching of Les Brice.

For Greaves, it was a ball. John Lumley batted in four runs to regain the league lead in that department and Brice chased home two mates, as did Jerry Ciochetti.

Optimists Beat Vics In Babe Ruth Clash

Powered by the hitting of Gerry Ferrie, Evening Optimist League representatives Wednesday night chalked up their second victory in the Vancouver Island Babe Ruth League baseball tournament at Reynolds Road Park.

Ferrie drove in four runs on a single and a three-run homer as Optimists downed the Victoria League squad 8-3. Optimists now have two victories and a defeat in the double-loss elimination tourney.

Pitcher Harold Cliff yielded only four hits and struck out 10 batteries on his way to the triumph. Victoria hurler Dave Vyners also fanned 10; he gave up six hits and his mates chipped in with three errors.

PETE ROZELLE, . . . two-stage expansion

NFL Eyes on Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The Times quoted Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner, Wednesday as saying that Seattle "could be the balancing franchise" in the circuit by 1967.

In a telephone interview Rozelle qualified his remarks by saying a suitable place would have to be found and added he was certain "we can find the proper persons with whom to deal in Seattle."

"We have indicated before that Seattle is one of the cities which we will explore in our two-stage expansion in the next couple of years," Rozelle was quoted.

Seattle made a strong bid last fall for the Cleveland franchise in the American baseball league but the move was balked by lack of a suitable stadium in the city.

SUFFERS BUMP ON HEAD

Youth Rescued From Peak

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Richard Therrien, 13, of Vancouver, was rescued from a windswept Glacier Park Wednesday night by a helicopter crew.

Police at this Kootenay city 12 miles from Kokanee Mountain said the boy was taken to hospital here for observation.

They said he had lain unconscious at the 9,200-foot level of the peak for about an hour but was able to walk to a clearing where he was picked up by the helicopter.

The boy was one of 22 youngsters and four leaders from Camp Lourdes who were camping and hiking in Kokanee Glacier Park.

CAR BLASTED APART BY CHICAGO BOMBER

CHICAGO (AP) — An explosion demolished a car and shattered 75 windows of the huge R. R. Donnelly and Sons Co., a printing plant, late Wednesday night.

The explosion, which police said was caused by a bomb, ripped the windshield, floor and seats from a car parked in front of one building of the plant.

There were no injuries.

It was the fifth bombing in the Chicago area in eight days, but police said that, as in the other bombings, there appeared to be no motive.

He 'Cleaned Out' the Jail

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—A man with a heart of gold and several bags of $1 bills cleaned out the Columbia city jail by paying $1,450 to bail out 45 fellow prisoners.

"I just don't like to see people in jail," explained jovial James M. Braziel Wednesday. "It's a terrible way they treat you. I don't like it and I wanted to get those other guys out."

Braziel, 45, who said he is a former air force major, appeared repeatedly at the jail with bags of money to pay off bonds and fines. He virtually cleaned out the cells over a two-day period.

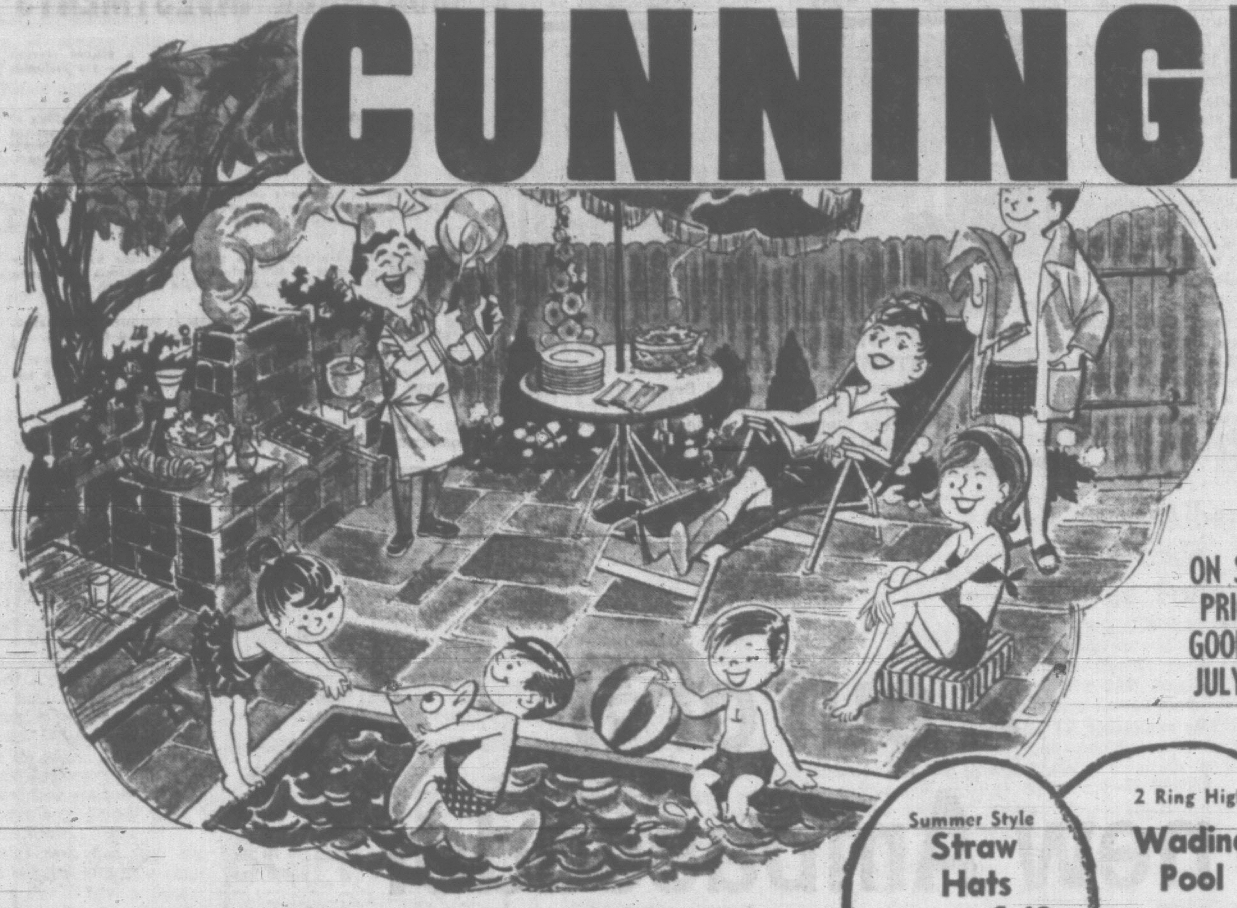

Braziel, a Columbia resident, had himself been bailed out of the lockup Tuesday by a lawyer after being booked on charges of disorderly conduct and possessing an unlawful weapon.

UNDER NEW LAW

Quebecers Able To Sue Gov't

QUEBEC (CP) Quebec's new Civil Code was given unanimous third reading Wednesday by the legislative assembly.

The bill, made up of 950 articles, provides for a greater leeway to appeal decisions.

It was tabled in the legislature last year following study by a comission headed by Mr. Justice Garon Pratte of the —Quebec Court of Appeals.

Justice Minister Wagner told the assembly the new code ensures that monetary considerations will have no bearing on civil justice.

"All citizens, be they rich or poor, powerful or weak, should be equal before the courts and should be assured of quick efficient justice," he said.

Mr. Wagner said the three main qualities of the new code are the elimination of outmoded procedures, the co-ordination of civil procedures and the recognition of substantive law, "the right of the client coming ahead of procedure."

ELIMINATES HINDRANCE

He said the new appeal procedure eliminates the former financial requirement before the case could go to a higher court, a consideration he described as a "hindrance to justice."

Under the present civil code, based on the French Napoleonic Code, petitioners have to deposit as bail the entire amount of their fine before launching an appeal.

The old code also required a petition of right, requiring a legislative assembly private bill, before persons could sue the government.

Mr. Wagner said this is not needed under the new code and that "from now on, people can sue the government just like anybody else equal not even the Crown should be placed above the law and sheltered from legal prosecutions."

The code retains trial by jury despite opposition by a number of persons and, groups.

Epidemic Feared

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese health officials warned Wednesday of a possible epidemic of encephalitis after 10 deaths were reported from the disease, an inflammation of the brain.

Narcotics Flourish

MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Sovyetskaya Rossiya Soviet Russia has warned that the narcotics trade in Siberia and parts of central Asia is growing alarmingly.

DR. BEN CASEY, Vince Edwards, 35, has married actress Kathy Kersh, 22, after the couple dated for one year, friends announced Wednesday.

Shoreworkers Approve

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shoreworkers in British Columbia's $80,000,000-a-year fishing industry have approved a new two-year contract with the B.C. Fisheries Association. The new contract for the shore workers, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.), guarantees a pay raise of 19 cents an hour spread over the two-year period.

GOOD CITIZEN SINCE ESCAPE IN 1939

Wanted Killer May Escape Life Sentence

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Charlie Kemp may not have to leave his Florida home of the last 26 years to finish out his life in a Georgia prison.

The governors of the two states are trying to work out the legal problem posed by the discovery of Kemp's identity as a convicted slayer.

Kemp, 62, was serving a life term for murder when he escaped from a Bibb County, Ga., work gang in 1939, a month after he was sentenced. The details of the slaying have not been brought out and Kemp has not spoken of it even to his wife.

Mrs. Kemp had five children when they married in 1944 and the Kemps now are raising two grandchildren, although Kemp is plagued by arthritis, rheumatism and rib injuries suffered in an automobile accident that led to his discovery.

Now governors Carl Sanders of Georgia and Haydon Burns of Florida must decide what to do about Kemp. In 26 years in Florida, Kemp, a Negro, has developed the reputation of an exemplary citizen and a pillar of his church at Fort Myers.

Burns said Sanders apparently was unaware of Kemp's good conduct in Florida when the Georgia governor signed a request asking Burns to extradite the Negro. But Sanders is aware of it now.

A Sanders associate says the governor is concerned about whether Georgia should deprive Kemp of his freedom in an effort to satisfy the law to the letter.

Kemp now is out on $3,000 bail, awaiting a decision in his case.

The case came to light last month when Kemp was arrested on a charge of failing to yield the right of way after an auto accident. He was fingerprinted.

The prints disclosed that he was a wanted escapee, convicted of murder under the name of Hubert Bentley.

The Florida governor, scheduled to make a decision later this week, has received scores of letters and petitions from Fort Myers citizens urging him to reject the extradition request.

Burns and Sanders decline comment on their plans, but a source said Sanders may explore the legal possibility of having records in the case transferred from the Georgia prison department to Florida, to let officials there supervise Kemp's parole if he remains at liberty.

new Ambassador
buyers switched
manufacturers this year.

(Ambassador sales up 211%)

For thousands of people who had always been loyal to the other makes, 1965 was the year of the big switch. They turned their backs on cars they'd always bought and moved to Ambassador.
You can bet they must have had some pretty good reasons. We bet disillusionment was one of them. (When you've put up with rust, rattles and repair bills year after year, you start wondering if you really have to!)
But we think the new Ambassador itself was the most important reason. This year's Ambassador is the biggest, most luxurious ever built—more solid Rambler quality designed for the larger car buyer. And the Ambassador offers more options this year—everything from bucket seats to power disc brakes. Improved performance, too—including the new 232 cu. in. Torque Command Six, the most powerful, smoothest-riding six on the road, and a mighty 327 cu. in. V8. Of course, Ambassador's truly outstanding interior must have sold quite a few people (or was it the big car luxury at a medium price that did the selling?).
No matter what their reasons were, you can probably think of some of your own to go Ambassador. Who knows—maybe the famous Rambler features (Deep Dip Rustproofing, Double Safety Brakes, Ceramic-Armoured Muffler, rattle-free Single Unit Construction) are beginning to make a lot of sense to you. They've already made a lot of sense to thousands of people who were in the same boat.

Sidney Sewage Proposal Gets No Objections

Time is running out for objections to Sidney's sewage plan and so far all is peaceful.

No objections have been received so far to a village application to discharge 250,000 gallons of sewage daily into Sidney Channel.

Time for filing objections, with C. J. Keenan, executive engineer and secretary of the Provincial Pollution Control Board, will run out Aug. 2. No hearing will be held if objections are not received.

Sidney Village Council plans to replace the outfall at the east end of Ocean Avenue with an extension to discharge the effluent of a combined storm drain-domestic sewer line into water 38 feet below low tide.

'EVERYBODY THINKS WE'RE NUTS'

SEATTLE (AP) — David Stafford, a machinist from Elwood, Ind., is converting an old lifeboat here for a trip to northern Vancouver Island, where he plans to live on a 640-acre homestead with his wife and four children.

"Too many people here," said Stafford.

"We'll hunt, fish and dig clams to begin with an eventually I'd like to have a fishing resort and work as a hunting guide."

The Staffords expect to be joined by friends from Indianapolis, who also have applied for a homestead in the same area.

Vancouver Island Cougar
(B.C. Government photo)

COUGARS 'ON PROWL' TWO DRIVERS REPORT

NANAIMO — Police said Wednesday two cougars had been seen by drivers on Vancouver Island.

They said government cougar hunter James Dewar of Nanaimo was asked to track a cougar seen on the Trans-Canada Highway at the Chemainus River bridge by Jack Brankston of Nanaimo.

Cowichan Timbermen Starting Practices

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Timbermen, newly-formed Cowichan Minor Canadian Football Association club entry in the Island league, is beginning regular practices at Cowichan Senior Secondary School five nights a week.

The club has $5,000 in the bank and new strip for 30 players.

Football association president Mel Massey is asking for public support, not necessarily financial, for the new club in the 10-team league. Head coach is Harry Vossberg.

In a recent address to Duncan Kiwanis Club, Mr. Massey said that, while The Timbermen could get $500 from the B.C. Lions, they were not asking for it at present.

Island Project Approved

First approval for federal sharing of national centennial projects in B.C. has been given to eight community plans, it was announced Wednesday at Ottawa.

The federal contribution for the first group totals $12,670 of an overall cost totalling $149,919 for projects ranging from parks to a swimming pool. About 390 projects in B.C. will be submitted for approval and the $1 per capita Ottawa grant.

The provincial government will donate $3,340 to the centre and the balance of $47,091 will be financed at the local level.

The other grants will help pay for: a $2,000 recreational centre at Cherryville; a $669 community centre at Willow Valley; a $420 community centre at West Creston; an $85,000 swimming pool at Fort St. John; a $1,500 playground at Lister; a $2,330 park at Farmington, and a $2,000 community hall addition at Silver Creek.

BLUE CROSS PLAN TURNS DEEP RED

TORONTO (CP) — An experiment by Blue Cross into a prepaid prescription drug plan has ended in financial loss. The plan took in $14,000 in subscription fees while paying out $125,000 in drug costs, for a net loss of $111,000.

The figures were disclosed Wednesday by the Ontario Hospital Association, operators of the Blue Cross hospital insurance plan, before the legislature's select committee on the aging. Nevertheless, Blue Cross officials considered the experiment worthwhile.

Saltair Loses Fire Service By N. Cowichan

DUNCAN—North Cowichan fire department will no longer provide fire protection to about 400 homes in the Saltair district.

North Cowichan councillor John Cannon, chairman of the municipal fire committee said the decision to withdraw fire protection from Saltair came almost immediately after last Saturday's overwhelming vote. Saltair residents voted not to join in an amalgamation scheme between Saltair and the larger neighboring municipality.

The Chemainus division of North Cowichan volunteer fire department has provided protection for Saltair for some time. But firemen voted unanimously to withdraw the protection at a meeting held earlier this week.

Coun. Cannon said Wednesday that North Cowichan firemen are not covered by insurance when fighting fires outside the municipality and have actually covered Saltair for "humanitarian" reasons.

Meanwhile, Saltair will probably rely on Ladysmith for assistance in case of fire.

Whale Of a Time Planned

But there'll be no whistles.

A recorded greeting by acting Mayor Clarence Massart to be converted to squeaky noises similar to those made by whales.

Tentative date for Namu's arrival is Friday or Saturday.

He will be housed at the marine aquarium.

SLOW SWIMMER

While the welcoming committee read up the book of etiquette today, the object of their attention was wallowing at a steady three knots through Johnstone Strait north of Campbell River.

In Vancouver, Homer Stevens of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union set up a clamor of the "export" of killer whales to the U.S.

Stevens demanded the Canadian government impound the cow whale and two calves before the Americans get them.

So far Namu's journey along Vancouver Island's east coast has been calm and uneventful.

Rougher times could be ahead though, possibly tonight, when the Tacoma tug Ivor Foss, and her floating cargo reach Seymour Narrow's strong tides and eddies.

Comox-Alberni Motorcade To Be Formed

PORT ALBERNI—Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a motorcade through the woods to publicize their request for an Alberni-Comox road.

A spokesman said Wednesday a committee will be formed to plan a cavalcade for late August or early September.

He said the first motorcade had been made up of trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles, but an automobile had made the trip a week later.

Mayor Hammer said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell had informed him at a recent meeting a survey for an Alberni-Comox road had been made and a right-of-way slashed out.

Pleads Guilty

CHEMAINUS—Peter Kristian Halland, 32, of Chemainus was remanded one week for sentence Wednesday after pleading guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Court was told Halland struck Crofton resident Andrew Hutchison July 6 with an iron pipe outside the Crofton beer parlor.

Heartily.

You could call him an expert and few men would dare argue the matter.

That's why we were so pleased with Alfie's reaction to Canada's own Gold Keg Beer. He gave it a thorough test. Then he gave it his blessing.

Alfie said: "It's a luv'ly beer," and after another wee sample he added, "A man could hardly do better!"

In Operation Gold Keg hundreds of Englishmen like Alfie Wells have reported that they rate Gold Keg with the finest old-country brews.

If you're a man who likes flavour and body in a beer, you ought to try a case or two of Gold Keg. There's nothing quite like it in Canada.

Or in England, for that matter.

event of a trial, testimony likely will be given in both English and French.

Crown Prosecutor John Cassels, assigned the case by Justice Minister Cardin, already has said the Crown is ready to provide adequate translation facilities to meet this problem.

Mr. Cassells drafted the charges against Mr. Denis under two rarely-used sections of the Criminal Code. They alleged that:

1. One year ago in Ottawa, Mr. Denis "did unlawfully and corruptly" offer "a sum of money" to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne to have him drop his opposition to bail for Lucien Rivard, the accused narcotics conspirator whose case set off the controversy which rocked the Pearson government.

Mr. Lamontagne at the time was acting on behalf of the United States government to have Rivard extradited to face narcotics conspiracy charges in Texas.

2. At about the same time, Mr. Denis "did unlawfully and willfully attempt to obstruct the course of justice by attempting to dissuade" Mr. Lamontagne from his opposition to the bail request.

COULD FACE FOUR YEARS

The indictable charges, laid under sections 368 (3) and 119 (1) of the code respectively, each carry a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment. If convicted on both counts, Mr. Denis could face a maximum prison term of four years.

Mr. Denis, who spent Wednesday night at an Ottawa hotel after being released on bail, was dapper in a black suit and light colored tie for his brief court appearance. As the charges were read, he stood with eyes downcast.

In the course of his brief remarks, Mr. Assaly referred to "dicsussions in chambers" among himself, Magistrate Sherwood and Mr. Cassells. He did not elaborate.

Mr. Assaly then asked that bail be continued at $1,000. With no objection from Mr. Cassells, Magistrate Sherwood quickly granted the request.

EXPECT OTHER CHARGES

The charges were laid following study of the Dorion report by Mr. Cassels in co-operation with RCMP and justice department officials. Mr. Cardin has promised that further charges will be laid as a result of the report.

In it, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court said Mr. Denis gave the impression before the inquiry of a man who told "only part of the truth."

They will be capable of speeds up to 1,000 miles per hour.

The defence department said the aircraft will have good manoeuvreability, good single-engine performance, and the ability to land and take off on sod fields or unprepared runways.

The CF-5 will be able to carry a wide range of conventional weapons — .20-millimetre guns, missiles, rockets and bombs—depending on the milon. The two-eat training verion will be capable of immediate use in a combat role if required.

The defence department sai other features of the CF-5 will be exceptional flight stability, low fuel consumption, lo wmaintenance and training costs, and wide availability of spare parts.

The range of the aircraft is approximately 1,500 miles. With in-flight refuelling this could be extended to 2,500 mles.

Election Subsidies

QUEBEC (CP) — A bill increasing government subsidy of candidates' election expenses was approved Tuesday night by the Quebec legislature, sitting in committee of the whole.

Premier Lesage said the bill amending the Quebec electoral law will encourage the elimination of party election funds.

To qualify for the subsidy a candidate must receive 20 per cent of the popular vote. If he does, the bill provides that the government will pay the first 15 cents he spends for each elector in his constituency, one-fifth of his expenses between 15 cents and 40 cents, and the full amount of his expenses in excess of 40 cents for each elector.

The premier said this means that in no case will any candidate have to spend more than 20 cents for each elector in his riding.

The electoral law already provides ceilings on campaign spending—60 cents for each elector if there are 10,000 or fewer in the riding, 50 cents if there are between 10,000 and 20,000, and 40 cents if there are more than 20,000.

In other business, Revenue Minister Eric Kierans announced that churches and religious institutions operating enterprises "of a commercial or competitive character" will be subject to corporation tax.

The new ruling is retroactive to Jan. 1 and was approved by the cabinet Monday, Mr. Kierans told the legislature.

Salaries for judges in magistrate's court were increased to $18,000 from $14,000, effective Aug. 1, by a bill adopted by the legislature. The bill also renamed magistrate's court — it now will be called provincial court.

MARS PROBE

Pre-Mariner Facts Of Mysterious Planet

Size—4,200 miles in diameter; about half the size of earth.

Gravity—About three-eighths that of earth. A 100-pound human would weigh 38 pounds on Mars.

Surface markings—Vast red-yellow areas cover two-thirds of the surface, around the equator. Above, below and extending into the "desert" are dark areas that turn greenish in spring. Some believe the dark areas could be vegetation fed by water from the white polar caps, which grow in winter, seem to "melt" in summer. Some astronomers have reported seeing a network of canal-like lines crossing the "desert" areas.

Distance from earth—Ranges from 34,000,000 to 248,000,000 miles. Today, Mars is 134,000,000 miles away.

Distance from sun — The fourth planet from the sun, its egg-shaped orbit carries Mars from 128,000,000 miles to 154,000,000 miles from the centre of the solar system.

Satellites — Mars has two small moons, Deimos, eight miles in diameter, and Phobos, 18 miles in diameter. Deimos, 1,200 miles above the surface, swings around Mars once every 30 hours. Phobos, 4,000 miles high, rises and sets three times each Martian day, which is 40 minutes longer than an earth day.

Seasons — The axis around which Mars rotates is tilted at about the same angle as earth, so it has similar seasons within its 687-day year.

Mars Landing For Cameras Set By U.S.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Within the next six years, at least two heavyweight U.S. space machines will set out to do what the tiny Mariner-4 could not do—look for ground-level evidence of life on Mars.

The newcomer is Project Voyager, the program that—at an estimated cost of $1 billion or more—will put the United States back in the inter-planetary shooting business in 1969.

The major aim of Voyager is to land at least one and possibly two camera-carrying capsules, each weighing a half-ton or better, directly on the surface of Mars in 1971.

Mars makes one of its closest of the century approaches to earth—34,902,530 miles—on Aug. 12, 1971.

The federal space agency plans to send one or two early-model Voyagers on a flying mission past Mars, similar to the picture-taking course of the 575-pound Mariner-4, in 1969. Numerous scientists are trying to persuade the agency to install a Mars "lander" aboard the earlier flights.

Mariner Chronology Began Last November

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Thumbnail history of Mariner 4's photo mission to Mars:

Nov. 28, 1964—Launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., on curving path which, without a course change, would have taken it within 150,000 miles of Mars July 16.

Dec. 4—Attempt to fire a rocket to swerve it closer to Mars is delayed when Mariner 4 temporarily loses its fix on Canopus, its guiding star.

Dec. 5 — Electronic eye searches and finds Canopus. Tracking engineers fire course-changing rocket, aiming Mariner 4 to fly within 5,400 miles of Mars July 14.

March 3, 1965—Scientists announce failure of one radiation-measuring device and partial failure of another.

April 29—Mariner 4 sets long-distance communication record, exceeding 66,000,000-mile record set March 21, 1963, when the Soviet spacecraft Mars 1 stopped sending back signals.

July 14—Mariner 4 flies past Mars, programmed to send photo signals and other data across 134,000,000 miles.

TERRACE (CP)—One television station technician was killed and another injured early today when their car ran off the Terrace-Kitimat Highway six miles south of here. Jack Llewellen, 27, an employee of CFTK-TV here, was killed. Dave Estecelle, 23, also employed by the station, was in hospital with bruises and shock.

U.S. Buying Hikes Meat Prices

Meat prices are climbing in Greater Victoria and are not likely to slacken until the fall.

Wholesale meat companies attribute the increase mainly to more American buying in Canada because of droughts in the last few years in the U.S.

But because of the heavy American buying, prices are at their highest level in 10 years.

Meat prices are averaging 10 to 12 per cent higher than normal while steaks are up 20 per cent and pork nearly one-third.

But lamb and veal prices are easing slightly.

The higher prices in most cases are expected to continue until September, particularly for steaks.

One wholesaler said restaurants are paying as much as 40 per cent above the usual wholesale price of steak, but passing only half of this increase onto the customer.

STUDY PUSHED ON SAANICH WORKS PLAN

Saanich council is continuing closed meetings studying a multi-million dolar capital projects budget, Reeve Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

The budget will be presented to municipal property owners this year, but he declined to indicate precisely when.

It was to have been ready by June but was delayed by late delivery of the Greater Victoria traffic study.

The budget likely will be between $2 million and $3 million with repayment over 20 years.

The money will be used to finance major roads, parks, buildings and land acquisition. Details won't be disclosed until the program is ready for the ratepayers.

Two items that won't be in the budget are Rithet's swamp, a privately owned natural wonderland up for sale but protected from subdivision by rigid covenants, and sewers, where the cost isn't shared by the entire municipality.

Doctors Plan March In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Telegrams were sent to 6,000 doctors Wednesday asking them to take part today in a march on Quebec City to oppose a bill regulating medical practice in hospitals under the Quebec Insurance Act.

The Federation of General Practitioners and the Federation of Medical Specialists are jointly sponsoring the march following a meeting of 400 doctors in the Quebec College of Physicians building.

The government bill sets the conditions under which doctors can be admitted to hospitals to exercise their profession; the conditions under which medical students are admitted; the admission and release of patients; the care and treatment to be given patients and the regulations medical personnel must follow.

The doctors complained that the bill gives too much control to the government.

The assembly gave the bill third reading after the government explained the doctors and hospitals had been unable to agree on their own hospital code.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1965 —PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

It just may be that attached to your home for quarters, rations and record player outlets is a carefree gossoon who, when the Grade 12 university course results are announced, is going to be laughing on the other side of his face.

If he's weak in all or most subjects, disregard his howls and insist that young stupid repeat the year, a procedure which will cost him nothing but hard work if he's under 19 when school opens in September.

If he's past that age, and can claim no such mitigating circumstance as illness or unavoidable interruption of studies during his first crack at junior matric, a fee of $180 will be charged for his second go-round.

Should he have failed only one subject, however, there's a loophole worth investigating. If your hopeful can wiggle through it, he may save his year.

★ ★ ★

The gimmick is to apply for enrollment in the education department's correspondence school, a mail-order institution which I've heard described as the finest of its sort in Canada.

If he's accepted—and that will depend on the general state of his credits—he gets a second chance at the ailing subject for a $15 tariff.

At this point, let me warn that these courses are not designed for coasters or seat-warmers. They require application, concentration, and a touch of desperation on the student's part.

His course will consist of 20 lessons, called papers, each of which will occupy him for from five to ten hours. Three tests are spaced along the route.

If successful, he patches his grade 12 record with a pass. He can even be recommended.

Another warning. If your boy or girl is already aware of a badly-failed subject, it might be as well not to delay application until the results come out. For any considering that route, deadline for university admission applications is Aug. 16, registration day is Sept. 14, and winter session lectures commence Sept. 20.

While senior matriculation also provides the slightly-failed grade-twelver with a chance to complete first year university and make up his missing credits, I hesitate to recommend it.

Except to note that the junking of grade 12 supplemental examinations made the present cumbersome salvage apparatus necessary, I won't dreary your ears on that subject.

I wish most heartily, though, that our University of Victoria and its mainland opposite numbers would, or could, save everyone a great deal of fuss and bother by setting their own entrance examinations.

Were they privately endowed rather than government wards under the education department thumb, I have little doubt they'd be doing so today.

Under the present setup, university seems to be regarded as an extension of the public school system . . . an error which we can but hope will soon be abandoned.

Revised channelling of courses and the healthy new stress on vocational training partially compensate for this curious refusal to make a high school certificate a fully respectable ticket of entry into the working world.

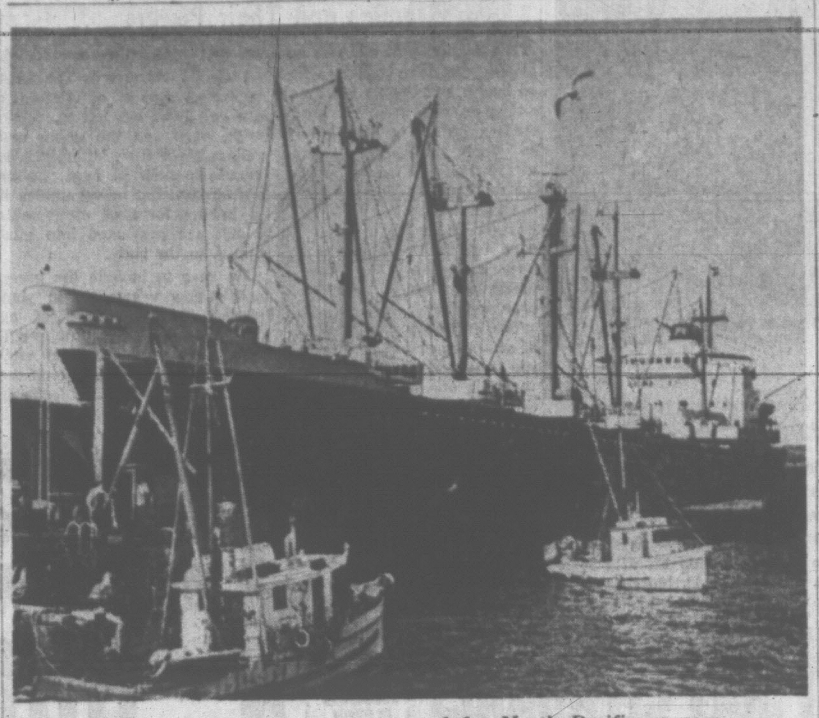

But only to a degree. My impression is that in the eyes of our top educators, the high school is still regarded primarily as a recruiting ground for the university.

That concept, I suggest, is over-ripe for dropping.

Food Stall Needs Contributions

Contributions to Victoria's Surplus Food Stall are still poor and officials fear there won't be enough to provide for the 155 welfare families by Saturday.

Eagles lodge members will be picking up donations to the stall, 732 Cormorant Street, Saturday morning. Donors should call Mrs. E. E. Harper at 658-8177.

Moerdyk was specially constructed for North Pacific cargoes.

POLICE SHELVE PROPOSAL FOR WHIRLY EYE-IN-SKY

The RCMP Highway Patrol has decided against extensive use of helicopters for spotting freeway speeders "for the moment."

"But I think they have an open mind about their use in the future," Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Wednesday.

He was commenting on a report that the Ontario Provincial Police is testing the use of aircraft to spot highway speeders.

Mr. Bonner said the RCMP under his jurisdiction made lengthy experiments last year with helicopters patrolling mainland highways but they came to the opinion "that helicopter surveillance ought not to occupy a permanent place in the patrols — for the moment."

Merger Details Open to Study

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell wrote to the mayor, reeves and councils of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and Sidney.

Also involved are elected representatives to earlier discussions on joint services, including the unorganized territories to the west, and the North Saanich area on the tip of Saanich Peninsula. Boundaries would be those of school districts 61, 62 and 63.

It was understood that letters patent covering the functions of a regional district were also suggested by the minister.

NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. Campbell has stated that policy in the matter of drawing up letters patent would be to negotiate each with the municipality involved.

It is also up to individual municipalities to declare their participation or to opt out of the district for particular functions.

For example, Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay could agree to joint participation in health services with Esquimalt remaining apart.

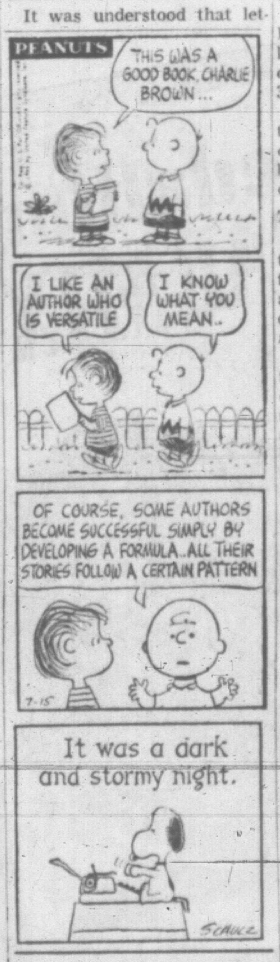

Full details of Mr. Campbell's letter were not to be made public until after the intermunicipal committee meeting, set for 3 p.m.

The committee may deal with the matter by appointing a subcommittee to study proposals before a recommendation to the councils is evolved.

TWO INDEPENDENTS

Not all the organized areas in the capital region belong to intermunicipal committee. Sidney and Central Saanich remain independent, although Sidney has applied to join the committee.

Functions of a regional district likely to be considered early in the capital area include sewers, transit operations, garbage disposal, water distribution, hospital capital costs, community planning, parks and air pollution.

Ambulance Row Taken To Cabinet

While the provincial cabinet was in session today two NDP MLAs from the lower mainland took up position outside the closed chamber intent on demanding a province-wide subsidy and the resignation of Health Minister Eric Martin.

David Barrett (NDP—Dewdney) and Rae Eddie (NDP—New Westminster) arrived for a last-ditch attempt to persuade the cabinet to give at least a temporary grant towards maintenance of a subsidized ambulance service in Burnaby and New Westminster.

The Metropolitan Ambulance Company's subsidies from the two municipalities ended Wednesday night which leaves them without an emergency ambulance service during nighttime hours. Vancouver City, which faces the same prospect, announced it will continue the subsidy until the end of this month.

All three councils have been agitating for provincial grants to replace municipal subsidies which have climbed to about $150,000 a year.

"The first thing we want is (Health Minister) Eric Martin's resignation," said Mr. Barrett. "He ducked out of town because he knew this issue was coming up. He's incompetent."

The two said they also would buttonhole the cabinet ministers after their meeting to press for an "immediate $400,000 grant to provide a province-wide subsidized ambulance service."

Floating Fridge Arrives

By RON SUDLOW
Times Marine Reporter

A floating refrigerator arrived today at Victoria's Ogden Point docks.

She is the Moerdyk, a new Holland-America Line freighter which has reached the half-way point of her maiden voyage.

The vessel, which has refrigerated holds specially constructed for cargoes from the North Pacific coast, was due to leave here for Vancouver early this evening.

Moerdyk arrived one day ahead of schedule and her visit was brief.

But she loaded several cases of locally-grown loganberries which are destined for Europe.

The Dutch vessel, launched only last Dec. 1, will proceed to New Westminster and Vancouver to take on plywood and frozen products such as fish.

STAGE SETTINGS

Most unique part of her cargo will be the stage settings of the Royal London Ballet to be loaded next week when the company completes its Canadian tour.

Total refrigerated capacity of the closed shelter-deck type vessel is 135,170 cu. feet. Overall cargo space is 620,050 cu. feet.

The 11,127-ton freighter left for North America June 9 from Rotterdam where she was built. The ship carries a crew of 45 and has an overall length of 546 feet.

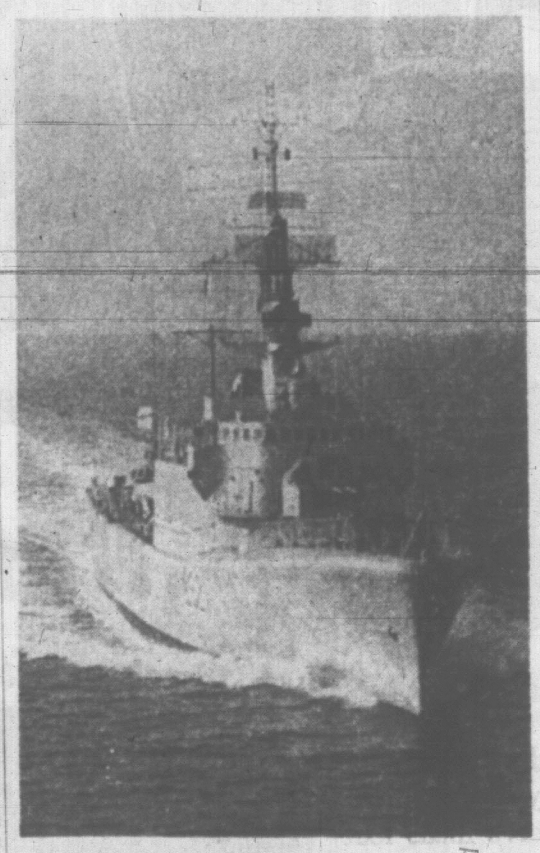

She replaces the 10,243-ton Amsteldyk which churned away from Ogden Point for the last time this spring, headed for the breakers in the U.S.

Musical Airmen Appearing Here

The musical extravaganza will feature a military style band, a Dixieland group, a "Big Band" (Glenn Miller type) and a score of individual artists.

All performers on the show are officers and men serving in the North American Air Defence Command.

CONDUCTED TOURS of Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan for general public and Saskatchewan visitors in particular, will begin Sunday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and will continue the following two Sundays. Cameras will be allowed aboard so visitors can take home personal souvenirs of their visit. Victorians will be welcomed too, says the navy. Saskatchewan will be at an HMC Dockyard jetty.

Murdered Teen-Ager Sexually Assaulted

Another Judge To Be Named For Victoria

Attorney-General Robert Bonner will appoint a second full-time magistrate for Victoria in a few weeks.

"That's a matter under consideration now," he confirmed Wednesday.

"I anticipate an early decision."

The addition will make Victoria the second multiple-magistrate district in the province. Vancouver has had more than one magistrate for several years.

"Victoria would have been a multiple-magistrate district some years ago but for the fact that the area was divided into several (municipal) jurisdictions," said Mr. Bonner.

Mr. Bonner said there would be no cutback in the magistrates provided for the outside areas here although the new appointment would be an addition to the "metropolitan Victoria" magisterial services.

NO 'OUTSIDE' CUTS

"The emphasis presently and for the future is to combine some of the scattered functions in a central magistrate's court for the purpose of greater efficiency.

"Victoria is taking an important step by providing larger facilities which are much improved from the old facilities which were not satisfactory," he said.

Mr. Bonner was referring to current construction of a magistrate's court building alongside the city police station, which is being renovated. The new building will provide two court rooms.

Man Admits Assaulting Infant Son

A 21-year-old father was remanded for a psychiatric and pre-sentence report after he pleaded guilty Wednesday to assaulting his two and one-half months old son.

Howard Jones, 944 Southgate, will be sentenced July 22 in city court for the offence.

Detective Lorne Johnson said Jones's baby son was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by his grandmother July 2 suffering from bad facial injuries. The child is still in hospital for observation.

Det. Johnson said the father told him he had changed the baby twice that day and each time the child again soiled his diaper.

Jones told the policeman he slapped the child and later took the baby to his mother-in-law. She later brought the child to hospital.

Pathologist on Stand In Freschi Hearing

Dr. McNeely, pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he based his opinion on his experience gained in doing post-mortem examinations on about 2,000 women during his medical career.

Dr. McNeely said Susan's death was caused by a "massive blow" that split the base of her skull from ear to ear. He said the skull fracture caused tremendous bleeding.

Another witness this morning was Tom Goldie, 25 Knollwood, who said he saw a Hillman car parked on Atkins Road on the night Susan was killed.

Her body was found next day in woods a short distance from Atkins Road.

Mr. Goldie said the car was similar to one shown in a photograph entered as an exhibit in the case. Under cross-examination by defence counsel Alan Bigelow, he said his impression of the car he saw on Atkins Road was that it was solid grey in color. He agreed that the photo in exhibit showed a two-tone car.

Wednesday afternoon Kenneth Cleghorn, 4118 Glenwood, testified that he once owned a 1956 Hillman but sold it earlier this year to Mrs. Lillian Robinson, wife of the accused, for $125.

He said the car had a broken bumper and he had tied it up with a length of rope. He said the rope was on the car when he sold it.

IDENTICAL ROPE

Cleghorn was shown the rope that was used to tie Susan's wrists. He said it was identical to the one that was on his car.

Mr. Cleghorn, a one-time sailor, said he had tied the rope in a way that left a distinctive kink in it. Under cross-examination by Mr. Bigelow he agreed that another persons could have made a similar hitch on a rope and it would have left the same sort of kink.

Mr. Cleghorn said the rope on his car had been used to tie up a bumper that had sharp edges. He agreed with Mr. Bigelow that the rope that is an exhibit in the case did not have any cut fibres.

Corporal Tony Prokop of the RCMP Crime Detection Laboratory in Vancouver, testified he examined both the rope and the car bumper.

He said he tied the rope around the bumper and found that certain kinks in the rope fitted into place.

Two Royal Canadian Navy cadets from HMCS Venture, gave evidence that on the evening of May 11 they hitched a ride with Robinson in his car.

HEADED BACK

John Megson and Jack Koul said Robinson dropped them off at the Six Mile House beer parlor. Koull said that Robinson reversed his car and headed back for the city after letting them off.

George Laak, manager of the Half-Way House, 856 Esquimalt Road, said Robinson had a contract to clean the beer parlor.

Mr. Laak said Robinson was at the beer parlor cleaning up at his usual time of 6:30 p.m. on May 11. Mr. Laak said he usually left before 7:30 but on that night he did not see him go and couldn't say at what time he went away.

Launching Delayed

Launching of the hydrofoil H.S. Victoria has been set back nine days but company officials still plan to begin Victoria-Seattle service Sept. 11.

Duane Acheson, director of sales and promotion for Northwest Hydrofoil Lines Inc., said the delay was anticipated and will not affect the completion date.

The hydrofoil is being finished at Maryland Shipbuilding Co., Baltimore, Md. It was to be launched Tuesday.

Following its launch the Victoria will undergo trials in Chesapeake Bay and then begin a two-month fall season on the Seattle-Victoria run.

The company then plans to re-locate its vessel in the Hawaiian Islands for the winter and begin its full season of service here in 1966.

The craft will seat 75 passengers in an aircraft-type cabin and will cover the 72 miles between here and Seattle at speeds of 40-50 knots.

NOMINATION PAPERS READY ON MONDAY

Official notice of an Aug. 12 civic byelection will be published at the weekend, allowing nomination papers to be available Monday, Victoria clerk M. F. Hunter said today.

Nomination day was set Tuesday for Aug. 2, giving candidates two weeks to file papers.

A council vacancy occurred with the death of Ald. Austin I. Curtis, whose term would not have expired until Dec. ember, 1966.

Four Cadets Injured When Car Hits Truck

Injured but in good condition are:

William F. Murray, 19, of Vancouver, a Regular Officer Training Plan cadet from UBC who suffered head injuries and fractures to both ankles;

Brian L. Mersereau, 19, of McAdam, N.B., a University of New Brunswick student and ROTP cadet who received minor lacerations, and,

New Maps Available

Four new aeromagnetic maps, of interest to prospectors, geologists and mining engineers, will go on sale July 17, the B.C. Mines Department announced today. The maps cost 25 cents each and outline maghet tracings of the Revelstoke, Camborne, Illecillewaet and Mount Revelstoke area.

PAVILION LACKS POLL SUPPORT

No votes were sent in overnight on behalf of the English-type pier suggested for Clover Point, although gains were shown in the three other categories, led substantially by a sports stadium complex.

The complex now has 338 votes; a saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay has 145 votes; a planetarium has 77 votes and the pavilion stands with 40.

WHICH ONE?

The centennial committee has narrowed down to four the number of projects still in the running.

To assist the committee in finding out the preference of the public The Times will run the following ballot daily until the end of the month when final decision will be made.

These are the four projects:

1. Planetarium ☐
2. Stadium complex with provision for immediate or future construction of indoor sports facilities ☐
3. Glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point ☐
4. Outdoor saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay ☐

Weak Ankle Support Found in Elastic Sock

By PENNY-SAVER

A funny thing happened to a friend of mine several weeks ago. Well, I thought it was funny, but it was slightly painful for him. He was clambering about the roof of his house, trying to fix the television antenna which had been a little bent by the crows and pigeons roosting there when a whole army of the winged things came swooping over his house. Naturally he was startled.

He gave a shriek of agony, lost his foothold and his grip and away he went . . . over the side of the house. He landed on the porch roof. He had a very badly twisted ankle.

Though he now has the bandages off, his ankle is still very weak and his job requires quite a bit of moving around. So I had a suggestion as it is impossible for him to keep off his feet altogether. It is a support sock for men.

Selling at $4.95, this sock is designed with numerous small elastic threads running the length of the sock to give support and to hold muscles and flesh firmly in place.

These look smart enough to be worn as a regular sock—but if you wish, they are slim enough in bulk to pull another pair on over top.

There is a new look in men's hose for fall. Socks are on the way up—and I mean way up! Now they reach to just below the knee—perfect to wear as accessories to Bermuda shorts—but meant to complement casual or dress suits.

Actually they are meant to give a cleaner line to your silhouette with no danger of the socks slipping down or rolling about the ankle in an ugly bulge. They are elasticized wool and absolutely refuse to shrink. They are sanitized, too, to protect your feet for the life of the sock. Price is $1.95 and you'll love the tones and shades they are available in—very sophisticated.

If you want to know where to shop, give me a call at 382-3131.

No Ill-Effects In Feeding

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—However you feed your baby—by breast, bottle, cup or a combination of the three—it will have little or no effect on his subsequent growth.

This is the finding of a University of Missouri Medical School psychiatrist and a University of Kansas Medical School psychologist who studied the relationship, if any, between infant feeding method and the development of 80 adolescent boys and girls. Neither physical characteristics nor academic achievement nor personality seem related in any way to the feeding method used, according to the researchers.

Evening Nuptials

Flowers in a yellow and white theme decorated Centennial United Church for the recent wedding of Sandra Terry Dickinson and Robert George Everard Allman.

Dr. S. J. Parsons officiated at the evening ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dickinson, 897 Leslie Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Allman, 775 Newbury Street. Mrs. M. Wilmshurst was organist at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length white gown in classic style, featuring a scoop neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Her chapel veil was held in place by a single white rose. Yellow rosebuds and white gladioli were in her bouquet.

Afternoon-length gowns of pale yellow crystalline and matching headpieces were worn by maid of honor Miss Judith Allman, bridesmatron Mrs. Robert Allan and bridesmaid Miss Nadine Pyne. All carried bouquets of pale yellow gladioli.

Best man was Fred Eagle, and Robert Allan and Dennis Dickinson, the bride's brother, ushered guests to their pews.

Leaving for a honeymoon in the provincial interior, the new Mrs. Allman wore a pink Italian knit suit, with navy accessories and hat in pink and white tones. Her corsage was a pink and white gardenia.

The couple will live at 787 Newbury Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Deacon, 5 Alma Place, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their elder daughter, Georgia Louisa, to Mr. James Edward Bunce, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Bunce, 1618 Oakland Avenue. The wedding will take place Saturday, July 31, at 7:30 p.m. in First United Church. Rev. R. J. D. Morris will officiate. (Photo by Jus-Rite.)

Vancouver Guests

A number of Vancouver residents travelled to Victoria to attend the recent Zala-Murdoch wedding. They include Mr. and Mrs. A. Davidson, Mrs. G. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lindsay, Miss Gwen Lindsay and Mr. and Mrs. A. Murdoch. Other out-of-town guests include Mr. and Mrs. J. Oakman of Campbell River, Mr. V. Zala, Galiano Island, B.C.; Mr. J. WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Housewife Must Understand Vitamins and Their Powers

The scientific discoveries concerning nutrition and its effect on health and beauty are as exciting as our progress toward landing on the moon! We are so much more aware today of the direct effect the food we eat has on us and our performance and happiness than we once were.

Lowman

The discovery of vitamins and what they mean to us is one of the most dramatic things which has happened in a long time. Vitamins help to metabolize the food we eat. For instance we cannot properly utilize the calcium in our diet without vitamin D. Some knowledge of vitamins is essential if we are to plan well-balanced meals; yet many women still know practically nothing about them, what they do, and where they are found.

Consider vitamin A. The most important sources of vitamin A are cod liver oil, butter, whole milk, eggs and the green and yellow vegetables. Vitamin A is found as such in eggs, butter and cream, but in vegetables it is in the form of carotenoids which are converted into vitamin A in the body.

Be sure to include the green and yellow vegetables in your menus. Only one-third of an ounce of fresh parsley daily will supply one-third the total vitamin A requirements. Part of the vitamin A content of foods is lost in cooking. Practically all of it is lost in frying.

Vitamin A deficiency in children may show in slow growth and susceptibility to infections. In adults one of the best signs is night blindness or poor sight in the dark. Vitamin A deficiency can also lead to extremely dry skin.

Plus a few special goodies of our own that make a mouth watering meat loaf (more servings per pound of meat, too!) The savings in time are obvious. You'll save a penny here, a penny there on ingredients (that mounts up when you serve meat loaf often). But, the big savings show up in the pan: it makes meat go a longer way. It does wonders for meat balls, hamburgers, etc. To take the place of your own meat loaf mix, this one would have to be something special. It is.

It makes meat loaf go a long-er way!

Also delicious for Salmon or Tuna Loaf
Drain 2 lbs of canned salmon (2, 1 lb. cans) or 2 lbs. canned tuna (5, 6-1/2 oz. cans). Add contents of this package, 1 C. milk, and 2 eggs. Mix thoroughly. Pack in greased and floured 1-1/2 or 2 qt. casserole dish or loaf pan. Bake in a 350° F. oven for 1-1/4 hours. (Meat thermometer reading of 190° F.)

Grandfather Soloist for Vows In St. Aidan's United Church

"The Wedding Prayer" was sung by H. T. Zala when Judith Anne Murdoch exchanged marriage vows with his grandson, Richard Wayne Zala, recently in St. Aidan's United Church.

Baskets of pink and white gladioli and stocks decorated the church when Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Murdoch, 1817 Haultain Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Zala, 2600 Eastdowne Road.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza, styled slightly en train. The fitted bodice of the gown featured a portrait neckline and lily point sleeves. A satin pillbox headpiece, highlighted with lace and seed pearls, held her elbow-length veil of silk illusion net. Pink roses, white daisies and stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet.

Floor-length gowns of pink peau de soie, self-fabric headpieces en tone and bouquets of white gladioli were the outfits worn by maid of honor Miss Marilou Beck, bridesmatron, Mrs. D. Garvie and bridesmaid, Miss Doreen Zala.

Best man was William Thornbury. Ushering guests to their pews were Terence Murdoch and Carl Chalk.

Pink tulle and a Royal Stuart sash surrounded the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride and groom's mothers, which centred the head table for the reception following in Holyrood House.

Following a honeymoon trip motoring to California, the couple will make their home at 2817 Adelaide Avenue.

Pink Flowers In Church For Bride Marion Deans

Pink gladioli, chrysanthemums and carnations decorated First United Church recently when Rev. R. J. D. Morris heard marriage vows exchanged between Marion Jean Deans and Peter Myron Bell.

Organ music was played by Mrs. W. Gregory during the afternoon ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Deans, 1413 Mt. Newton Crossroad, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bell, 622 Falkland Road.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon net over satin, featuring a fitted bodice of lace, with a flowing train from the shoulders. Her nylon net veil misted from a rhinestone tiara. Only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom. Red roses and pink carnations were in her cascade bouquet.

A silver brooch, gift of the bride, was worn by bridesmaid Miss Gail McKivett, to complement her floor-length brocade gown in pink. She wore a flowered headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Peter Hall. Don Phillips and Russell Selwood ushered guests to their pews.

Two doves and two horseshoes topped the three-tier wedding cake at the reception at the Olde England Inn. Pink and red rosebuds decorated guests' tables. J. Chapman proposed the toast to the bride.

On their return the couple will make their home in Fort St. John, B.C.

To Famous Pianist Maria Varro

MUSICAL MASTERS ALL FRIENDS

By DINA STEWART

To some, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, Liszt, are mere names, composers from forgotten school or music lesson days—to others, geniuses who produced the world's musical masterpieces.

But to Maria Varro, each one is an old friend, whose companionship she savors and treasures like fine jewels.

For all of them have helped to make her one of the most renowned female concert pianists in the world today.

At home, Maria Varro is Mme. Claude Trell, wife of the director of La Maison Francaise at the University of Victoria.

But to thousands of Europeans, she is the performer whose renditions of Brahms and Bach caused them to award her a standing ovation—the highest possible honor an audience can grant a musician.

"I love the central European audiences the best," she admits. "They are really appreciative because most of them play some musical instrument or are musically inclined."

Although Maria Varro began studying the piano at age six and gave her first performance at seven, her career dates back to when she was three.

Not only is Maria Varro a world-famous pianist, she also teaches a few university students from the United States and some Vancouver teachers. (She and her husband have lived in Vancouver ever since they moved to Canada 10 years ago.)

"When I was three, my brothers and sister were all having piano lessons and so I would play around with the keys, picking out sounds and notes."

She possesses the rare gift of perfect pitch—the ability to tell a note—sight unseen—as soon as it is heard.

Maria studied in Paris until she was 14 and she then went on the concert stage. Playing in Vienna at 15, she met Emile von Sauer, himself a great pianist.

For seven years, Maria studied with him in Vienna, then continued with concert work—on tours which took her to every country in Europe, performing alone or with orchestras.

She still performs in concert—practicing seven hours a day—four in the morning and three later. "I'm freshest, more alive in the morning and I prefer to keep evenings for home or social life."

Maria has wonderfully strong and expressive hands. "I don't allow myself to baby them—I'd become too conscious of them. I do have to be careful, of course, because even a scratch can be drastic. To give you an example, I hurt my finger once just four days before I was to appear in concert. I spent hours having to learn to play with just three fingers and a thumb—all the fingering, the most important part of the music, had to be changed."

Because of her early debut on the concert stage, Maria has never experienced "stage fright." "I do, however, become nervous if I have not practiced enough before a performance, but I say to myself, 'Maria, you must go on' and—I go on!"

She is in Victoria to be with her husband during the summer sessions of La Maison Francaise. "I do not teach—but I love to talk to the students. The system we use is to constantly speak French—therefore, in order to ask for something or to understand or be understood—they have to speak French or go without!"

Irene Parlby Dies In Alberta

ALIX, Alta. (CP)—Mrs. Irene Parlby, a champion of women's rights who became one of the first women in the world to hold cabinet rank in parliamentary government, has died at the age of 97.

Funeral services will be held in this central Alberta town Friday. Mrs. Parlby died in hospital at Red Deer Monday after a prolonged illness.

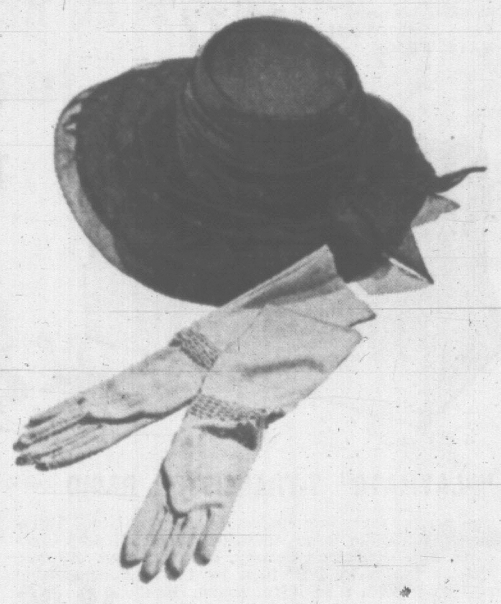

Though she officially retired from public life in 1935, she continued to give talks and lectures and publish articles, holding to her belief that women can be tough enough to crusade on behalf of their ideas.

She once told an interviewer: "All girls should learn to play team games, with boys as well as with girls . . . to learn to take hard knocks and hurts of every kind without showing it and to be able to take a licking with a smile.

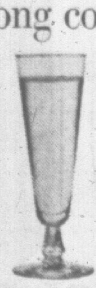

"It helps afterwards," she said, "in the battle of life."

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Not Normal!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 17-year-old son. He is going steady with a 24-year-old woman. Roger looks like he's 21 or 22, and has always been big for his age. I am very much against this match and told him so. Don't tell me to have a talk with the woman because I already have and it didn't do one bit of good. She says they are "in love." Roger has one more year of high school left and she says she is willing to wait for him to graduate before they get married. Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous?

She works and gives Roger an "allowance." Don't you think this woman ought to be ashamed of herself for taking advantage of a kid? I think they are both sick in the head. I say if these two get married, in no time he will be introducing her as his mother. What can be done? He won't listen to me.

ROGER'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Knowing nothing of the mental and emotional maturity of either your son or this woman, I can't say whether it's a "ridiculous" match or not. A normal 24-year-old woman wouldn't look twice at a 17-year-old boy. And vice versa. Obviously, it's too late for you to assert the kind of parental influence necessary to break up this romance. Roger needs understanding and lots of it. Who knows, they might live happily ever after.

DEAR ABBY: Arthur and I have been married almost a year. We are both in our late 50's. This is his second marriage and my third, and I am determined to make this marriage work. A woman couldn't want a sweeter, more considerate, affectionate husband, but he believes in togetherness until I could scream. We have a brand new five-room bungalow, and if Arthur doesn't see me, he goes looking for me. He even has to be right beside me in the kitchen when I'm cooking. There are times when I do need his help for emptying the trash, etc., but how can I get it across to him that when I need him I will call him? He's very sensitive and I don't want to hurt his feelings. Please answer this through your column as he goes to the mailbox with me when I get the mail. Sign me . . .

"GOING NUTS."

DEAR "GOING": Arthur sounds like a friendly, warm-hearted man who is mad about you. When you want to be alone, announce it in advance. When you want privacy in the kitchen, tell Arthur you want to stay out of the kitchen until you call him. There are many ways to skin a cat without killing the kittenish affection within.

DEAR ABBY: Please answer this while I am sane and able to understand your reply. I accepted an engagement ring last Christmas, but I am not sure I want to get married just yet. I haven't set a date and I am getting so much pressure from Nick that I can't think straight. I have never given Nick any reason to doubt me, but I get the third degree about every minute I spend away from him.

Right after I got my ring, Nick started to act like he owned me. Yesterday I had lunch with a very dear girl friend I had not seen in years. We had a lot to talk about and I didn't think that kind of talk would interest Nick, so I didn't ask him to be with us. Well, Nick said I can't ever see her again as he knows that when two girls get together they are just looking for eligible males. Do you think he will ever get over this jealousy after we are married? Marriage is a big step and I don't want to rush into something I could regret later on. What should I do?

SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: Nothing! Don't set a date until Nick learns to control his jealousy and possessiveness. Men who have suspicious minds usually get worse, not better, after marriage. Have yourself a third thought. And a fourth. You're on the right track.

Show Loses Courreges

PARIS (Reuters)—A thunderbolt fell on the world of high fashion this week—Andre Courreges is not scheduled to show his collection in the week of fall and winter showings starting here July 26.

The shy, 42-year-old designer of space age fashions has become a giant of haute couture since he first opened his own house four years ago.

He declined to issue any statement when his name was not listed on the calendar for the new showings, issued by the Paris syndicate of high fashion designers.

Many say that Andre Courreges has exerted the most powerful influence on world fashions since Christian Dior launched the new look in 1947 and Chanel made her publicized comeback in 1954.

Tall, frosty fruit juice coolers to serve when the temperature soars are grape shrub, a honey of a refresher, and apple citrus medley. Each is great afternoon or evening refreshment — after a swim or just for fun.

Refreshing Fruit Sippers

PLAY IT 'COOL' WITH DRINKS

When simmering from summer heat, it's time to head for a shady nook in search of cooling refreshment. Some of the coolest warm weather props are fruit juice coolers. With a canned juice assortment on hand they can be ready whenever the temperature warrants. Enjoy them plain or blended . . . poured over sherbet or cracked ice and garnished with fluffs of whipped cream or skewered tidbits of fruit. To go with "sippin' " refreshment, serve crisp or cake-like cookies and other finger foods.

Following a dip in the pool, you'll most surely enjoy a frosty grape shrub. Prepare a pitcherful ahead, and after the swim pour it into tall, slim glasses over finely crushed ice.

GRAPE SHRUB

One cup water, ½ cup sugar, 1 bottle (1 pt. 8 fl. oz.) grape juice, ⅓ cup canned lemon juice, 1½ cups canned orange juice and finely crushed ice.

Combine water and sugar in a saucepan; heat until sugar is dissolved. Combine chilled juices with water-sugar syrup; mix well. Chill. Pour over crushed ice and garnish with a sprig of mint or melon ball kebob, if desired. Six servings.

The name "A honey of a refresher" aptly describes this duo . . . cranberry juice cocktail and frozen lemonade, sweetened ever-so-slightly with honey. This beverage will be well-received at any time.

HONEY OF A REFRESHER

One can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate, water, ¼ cup honey and 1 bottle (1 qt.) cranberry juice cocktail.

Combine thawed lemonade concentrate with water following label directions. Stir in honey and cranberry juice cocktail and mix well. Chill. Serve over ice cubes in tall glasses. Garnish with lemon slices and strawberries, if desired. Ten servings.

You'll want to prepare apple citrus medley in advance to bring out the touches of sugar and spice. Garnish this one gaily by alternating canned pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries on wooden skewers for "above-the-brim" kebobs.

APPLE CITRUS MEDLEY

One-third sugar, ¼ cup water, 1" stick cinnamon, 2 cloves, 1 can (1 pt. 2 fl. oz.) orange grapefruit juice and 1 bottle (1 pt.) apple juice.

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon stick and cloves; simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Strain out the cinnamon and cloves; add fruit juices and chill. Pour into tall glasses over ice; garnish with long skewers of pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries, if desired. Six servings.

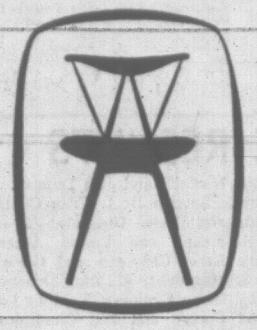

For an afternoon's diversion, relax and contemplate the up and coming activities over a Lemon Scooper. Grapefruit juice with lemon sherbet makes a fangy, but most refreshing treat.

Garden Party

Grounds of the Wardroom, HMCS Naden, will be the scene of a garden party from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., August 7. The event will be hosted by the Naval Officers' Association of Victoria.

The '65 Studebaker is a luxury car inside-out...

Don't let its low price fool you!

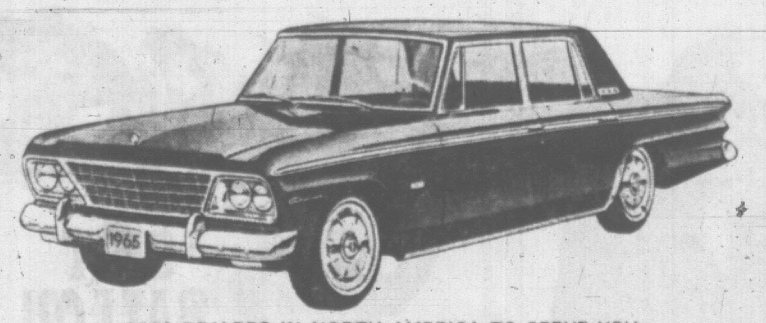

You can't tell a book by its cover, and the price-tag on a '65 Studebaker doesn't tell you the whole quality story either. Studebaker is priced low. Certainly. But take a good long look at the high-priced features you get in a Studebaker.

Every Studebaker has a 19-gauge welded steel body — thicker than other cars in its price class. And a sturdy body-on-frame construction. And aluminized rustproofing. And big 15" wheels for longer tire wear. And roomy, luxurious interiors, with full-size foam cushion seats. And padded dashboard. And windshield washers. All as standard equipment!

On the Daytona Sports Sedan you even get a transistorized ignition system as standard equipment. (Many luxury and high-performance cars offer it, too — at $107. to $133. extra.)

Add up all the extra-value features you get in a '65 Studebaker and you'll see why it's called the low-priced LUXURY car.

PLANS ALBERTA EDUCATION PROBE

BBG Chief Extends Term

OTTAWA — Dr. Andrew Stewart has agreed to an extended term as chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors on the condition he will be free to carry out a special study assignment for the University of Alberta.

Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday that Stewart would retain his post until legislation based on the Fowler commission on broadcasting comes into effect.

The Fowler report is expected in late August or early September and the legislation will be introduced in the next session of Parliament.

Stewart had been planning to end his seven-year term as BBG chairman in November until pressure was applied in recent weeks for him to continue.

He has made a commitment to U. of A. to undertake a temporary assignment involving a survey of higher education in the province of Alberta, and is scheduled to make a report to the university early in the new year.

Canadians To Assist Asia College

OTTAWA (UPI) — A nine-man team of advisers is going to Thailand this summer to help establish a university in the southeast Asian country.

The vanguard of the group from the University of Manitoba already has left Canada and the remainder will depart in time to start work by Sept. 1.

The advisers are going to the provincial city of Kohn Kaen, halfway along the Friendship Highway between Bangkok and Vientiane, to help set up the University of the North East.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The Beatles aren't the only ones regarded as big money earners for Britain. There are some members of the cast of a television series, one of Britain's most popular, who stand but 20 inches high and inhabit a miniature world one-third scale, yet portray live situations so realistically they've won an audience all of their own.

Stephen

They are the puppet characters of Stingray, produced by A.P. Films of Slough, some 20 miles west of London.

Stingray (Sunday, 6 p.m., Channel 2) follows such earlier puppet films as Four Feather Falls, a western series, Supercar and Fireball XL-5.

A new series, Thunderbirds, now is in the course of production. In each of these series there has been a steady progression of improvements: stories more resourceful, techniques more proficient and elaborate, each new series a sophisticated advance on previous endeavors.

The puppets are the central figures and are remarkable, for they look quite life-like, but to top it are able to mouth their dialogue very convincingly.

Canadian Cinematography, an industry magazine for the motion picture photography and production industry, has bared some of the inner secrets of the workings of the puppets.

All puppets are twins. As two films are shot simultaneously, one to each of the main stages, each puppet character has to be in two places at the same time. This calls for extraordinary skill and exactitude in the making and the outfitting of the marionette cast to a series.

The puppet's heads are first sculpted in clay and roughly finished, to evaluate their worth. If approved, they are committed to a fiberglas shell. Skilfully, eye and mouth mechanism are fitted and the appropriate wigs. An ample stock of male and female forms are kept with interchangeable components. Puppeteers are responsible for their like-like movements.

Mouth actions are automatically controlled by pre-recorded dialogue, relayed by electric current from a lip-synchronizations machine. The impulses, from the tape played on this machine, cause the lips to respond. Voices on the tape are converted to DC current of 50 volts maximum amplitude and are fed to copper wires connected to the puppets.

The lip-sync machine carries dialogue for as many as four characters at once: there are four tone controls and four gain controls.

And, voila, there you have the secrets behind Stingray.

GREEK GOV'T TO QUIT IN TIFF WITH KING

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier George Papandreou said tonight after a brief and stormy meeting with King Constantine that his government will resign Friday.

The break came over the ouster of Defence Minister Peter Garoufalias. The premier wanted to fire him and take over the position himself but the 25-year-old king was opposed.

Papandreou had made it clear he would resign unless the king bowed to his desires.

After the meeting, the premier said only "We have a divergency of opinion and I shall submit the government's resignation tomorrow. I will make a statement at that time."

Two-City Talks Report Vague

A meeting of Greater Victoria and Vancouver transit committee leaders and B.C. Hydro Wednesday ended with decision.

The decision was that there will be another get-together soon on future transportation operations.

"As soon as it is appropriate," said Mayor R. B. Wilson, who represented Greater Victoria at the Vancouver meeting.

He said more information is being assembled meanwhile.

The meeting was called by Hydro co-chairman Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, who commented:

"Matters of mutual interest, including transit, were discussed. I can't tell you any more than that."

Also present were Dr. Gordon Shrum, Einar Gunderson and William Mearns, who are Hydro executive; Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and New Westminster Mayor Stuart Gifford.

The municipalities are concerned that Hydro transit operations may be dumped on the shoulders of local authorities when franchise agreements expire between 1966 and 1969.

IN CUBA

Canadians 'Supervising Prisoners'

MIAMI (UPI)—Canadian foremen and technicians are supervising the work of some 10,000 political prisoners on tobacco farms in Cuba's Pinar del Rio province, according to recently arrived Cuban refugees.

The refugees, who would not identify themselves by name, said Thursday there are several hundred Canadians in Cuba under an arrangement between the two governments.

"Most of the Canadians are overseeing the production of tobacco in Pinar del Rio province which is imported by Canada," one exile said. Virtually all tobacco harvested in Pinar del Rio province is sold to Canada, they added.

"We understand the Canadian government pays Cuba a dollar a day for labor done by Castro's prisoners," he added, "but they never see any of it."

OTTAWA (UPI)—The government today disclaimed any knowledge of reports Canadians are acting as supervisors on tobacco prison farms in Cuba.

"The government is in no way at all involved," an external affairs department spokesman said.

He said the government knew there are "many" Canadians working on the island but had no way of knowing what they were doing.

PRIVATE FIRM

The Canadians are hired privately by a Canadian firm for work in Cuba, the spokesman said. He refused to identify the company.

Unless the Canadians are registered with this country's embassy in Havana, the government would have no way of knowing where they were or what they were doing, he added.

"There is nothing in Canadian law that requires them to register," he said. "We do have diplomatic relations with Cuba and they are free to engage in virtually any activity unless it goes against Canadian laws.

"There is no question of condoning or not condoning what they are doing—unless it goes contrary to law."

He rejected outright refugee claims that "the Canadian government pays Cuba a dollar a day for labor done by (Fidel) Castro's prisoners."

"The Canadian government doesn't pay anything. It's purely a private deal," the official said.

Nothing Dangerous in Flight Bag

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stewardess' overnight bag, a major clue to the cause of last week's Canadian Pacific Airline crash, contained only personal effects, a friend who packed the bag said Wednesday.

A piece of the bag, owned by stewardess Marlene Brauer, one of 52 persons to die in the explosion and crash, was found fused to a pink nightgown which was riddled with holes.

"I packed the bag," said Gudrun Schroeder, a CPA stewardess and Miss Brauer's roommate.

CAN OF HAIR SPRAY

It contained the things a stewardess needs to stay overnight—about the most dangerous thing in there was a can of hair spray."

Crash investigators, working on the theory that an explosion —possibly a bomb blast—blew the tail section off the aircraft, said the overnight bag showed traces of acid under microscopic examination.

They believe the explosion could have been caused by an acid bomb mixed in the lavatory. They say the flight bag was probably within three feet of the blast centre.

Dr. Warren Lovell, a U.S. pathologist and aviation disaster expert, said the acid-burned holes were not caused by the hair spray.

Ambulance Cutback

VANCOUVER (CP) — Metropolitan ambulance services started plans today to cut back service in the Greater Vancouver area by laying off employees. Mr. Smith said the reason for the cutback was New Westminster city council's decision to cut off ambulance subsidies.

'Fight to the Bitter End' Says N. Viet Nam Leader

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian-born housewife who succeeded in seeing North Viet Nam's President, Ho Chi Minh, in Hanoi says the Communist leader will never negotiate under pressure and if necessary, is prepared to "fight to the bitter end."

Mrs. Verdun Perl, 49-year-old native of Natal, B.C., who unsuccessfully ran as Liberal candidate for Abingdon, Berkshire, in the 1959 and 1964 British general elections, described the North Vietnamese leader as a "very charming gentleman who spoke English perfectly, so that there was no need for an interpreter."

In a telephone conversation from here Baconsfield, Buckinghamshire, home, Mrs. Perl said she was invited to go to North Viet Nam by the world peace council, because of her long-time interest in Viet Nam and her neutral political position. She said she is not a member of the council.

Mrs. Pearl had a two-hour talk with Ho Chi Minh over tea last Thursday. She said he told her he would be prepared to go to the conference table "if the Americans would uphold the terms of the 1954 Geneva agreement and withdraw their forces."

FIGHT TO BITTER END

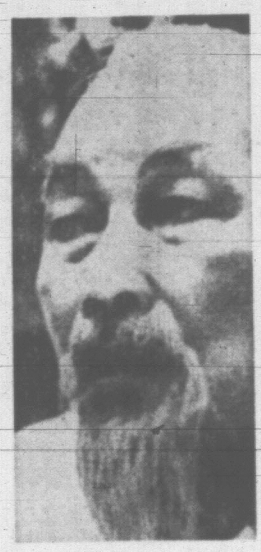

"But he will not talk under pressure and if necessary, he is prepared to fight to the bitter end. I got the impression he was very confident."

Asked whether Ho talked about Chinese support, Mrs. Pearl said: "I think we in the West place more emphasis on the Chinese role in this than the people of Viet Nam.

"What the president wants for North Viet Nam is peace and quiet and complete neutrality—with neither Soviet nor Chinese influence."

Mrs. Pearl, who spent five days in Hanoi and travelled outside the city, said she was horrified at the ravages of the U.S. air raids.

"The destruction is unbelievable. It is almost beyond comprehension that the Americans should be doing this."

MINH
. . . 'no pressure'

Mrs. Pearl said her opposition to the U.S. policy in Viet Nam does not mean she subscribes to "the Communist line" or that she is anti-American. She said there is too much tendency for anyone interested in peace to be labelled a Communist.

"My belief is that one only kills people, not ideas."

Describing an all-night trip into the country outside Hanoi, Mrs. Pearl said she and seven other delegates on the peace council trip left the capital at dusk in a heavily camouflaged five-car convoy. Members of the party wore dark clothing.

MEET RAID VICTIMS

They drove 150 miles south of Hanoi into Thanh Hoa province, where they saw bombed villages and met some survivors of the American air raids. They wore bandages but were not badly injured or mulitated.

"There was no question of the government trying to show us horrifying sights so that we would come back here and say 'stop it.' They just asked if we would be interested in seeing for ourselves the results of the bombing and in meeting some of the peasants."

Mrs. Pearl, who is married to a British businessman and has a married daughter, is a member of the Liberal party.

Mrs. Pearl, who came to Britain from Canada in 1934, is vice-chairman of the British branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, founded by the American social reformer Jane Addams, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931 and died in 1935.

Oops, Wrong Blaze Doused by Bomber

QUESNEL (CP)—Alex Davidson is one of the deadliest marksmen in the water bombing business.

Three times he guided his Canso water bomber over a blaze at the northeast arm of Quesnel Lake, and three times he scored direct hits on the fire with his red-dyed water.

Soon the fire was nothing more than a smoking heap of half-charred debris.

"Mission accomplished," he reported to his base.

On landing in another part of the lake, he was met by an irate lodge owner who said the water bomber had just doused hours of hard work. The lodge owner had a burning permit—and had spent several hours building the fire in an effort to get rid of unsightly scrub timber.

"It was rather a comedy of errors," a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said.

He said a spotter aircraft from Kamloops reported the fire. The call went to Prince George and Mr. Davidson loaded up his bomber and took off.

"Then we discovered it was a permit fire," said the official.

He added—a trifle wistfully—that the water drops were "very accurate."

"Very good drops indeed."

STEADY INCREASE

More Dairy Products Available in Peking

PEKING (Reuters) — About one-quarter of Peking's 6 million inhabitants now get milk on regular home delivery rounds, says the latest official report on the Chinese capital's dairy industry.

No figures for total consumption of dairy products are available, but the report says that 18 times more fresh milk is consumed each day now than in 1949 when the Communists came to power.

This represents a modest increase over figures issued in May last year, when the drink-more-milk drive here was given much - publicized new impetus by price cuts of up to 30 per cent on dairy products.

Fresh milk consumption was then put at 16 times more than in 1949 and about 180,000 families, roughly one-sixth of the city's population, were said to be buying milk regularly.

In addition to fresh milk, which sells here for 23 cents a quart, most food stores stock powdered and condensed milk, butter, cheese and yoghurt as well as ice cream.

The report says there are 30,000 dairy cows on farms in the outskirts of the capital this summer compared with 1,100 in 1949.

Pope Taking Rest

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI, apparently tired from overwork, has cancelled audiences for two weeks beginning next Monday while he takes a rest at the summer papal residence at Castel Grandolfo.

LEAPING PROTECTIVE WALL, Ferdinand, or whatever its name, startled spectators Sunday in Mexico City. Bull was lured back to the arena. No one was injured during the escape bid. (AP Wirephoto)

PSYCHOLOGIST SAYS

Guitar, Banjo, Harp, Anything; Faddists Sure to String Along

By TERRY IZZARD

Maestro — bring me my harp.

With this delicate instrument and mine dainty fingers I will woo away yon screaming youngsters and entrance them with the wondrous melodies of these magical strings.

This original translation of 1965 vintage psychology means:

The guitar could soon be on its way out and the harp on its way in.

It all depends on the pop groups of the future.

Should they perchance wear white sheets and halos then it's a fair bet the younger generation will do likewise.

Further, if they play harps and didgerydoos the modern set will follow suit.

In theory, at least, that's how the present trend is shaping up, according to Uvic psychologist, Dr. William Gaddes.

Commenting today on the increasing swing to guitar music, Dr. Gaddes said:

"All adolescents have fads and the guitar is the present one.

"As a result the guitar is IN. Next year it could be OUT."

Dr. Gaddes agreed that if a group calling themselves The Angels made a hit with harp music the youngsters would probably follow suit.

Said Dr. Gaddes: "In the '20's the banjo was all the rage. Ten years later there wasn't a banjo to be seen or heard."

Nevertheless, the guitar craze is still catching.

Chief buyers of the instrument—which can cost anything from $20 to $500—is the 12 to 17-age group.

The teen-age set bought more than 1,000,000 twang machines in 1964 on the North American continent alone.

In addition, they took extra lessons and one local music teacher has had to increase his guitar teaching staff from one to three this year.

What's in it for the youngsters?

According to the experts most of them play for their own amusement.

But all have a secret ambition at becoming famous like the Beatles or Elvis Presley.

To meet demand a new factory opened in Canada this year to produce guitars to supplement those already flowing in from the U.S. and Japan.

Around 22,000,000 swapped hands last year, along with 2,400,000 organs.

Eyes Popped As Jessie Relaxed

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Eyes popped and traffic halted Wednesday morning as a hippopotamus roamed the grassy plain by a busy bridge approach.

The truck was on a curve approaching a bridge over the Connecticut River when Jessie the hippo apparently decided to move to the outer side of the truck, shifting all the weight there and flipping the truck over on its side.

At first, Jessie stayed inside the toppled truck, but when mechanics attached chains and started to lift it by hoist with Jessie still inside, she saw her chance, butted her enormous head through the side and strolled out onto the highway.

Jessie turned out to be as friendly as could be and with gentle prodding, she moved over to the grassy area to relax while awaiting a new truck.

Delegate Apologizes

TORONTO (CP)—One delegate of the NDP national convention, David Middleton of Toronto, applauded when leader T. C. Douglas announced the death of Adlai Stevenson, U.S. chief delegate to the UN Wednesday.

The NDP leader paused and said: "I hope there will be no more demonstrations of bad taste of that kind."

Mr. Middleton, who has strongly condemned U.S. policies in Viet Nam during the convention, later apologized for "a totally unseemingly and shameful act on my part."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Elizabeth Weiman, age 12, of St. Catharines, Ont., Canada, for her question:

What is the Fata Morgana?

This baffling picture takes us over the Atlantic Ocean to the blue waters of the Mediterranean. But in order to see it with our own eyes we must be there in the right place and at the right time of the day and year. And even then we may miss it.

The Fata Morgana belongs in the wondrous world of illusions. It is a mirage created by different layers of air and hosts of sunbeams. One of the simplest mirages is the puddle that seems to lie ahead on a sunlit road. But like every mirage, the baffling picture disappears long before we reach the spot because it was never there.

The mirage on the road actually is a very complex effect of light and air. But compared with the Fata Morgana, it is simple. For the Fata Morgana is the most elaborate of all nature's various mirages. It occurs in several parts of the world, but its favorite stage is the narrow Strait of Messina that separates the toe of Italy from the island of Sicily.

Fairy-Like Town In Sky

The name of the famous mirage is as bewitching as its performance. Fata Morgana, alias Morgan le Fay, was a character in the legendary tales of King Arthur. She was a capricious witch who indulged her whims by playing impossible tricks of sorcery, even upon her brother, King Arthur. She was the Lady of the Lake who came at last to row King Arthur to his eternal rest on the mythical Isle of Avalon.

And the mirage called Fata Morgana is as full of mystery and trickery as the strange lady for whom it was named. When it appears, an impossible view of fairyland seems to rise from the sea. There are spires and towers and elaborate castles of weird and wonderful architecture—or so it seems. The fairy city shivers and shakes, grows tall and sinks down to a thin line on the beckoning horizon.

The fantastic mirage is put together from enlarged and twisted images of this real and down-to-earth shoreline. Different types of mirages are formed by different sets of conditions in the air. Several of these sets of conditions work together to create the fabulous hocus-pocus known as the Fata Morgana.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Ruth Townsend, age 12, of Dallas, N.C., for her question:

Were men or dinosaurs here first?

There are popular stories that may lead you to believe that our ancestors shared the world with the giant dinosaurs. But these are tall tales. They may be fun to hear about, but they are not true. For the last of the dinosaurs departed from this world long before the human family came to live here.

The dinosaur reptiles dominated the earth for more than 100 million years. There were perhaps as many different dinosaurs as there are sizeable animals today, and they came in an amazing variety of sizes and shapes. But about 60 million years ago their long reign came to an end, and all of them departed from the earth. Our human family did not arrive here until almost 60 million years after the dinosaurs had departed.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

This Game Really Thin

By JACK HUTTON

There's a new game fast becoming the rage across Canada that may supply a few chuckles some evening in the cottage or in the neighborhood restaurant.

It's known as the Thin Book Game—and the rules require only a sense of humor.

The trick is to think of imaginary volumes that would probably be the thinnest in your local library. For example, I might suggest How I Made My First Million by Jack Hutton.

The first volume I heard suggested was the Who's Who of Newfoundland. (Apologies to Newfie readers . . . it's all a joke, you know.)

To get you started I'd like to suggest a few others that could produce the thinnest library in town.

- How I Wrote My First Oratorio by Ringo Starr.
- Modern Parents' Guide to Loaning the Family Car . . . author unknown.
- Why I Like My Job by Prime Minister Pearson.
- Every Boy's Guide to Successful Politics by Nikita Khrushchev.
- Beauty Hints You'll Read Nowhere Else by Herman Munster.
- Breeding Better Beagles by President Lyndon Johnson.
- A Short Guide on How-to-Tip by Jack Benny.
- How I Owe It All to My Parents by Jack Lennon.
- That Wonderful Day the Beatles Got the MBE, compiled by the Retired Brigadier-Generals' Association of West Kensington.
- Songs We Have Sung for the Metropolitan Opera by the Animals.
- How I Keep My Figure by Robert Morley.
- All You Need to Know for a Happy Marriage by Eddie Fisher.

That's enough to get you started. I've used only well known names but you have far more inspiration in your own family, your relatives or your group of immediate friends. The only limit is your own imagination.

Let us know if you produce volumes that might amuse the rest of us. We'll have the thinnest library around.

I sometimes get so jealous I could bite my typewriter when I hear about summer plans of young Canadians just released from school. Here are a few to keep you up-to-date on what the rest of the country is doing.

Sixty Boy Scouts, representing all 10 provinces, will assist a Boy Scouts of America pavilion at the New York World's Fair for one-week stints during the summer. They'll also be visiting other parts of the U.S.

Several hundred Grade 10 and 11 students who may never have wandered more than 50 miles away from home will visit the homes of students in another province for several weeks this summer. Later on the host-student will return to the guest's home for a return visit.

Caribbean-Bound

But the most glamorous trip of all, it seems to me, will be that of three groups of Canadian Army cadets who will be training in Caribbean countries as part of a goodwill exchange program.

The countries involved are Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago. All, I can assure you, wonderful places to visit—even if you're drilling during the day.

Twenty-eight cadets will leave Canada July 18 for four weeks of training with the Jamaican Combined Cadet Force at Montego Bay, Jamaica.

A second party of 16 cadets leaves the same day to train with the Barbados Cadet Force in Bridgetown, Barbados. And within a few days 16 cadets will fly to Trinidad and Tobago to assist in setting up a cadet organization there.

Johnson Backs Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson strongly rejected Tuesday any idea that he might soon replace Dean Rusk as state secretary.

"He, Rusk, ranks first in the cabinet and he ranks first with me," the president told a questioner at a press conference.

MOSQUITOS LAY SIEGE TO CALGARY

CALGARY (CP)—The city's mosquito problem is "acute" after recent rains washed away chemical sprays, says parks superintendent Harry Boothman.

The mosquitos have interrupted backyard barbecues, chased children from playgrounds and made a game of golf sheer misery. Drug stores say demand for repellents is three times above normal.

Mr. Boothman described it as one of the worst mosquito years on record.

The city has an $8,000 mosquito control budget and uses two spray machines but needs mist sprayers such as those used in Edmonton, Regina and Medicine Hat, he said.

(Times News Services)

Late today or early Friday they plan to make public what should be the first close-up photograph of the unknown planet's surface.

It could indicate whether Mars harbors life, solving a mystery that has intrigued man for ages.

Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday night and its signals hinted at trouble in the camera's tape recorder.

But this morning, transmitting from beyond Mars en route to an orbit around the sun, the windmill-shaped, 575-pound spacecraft began relaying the first of a hoped-for score of photos.

Jubilant scientists at the jet propulsion laboratory, which built and controlled Mariner, said "the raw data is exactly what we expected."

Two hours after the start of signals 35 lines had been received, and one expert said a definite pattern was showing.

The program called for Mariner to take up to 21 pictures as it passed within 5,600 miles of Mars, store them on tape, then play them back starting today.

Tse pictures were planned to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes, showing objects as small as 1½ miles across.

The fly-by climaxed a 228-day, 325,000,000-mile curving voyage from earth.

At 6:02 a.m. PDT, an 85-foot dish antenna at Johannesburg, South Africa, caught the first picture signal 12 minutes after Mariner-4 launched it on a record trip from nearly 135 million miles deep in space.

Thus ended a night of agonizing suspense in which scientists had feared the probe's tape recorder might have failed.

Line by line, eight tiny pieces at a time, earth carefully collected the fantastically weak radio pulses that computes would turn into a photograph—a process so delicate that transmission of the first picture would take eight hours and 35 minutes to complete.

As many as 20 other photographs may follow between now and July 21.

Scientists expected to have picture No. 1 fully in hand by about 2:30 p.m. PDT today. Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said that "if it is good, it may be released late tonight."

Even without pictures, said JPL director Dr. William H. Pickering, the fabulous voyage of Mariner-4 to within 6,013 miles of Mars "is a magnificent scientific achievement" that should pave the way for an attempt to search for life on the surface of the baffling planet in 1971.

As it swung by on the picture-taking mission Wednesday, Mariner-4 also studied the martian atmosphere, its radiation fields and its gravity pull. However, Pickering said, it will take many weeks to completely study the information.

Mariner-4's first picture was believed to be a shot of elysium, an unusually bright, rather circular desert in the planet's northern hemisphere.

If the "cosmic eye" cut its planned 4,000-mile visual swath across the planet's mottled red face—"and we have no reason to believe it did not," said officials—picture No. 2 would show trivium charontis, a so-called "oasis" with six "canals" jutting from it.

Transmission of the second photograph, which may help scientists solve the 88-year-old mystery of the linear formations known as "canals," was scheduled to begin about 4:38 p.m., PDT, and finish by 1:03 a.m., PDT, Friday.

★ ★ ★

After a balky start because of a blank spot at the start of the tape, the signals began flowing smoothly across the cosmos from the world's first interplanetary television station. "Things look good," a JPL spokesman announced matter-of-factly.

The first three pictures were scheduled to be released between late tonight and late Friday.

As it beamed back its signals, Mariner-4 itself sped beyond Mars into an endless orbit of its own around the sun.

It will return to within 25-30 million miles of earth, perhaps close enough to re-establish radio contact with tracking stations in September, 1967.

Mariner keeps the pictures on tape just as videotape for television shows is stored. A timer starts radioing the data as a stream of digits received at tracking stations at Goldstone, Calif., Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. The data is relayed here for processing by computers.

"Mariner gave an additional cut-off signal showing the tape had been turned off," aid Pickering.

Scientists said this could have meant that the tape had gone around again—putting more pictures on top of earlier pictures in a sort of double exposure. The timing of the additional signals indicated two-thirds of the tape could have been thus ruined, leaving only six or seven of the hoped for 21 pictures.

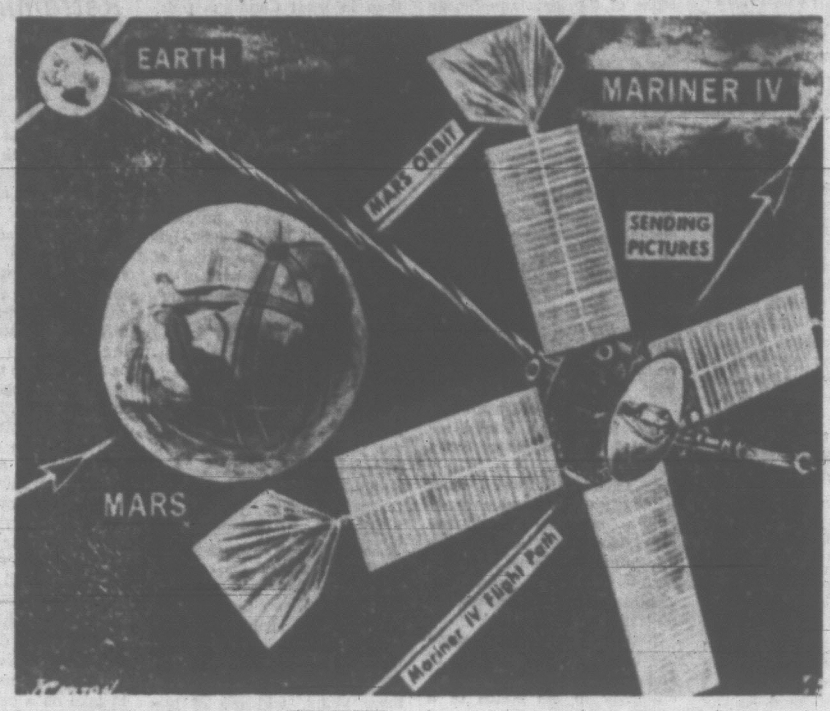

But another communications system aboard the ship indicated the tape functioned just as planned.

"We did indeed take some pictures," said Schneiderman. "But there was this indication that the picture-taking was not precisely as predicted."

Schneiderman said the tape was so arranged that if only a few pictures were obtained, they will be the first to be relayed to earth.

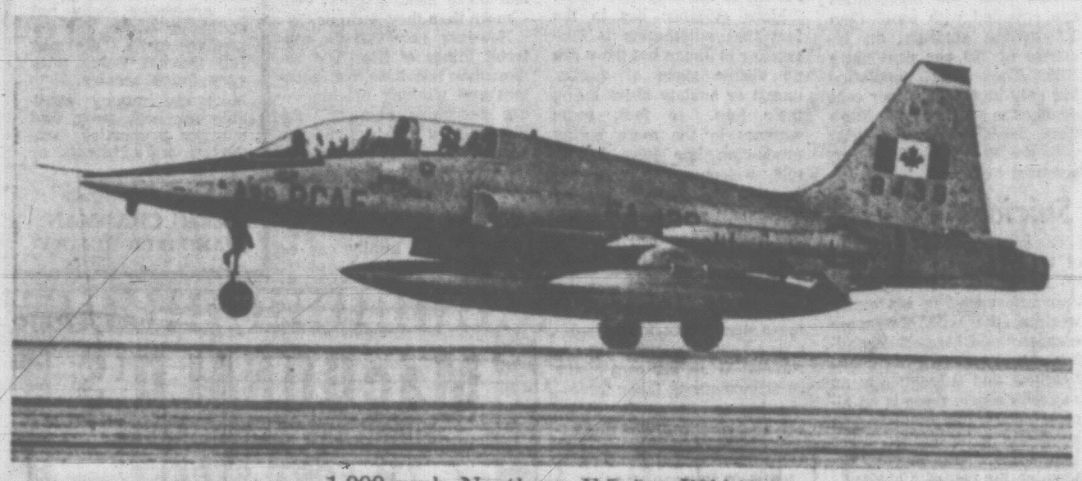

As Mariner disappeared around the white-capped south polar region, its radio signal waned and faded, giving what scientists said was valuable data on the Martian atmosphere, proving it could bend radio waves.

Scientists said this proves Mars has some atmosphere, something long believed by experts.

SKETCH OF MARINER 4 shows how the 575-pound satellite will send pictures from Mars to Earth. The satellite was launched last Nov. 28 and has travelled 325 million miles. It will take approximately eight hours and 35 minutes to transmit each of the pictures taken by the space probe.

1,000 mph Northrop F-5 for RCAF

$215 MILLION DEAL

Canada Buys Fighter-Bomber

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved purchase of the Northrop F-5 fighter-bomber for the Canadian Air Force, the defence department announced today.

It will be built to Canadian specifications and called the CF-5.

A statement by Defence Minister Hellyer said the multi-purpose aircraft will be used primarily in tactical support of ground forces, "and as such will be a new plane for a new role."

Mr. Hellyer later told a press onference that Canadair Ltd., Montreal, will build the airframes and the Orenda division of Hawker-Siddeley the engines.

Canadair will get about $80,000,000 of the total $215,000,000 program and Orenda $35,000,000.

Some $75,000,000 will be subcontracted to United States firms but, Mr. Hellyer said, Canada will get at least this much back through U.S. firms placing defence contracts in Canada.

Mr. Drury said the program will provide about 2,100 jobs during the four-year production program.

The first plane will come off the assembly line in about two years, the last in early 1970.

The Canadian version of the F-5 will have more powerful engines and equipment to refuel in flight. Most of them will be single-seat aircraft, but some will be two-seat machines to be used as trainers.

HAD PLANNED PURCHASE

The defence department earmarked $215,000,000 for 125 tactical aircraft in its five-year re-equipment program outlined in the latest defence white paper. This sum covers necessary spares and support equipment.

The announcement said that as the new CF-5s are received and squadrons formed, the squadrons will be incorporated into Mobile Command. This is the new command in the recent armed forces reorganization which will be responsible for maintaining combat-ready integrated land and tactical air elements, capable of rapid deployment in a wide range of contingencies.

"The CF-5's agility, weapons mix, speed, ease of maintenance and versatile conventional (non-nuclear) capability made this aircraft the logical selection for the new global-mobile role of the Canadian forces," the announcement said.

HAS TWO JETS

In its Canadian version, the Northrop plane will be powered by two jet engines, each with a thrust of 4,300 pounds.

CONG BADLY MAULS LARGE GOV'T FORCES

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas badly mauled two large government forces in widely separated attacks today on the eve of the arrival of U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Government losses were reported from "fairly heavy" in one engagement 33 miles north of Saigon and "moderate" in a battle 30 miles south of Da Nang. Two American advisers were reported killed and four injured in the fighting near Saigon.

Another 100,000 U.S. Troops Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military chiefs have recommended unanimously that the strength of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam be boosted to 179,000 men by the end of the year, it was learned today.

This would be more than 100,000 above the 75,000-man U.S. force now scheduled to be in South Viet Nam.

This recommendation by the joint chiefs of staff will be considered by the government in the light of what Defence Secretary Robert McNamara determines during his week-long inspection visit to Viet Nam. Mc. Namara left Wednesday night.

Sources told The Associated Press the joint chiefs would include the remainder of the 1st Infantry Division in the new projections for a buildup to meet growing Communist strength. One brigade of that division landed in Viet Nam this week after travelling from its home base at Fort Riley, Kan.

A buildup as big as 179,000 men could well bring at least a limited mobilization of reservists and national guardsmen to replace regular troops drawn into the growing conflict in Viet Nam.

The armed services, it was disclosed, are starting to gear up for such a possible muster of guardsmen and reservists.

They have submitted to defence officials tentative estimates totalling more than 200,000 citizen servicemen.

Victory Soon Expected By Viet Reds

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson said today the North Vietnamese declined to talk peace with his envoy, Harold Davies, because they think they are going to win the war against South Viet Nam.

Wilson told the House of Commons the Communist North Vietnamese are convinced "their prospects of victory are too imminent for it to be worth their while to forsake the battlefield for the conference table."

Davis, a deputy minister of pensions in the Labor government, returned Wednesday from a frustrating trip to Hanoi. He was denied an audience by President Ho Chi Minh or any other ranking member of the government.

Johnson to Attend Stevenson Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military, religious and state honors were planned today with the funeral services for United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

As the presidential jet plane bearing Stevenson's body was flying across the Atlantic, the White House announced plans for tributes to Stevenson, including memorial services at Washington's National Cathedral Friday, with President Johnson attending.

The cathedral services are scheduled for 11 a.m. EDT. A close friend of Stevenson, Judge Carl McGowan of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, will deliver the eulogy.

Officiating will be Dr. Richard Hall Graebel, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Stevenson's home town of Springfield, Ill.

The funeral plans, arranged by the family with government officials co-operating, call for Stevenson's body to lie in repose in the National Cathedral after its arrival late today until the services are completed there Friday.

The body will then be flown to Springfield to lie in state in the Illinois Capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Burial will be in Bloomington, Ill., Monday with a small private family service at the interment. (See stories Page 3.)

Not Guilty Plea To Be Entered

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis, the ex-ministerial aide accused of offering a $20,000 bribe in the Rivard affair, appeared briefly in court today and was remanded until July 29.

He entered the plea through counsel Lou Assaly of Ottawa during a brief court appearance after his arrest in Montreal Wednesday night and booking here on charges arising out of the Dorion report.

Magistrate L. A. Sherwood set July 29 as the date for preliminary hearing.

Denis, a 32-year-old lawyer who was executive assistant to then immigration minister Tremblay at the time of the alleged offences, was, in the half-filled court room for barely five minutes.

LAWYER COMMENTS

Mr. Assaly, a veteran Ottawa criminal lawyer, told Magistrate Sherwood Mr. Denis "in all likelihood" will choose trial by judge and jury when he appears from preliminary hearing.

The defence elects the trial method at this stage of the proceedings even though the preliminary hearing could quash the charges and result in no trial at all.

Mr. Assaly told The Canadian Press in an interview that he had been "prepared to make an absolute plea and election this morning" but Magistrate Sherwood is about to start his vacation "and would have been seized with the case."

To avoid the delay Mr. Assaly "only indicated my client's intention to plead not guilty and that we will likely elect trial by judge and jury."

Outside the court, Mr. Assaly told reporters he will consider between now and July 29 whether to seek a change of venue on grounds it would be difficult to recruit 12 fluently-bilingual jurors in this city. In

West Shipyards Guaranteed Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Government shipbuilding contracts will be put up for national competition but with a certain percentage of work guaranteed for British Columbia for five years, it was learned reliably today.

The new policy, expected to be announced formally next week, will apply to all government-purchased ships including naval and transport department construction.

Informants said that because it would be uneconomical to build west-coast ferries on the east coast, British Columbia will consequently always be guaranteed a certain amount of shipyard work.

The special five-year gurantee has been given to British Columbia because its labor costs are higher than in east coast and St. Lawrence River shipyards.

FOUR WOUNDED IN BUTTOCKS

Shotgun Halts Garden Raid

PENTICTON (CP) — Four juveniles bent on stealing from a backyard vegetable patch were shot in the buttocks by the owner, police disclosed.

The juveniles were treated in a hospital and later released.

RCMP said that on the advice of city solicitor F. H. Herbert, no charges would be laid.

Frank Czeczei, 74, told police that when he discovered the juveniles in his garden Tuesday night he ordered them to leave. They refused to do so.

Czeczei said he fired a warning shot in the air with his shotgun because he couldn't chase them. He has a wooden leg.

He said he fired a second shot. The spray of shotgun pellets struck all four juveniles, police said.

It was the second recent incident in B.C. involving youths being shot.

Two weeks ago a White Rock trailer camp operator who had been beaten by a gang of youths the previous night shot two youths in the leg when a gang of 50 advanced on him.

Everett Dick said he, too, had fired a warning shot but it was ignored. The wounded youths were not seriously hurt.

Seven of the youths later were charged with interfering with a camp owner and his property.

SPIRIT WAS LIVELY, NOT ECUMENICAL

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) The Clark County sheriff's office sent several deputies Tuesday night to break up a bat-swinging free-for-all between two softball teams.

One man was in hospital with a possible concussion. Another player was treated at the hospital and released.

Deputies said the fight started over an umpire's decision during a game between teams from the Lutheran Inner Mission and Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were sharply lower in oilseeds, slightly lower in rye, and firm in feed grains in moderate trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

All oilseed contracts traded dropped to new seasonal lows, influenced by a Dominion Bureau of Statistics report that revised upward the estimates of 1964 flax and rapeseed production. There was modest export interest.

Rye was irregular, and dipped to establish or equal seasonal lows. It was firmer toward the close.

Amateur Moguls To Reconsider Peter's Platter

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) —The New Zealand Amateur Athletic Association is to reconsider a decision to rescind Peter Snell's amateur status if he allows the record "Wait for me, Peter" to be sold or advertised.

Proceeds from the record, which has commentaries on his record-breaking runs in the 1960 Rome Olympics and in New Zealand, were to go to the Peter Snell Youth Village.

Snell, former world record-holder for the mile, won the 800 metres in Rome and the 800 and 1,500 metres at the Tokyo Olympics.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1965 —PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

It just may be that attached to your home for quarters, rations and record player outlets is a carefree gossoon who, when the Grade 12 university course results are announced, is going to be laughing on the other side of his face.

If he's weak in all or most subjects, disregard his howls and insist that young stupid repeat the year, a procedure which will cost him nothing but hard work if he's under 19 when school opens in September.

If he's past that age, and can claim no such mitigating circumstance as illness or unavoidable interruption of studies during his first crack at junior matric, a fee of $180 will be charged for his second go-round.

Should he have failed only one subject, however, there's a loophole worth investigating. If your hopeful can wiggle through it, he may save his year.

★ ★ ★

The gimmick is to apply for enrollment in the education department's correspondence school, a mail-order institution which I've heard described as the finest of its sort in Canada.

If he's accepted—and that will depend on the general state of his credits—he gets a second chance at the ailing subject for a $15 tariff.

At this point, let me warn that these courses are not designed for coasters or seat-warmers. They require application, concentration, and a touch of desperation on the student's part.

His course will consist of 20 lessons, called papers, each of which will occupy him for from five to ten hours. Three tests are spaced along the route.

If successful, he patches his grade 12 record with a pass. He can even be recommended.

Another warning. If your boy or girl is already aware of a badly-failed subject, it might be as well not to delay application until the results come out. For any considering that route, deadline for university admission applications is Aug. 16, registration day is Sept. 14, and winter session lectures commence Sept. 20.

While senior matriculation also provides the slightly-failed grade-twelver with a chance to complete first year university and make up his missing credits, I hesitate to recommend it.

Except to note that the junking of grade 12 supplemental examinations made the present cumbersome salvage apparatus necessary, I won't dreary your ears on that subject.

I wish most heartily, though, that our University of Victoria and its mainland opposite numbers would, or could, save everyone a great deal of fuss and bother by setting their own entrance examinations.

Were they privately endowed rather than government wards under the education department thumb, I have little doubt they'd be doing so today.

Under the present setup, university seems to be regarded as an extension of the public school system . . . an error which we can but hope will soon be abandoned.

Revised channelling of courses and the healthy new stress on vocational training partially compensate for this curious refusal to make a high school certificate a fully respectable ticket of entry into the working world.

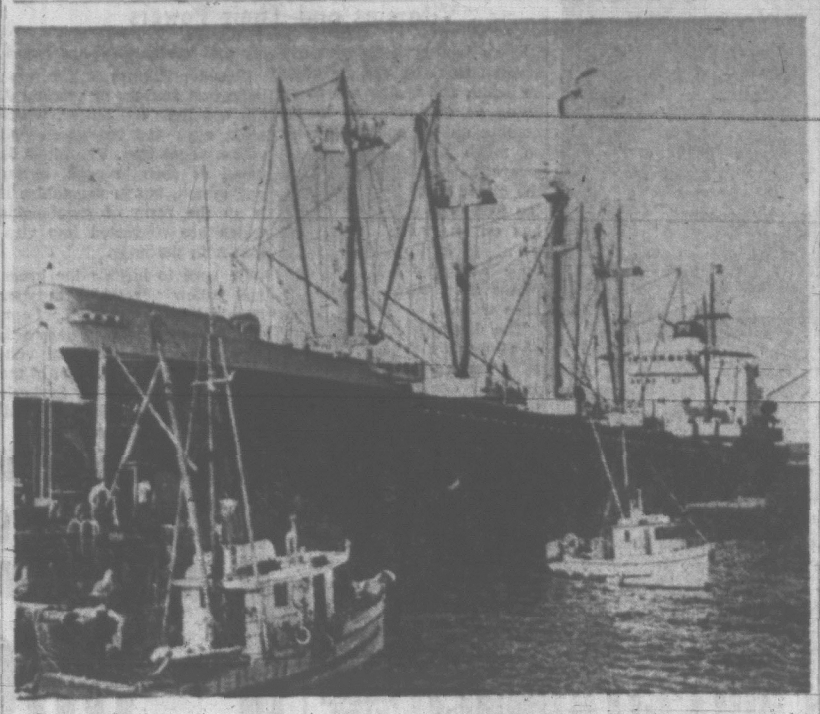

But only to a degree. My impression is that in the eyes of our top educators, the high school is still regarded primarily as a recruiting ground for the university.

That concept, I suggest, is over-ripé for dropping.

Food Stall Needs Contributions

Contributions to Victoria's Surplus Food Stall are still poor and officials fear there won't be enough to provide for the 155 welfare families by Saturday.

Eagles lodge members will be picking up donations to the stall, 732 Cormorant Street, Saturday morning. Donors should call Mrs. E. E. Harper at 658-8177.

Moerdyk was specially constructed for North Pacific cargoes.

POLICE SHELVE PROPOSAL FOR WHIRLY EYE-IN-SKY

The RCMP Highway Patrol has decided against extensive use of helicopters for spotting freeway speeders "for the moment."

"But I think they have an open mind about their use in the future," Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Wednesday.

He was commenting on a report that the Ontario Provincial Police is testing the use of aircraft to spot highway speeders.

Mr. Bonner said the RCMP under his jurisdiction made lengthy experiments last year with helicopters patrolling mainland highways but they came to the opinion "that helicopter surveillance ought not to occupy a permanent place in the patrols — for the moment."

Merger Details Open to Study

Details of the first regional district in B.C.—embracing the capital and environs—went to Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee today.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell wrote to the mayor, reeves and councils of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Central Saanich and Sidney.

Also involved are elected representatives to earlier discussions on joint services, including the unorganized territories to the west, and the North Saanich area on the tip of Saanich Peninsula. Boundaries would be those of school districts 61, 62 and 63.

It was understood that letters patent covering the functions of a regional district were also suggested by the minister.

NEGOTIATIONS

Mr. Campbell has stated that policy in the matter of drawing up letters patent would be to negotiate each with the municipality involved.

It is also up to individual municipalities to declare their participation or to opt out of the district for particular functions.

For example, Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay could agree to joint participation in health services with Esquimalt remaining apart.

Full details of Mr. Campbell's letter were not to be made public until after the intermunicipal committee meeting, set for 3 p.m.

The committee may deal with the matter by appointing a subcommittee to study proposals before a recommendation to the councils is evolved.

TWO INDEPENDENTS

Not all the organized areas in the capital region belong to intermunicipal committee. Sidney and Central Saanich remain independent, although Sidney has applied to join the committee.

Functions of a regional district likely to be considered early in the capital area include sewers, transit operations, garbage disposal, water distribution, hospital capital costs, community planning, parks, and air pollution.

Floating Fridge Arrives

By RON SUDLOW
Times Marine Reporter

A floating refrigerator arrived today at Victoria's Ogden Point docks.

She is the Moerdyk, a new Holland-America Line freighter which has reached the half-way point of her maiden voyage.

The vessel, which has refrigerated holds specially constructed for cargoes from the North Pacific coast, was due to leave here for Vancouver early this evening.

Moerdyk arrived one day ahead of schedule and her visit was brief.

But she loaded several cases of locally-grown loganberries which are destined for Europe.

The Dutch vessel, launched only last Dec. 1, will proceed to New Westminster and Vancouver to take on plywood and frozen products such as fish.

STAGE SETTINGS

Most unique part of her cargo will be the stage settings of the Royal London Ballet to be loaded next week when the company completes its Canadian tour.

Total refrigerated capacity of the closed shelter-deck type vessel is 135,170 cu. feet. Overall cargo space is 620,050 cu. feet.

The 11,127-ton freighter left for North America June 9 from Rotterdam where she was built. The ship carries a crew of 45 and has an overall length of 546 feet.

She replaces the 10,243-ton Amsteldyk which churned away from Ogden Point for the last time this spring, headed for the breakers in the U.S.

Musical Airmen Appearing Here

The first showing in Canada of The NORAD Cavalcade of Music is scheduled for presentation in Victoria August 22.

The musical extravaganza will feature a military style band, a Dixieland Group, a "Big Band" (Glenn Miller type) and a score of individual artists.

Ambulance Row Taken To Cabinet

While the provincial cabinet was in session today two NDP MLAs from the lower mainland took up position outside the closed chamber intent on demanding a province-wide subsidy and the resignation of Health Minister Eric Martin.

David Barrett (NDP—Dewdney) and Rae Eddie (NDP—New Westminster) arrived for a last-ditch attempt to persuade the cabinet to give at least a temporary grant towards maintenance of a subsidized ambulance service in Burnaby and New Westminster.

The Metropolitan Ambulance Company's subsidies from the two municipalities ended Wednesday night which leaves them without an emergency ambulance service during nighttime hours. Vancouver City, which faces the same prospect, announced it will continue the subsidy until the end of this month.

All three councils have been agitating for provincial grants to replace municipal subsidies which have climbed to about $150,000 a year.

"The first thing we want is (Health Minister) Eric Martin's resignation," said Mr. Barrett. "He ducked out of town because he knew this issue was coming up. He's incompetent."

The two said they also would buttonhole the cabinet ministers after their meeting to press for an "immediate $400,000 grant to provide a province-wide subsidized ambulance service."

CONDUCTED TOURS of Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan aimed at visitors from that province or who live on the Saskatchewan River, for which the warship is named, will begin Sunday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and will continue the following two Sundays. Cameras will be allowed aboard so visitors can take home personal souvenirs of their visit. Victorians will be welcomed too, says the navy. Saskatchewan will be at an HMC Dockyard jetty.

Murdered Teen-Ager Sexually Assaulted

Another Judge To Be Named For Victoria

Attorney-General Robert Bonner will appoint a second full-time magistrate for Victoria in a few weeks.

"That's a matter under consideration now," he confirmed Wednesday.

"I anticipate an early decision."

The addition will make Victoria the second multiple-magistrate district in the province. Vancouver has had more than one magistrate for several years.

"Victoria would have been a multiple-magistrate district some years ago but for the fact that the area was divided into several (municipal) jurisdictions," said Mr. Bonner.

Mr. Bonner said there would be no cutback in the magistrates provided for the outside areas here although the new appointment would be an addition to the "metropolitan Victoria" magisterial services.

NO 'OUTSIDE' CUTS

"The emphasis presently and for the future is to combine some of the scattered functions in a central magistrate's court for the purpose of greater efficiency.

"Victoria is taking an important step by providing larger facilities which are much improved from the old facilities which were not satisfactory," he said.

Mr. Bonner was referring to current construction of a magistrate's court building alongside the city police station, which is being renovated. The new building will provide two court rooms.

Man Admits Assaulting Infant Son

A 21-year-old father was remanded for a psychiatric and pre-sentence report after he pleaded guilty Wednesday to assaulting his two and one-half months old son.

Howard Jones, 944 Southgate, will be sentenced July 22 in city court for the offence.

Detective Lorne Johnson said Jones's baby son was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by his grandmother July 2 suffering from bad facial injuries. The child is still in hospital for observation.

Det. Johnson said the father told him he had changed the baby twice that day and each time the child again soiled his diaper.

Jones told the policeman he slapped the child and later took the baby to his mother-in-law. She later brought the child to hospital.

Pathologist on Stand In Freschi Hearing

Dr. McNeely, pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital, said he based his opinion on his experience gained in doing post-mortem examinations on about 2,000 women during his medical career.

Dr. McNeely said Susan's death was caused by a "massive blow" that split the base of her skull from ear to ear. He said the skull fracture caused tremendous bleeding.

Another witness this morning was Tom Goldie, 25 Knollwood, who said he saw a Hillman car parked on Atkins Road on the night Susan was killed.

Her body was found next day in woods a short distance from Atkins Road.

Mr. Goldie said the car was similar to one shown in a photograph entered as an exhibit in the case. Under cross-examination by defence counsel Alan Bigelow, he said his impression of the car he saw on Atkins Road was that it was solid grey in color. He agreed that the photo in exhibit showed a two-tone car.

Wednesday afternon Kenneth Cleghorn, 4118 Glenwood, testified that he once owned a 1956 Hillman but sold it earlier this year to Mrs. Lillian Robinson, wife of the accused, for $125.

He said the car had a broken bumper and he had tied it up with a length of rope. He said the rope was on the car when he sold it.

IDENTICAL ROPE

Cleghorn was shown the rope that was used to tie Susan's wrists. He said it was identical to the one that was on his car.

Mr. Cleghorn, a one-time sailor, said he had tied the rope in a way that left a distinctive kink in it. Under cross-examination by Mr. Bigelow he agreed that another persons could have made a similar hitch on a rope and it would have left the same sort of kink.

Mr. Cleghorn said the rope on his car had been used to tie up a bumper that had sharp edges. He agreed with Mr. Bigelow that the rope that is an exhibit in the case did not have any cut fibres.

Corporal Tony Prokop of the RCMP Crime Detection Laboratory in Vancouver, testified he examined both the rope and the car bumper.

He said he tied the rope around the bumper and found that certain kinks in the rope fitted into place.

Two Royal Canadian Navy cadets from HMCS Venture, gave evidence that on the evening of May 11 they hitched a ride with Robinson in his car.

HEADED BACK

John Megson and Jack Koul said Robinson dropped them off at the Six Mile House beer parlor. Koull said that Robinson reversed his car and headed back for the city after letting them off.

George Laak, manager of the Half-Way House, 856 Esquimalt Road, said Robinson had a contract to clean the beer parlor.

Mr. Laak said Robinson was at the beer parlor cleaning up at his usual time of 6:30 p.m. on May 11. Mr. Laak said he usually left before 7:30 but on that night he did not see him go and couldn't say at what time he went away.

Launching Delayed

Launching of the hydrofoil H.S. Victoria has been set back nine days but company officials still plan to begin Victoria-Seattle service Sept. 11.

Duane Acheson, director of sales and promotion for Northwest Hydrofoil Lines Inc., said the delay was anticipated and will not affect the completion date.

The hydrofoil is being finished at Maryland Shipbuilding Co., Baltimore, Md. It was to be launched Tuesday.

Following its launch the Victoria will undergo trials in Chesapeake Bay and then begin a two-month fall season on the Seattle-Victoria run.

The company then plans to re-locate its vessel in the Hawaiian Islands for the winter and begin its full season of service here in 1966.

The craft will seat 75 passengers in an aircraft-type cabin and will cover the 72 miles between here and Seattle at speeds of 40-50 knots.

NOMINATION PAPERS READY ON MONDAY

Official notice of an Aug. 12 civic byelection will be published at the weekend, allowing nomination papers to be available Monday, Victoria clerk M. F. Hunter said today.

Nomination day was set Tuesday for Aug. 2, giving candidates two weeks to file papers.

A council vacancy occurred with the death of Ald. Austin I. Curtis, whose term would not have expired until December, 1966.

Four Cadets Injured When Car Hits Truck

Injured but in good condition are:

William F. Murray, 19, of Vancouver, a Regular Officer Training Plan cadet from UBC who suffered head injuries and fractures to both ankles;

Brian L. Mersereau, 19, of McAdam, N.B., a University of New Brunswick student and ROTP cadet who received minor lacerations, and,

New Maps Available

Four new aeromagnetic maps, of interest to prospectors, geologists and mining engineers, will go on sale July 17, the B.C. Mines Department announced today. The maps cost 25 cents each and outline magnet tracings of the Revelstoke, Camborne, Illecillewaet and Mount Revelstoke area.

PAVILION LACKS POLL SUPPORT

No votes were sent in overnight on behalf of the English-type pier suggested for Clover Point, although gains were shown in the three other categories, led substantially by a sports stadium complex.

The complex now has 338 votes; a saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay has 145 votes; a planetarium has 77 votes and the pavilion stands with 40.

WHICH ONE?

The centennial committee has narrowed down to four the number of projects still in the running.

To assist the committee in finding out the preference* of the public The Times will run the following ballot daily until the end of the month when final decision will be made.

These are the four projects:

1. Planetarium ☐
2. Stadium complex with provision for immediate or future construction of indoor sports facilities ☐
3. Glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point ☐
4. Outdoor saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay ☐

Mariner Begins Sending Mars Picture

(Times News Services)

Late today or early Friday they plan to make public what should be the first close-up photograph of the unknown planet's surface.

It could indicate whether Mars harbors life, solving a mystery that has intrigued man for ages.

Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday night and its signals hinted at trouble in the camera's tape recorder.

But this morning, transmitting from beyond Mars en route to an orbit around the sun, the windmill-shaped, 575-pound spacecraft began relaying the first of a hoped-for score of photos.

Jubilant scientists at the jet propulsion laboratory, which built and controlled Mariner, said "the raw data is exactly what we expected."

Two hours after the start of signals 35 lines had been received, and one expert said a definite pattern was showing.

The program called for Mariner to take up to 21 pictures as it passed within 5,600 miles of Mars, store them on tape, then play them back starting today.

The pictures were planned to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes, showing objects as small as 1½ miles across.

The fly-by climaxed a 228-day, 325,000,000-mile curving voyage from earth.

At 6:02 a.m. PDT, an 85-foot dish antenna at Johannesburg, South Africa, caught the first picture signal 12 minutes after Mariner-4 launched it on a record trip from nearly 135 million miles deep in space.

Thus ended a night of agonizing suspense in which scientists had feared the probe's tape recorder might have failed.

Line by line, eight tiny pieces at a time, earth carefully collected the fantastically weak radio pulses that computers would turn into a photograph—a process so delicate that transmission of the first picture would take eight hours and 35 minutes to complete.

As many as 20 other photographs may follow between now and July 24.

Scientists expected to have picture No. 1 fully in hand by about 2:30 p.m. PDT today. Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said that "if it is good, it may be released late tonight."

Even without pictures, said JPL director Dr. William H. Pickering, the fabulous voyage of Mariner-4 to within 6,013 miles of Mars "is a magnificent scientific achievement" that should pave the way for an attempt to search for life on the surface of the baffling planet in 1971.

As it swung by on the picture-taking mission Wednesday, Mariner-4 also studied the martian atmosphere, its radiation fields and its gravity pull. However, Pickering said, it will take many weeks to completely study the information.

Mariner-4's first picture was believed to be a shot of elysium, an unusually bright, rather circular desert in the planet's northern hemisphere.

If the "cosmic eye" cut its planned 4,000-mile visual swath across the planet's mottled red face—"and we have no reason to believe it did not," said officials—picture No. 2 would show trivium charontis, a so-called "oasis" with six "canals" jutting from it.

Transmission of the second photograph, which may help scientists solve the 88-year-old mystery of the linear formations known as "canals," was scheduled to begin about 4:28 p.m., PDT, and finish by 1:03 a.m., PDT, Friday.

★ ★ ★

After a balky start because of a blank spot at the start of the tape, the signals began flowing smoothly across the cosmos from the world's first interplanetary television station. "Things look good," a JPL spokesman announced matter-of-factly.

The first three pictures were scheduled to be released between late tonight and late Friday.

As it beamed back its signals, Mariner-4 itself sped beyond Mars into an endless orbit of its own around the sun.

It will return to within 25-30 million miles of earth, perhaps close enough to re-establish radio contact with tracking stations in September, 1967.

Mariner keeps the pictures on tape just as videotape for television shows is stored. A timer starts radioing the data as a stream of digits received at tracking stations at Goldstone, Calif., Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. The data is relayed here for processing by computers.

"Mariner gave an additional cut-off signal showing the tape had been turned off," aid Pickering.

Scientists said this could have meant that the tape had gone around again—putting more pictures on top of earlier pictures in a sort of double exposure. The timing of the additional signals indicated two-thirds of the tape could have been thus ruined, leaving only six or seven of the hoped for 21 pictures.

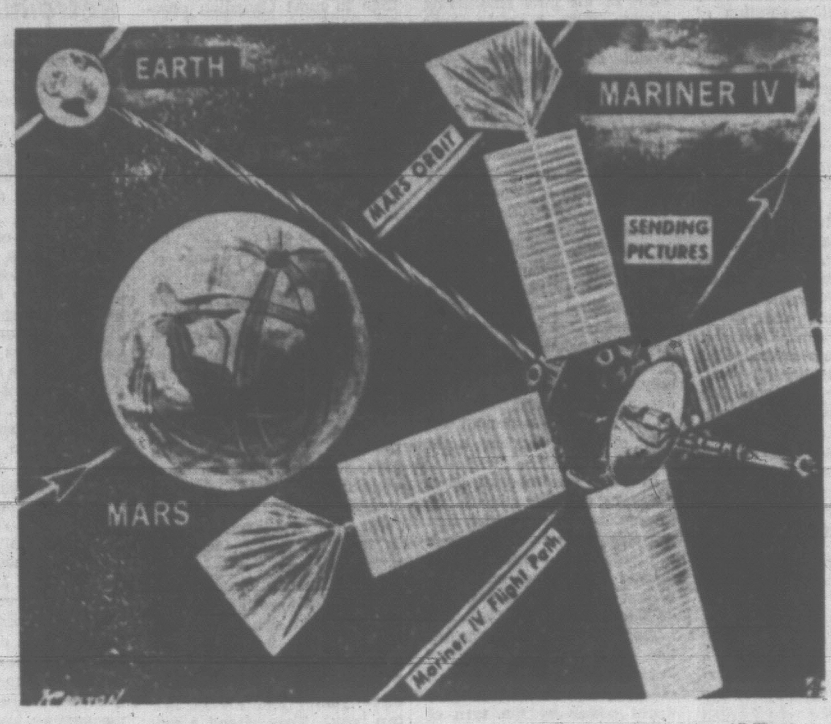

But another communications system aboard the ship indicated the tape functioned just as planned.

"We did indeed take some pictures," said Schneiderman. "But there was this indication that the picture-taking was not precisely as predicted."

Schneiderman said the tape was so arranged that if only a few pictures were obtained, they will be the first to be relayed to earth.

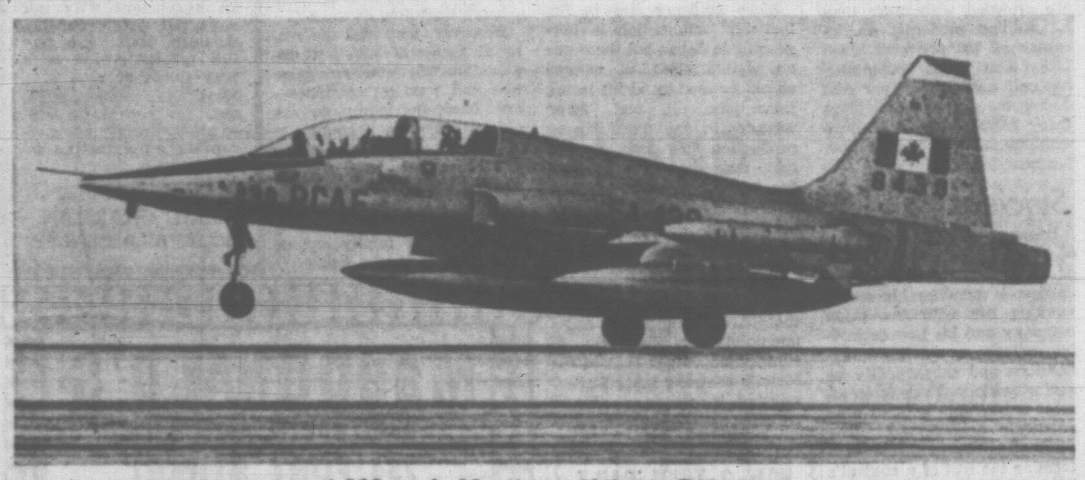

As Mariner disappeared around the white-capped south polar region, its radio signal waned and faded, giving what scientists said was valuable data on the Martian atmosphere, proving it could bend radio waves.

Scientists said this proves Mars has some atmosphere, something long believed by experts.

SKETCH OF MARINER 4 shows how the 575-pound satellite is sending pictures from Mars to Earth. The satellite was launched last Nov. 28 and has travelled 325 million miles. It will take approximately eight hours and 35 minutes to transmit each of the pictures taken by the space probe.

Denis to Fight Bribery Charge

Not Guilty Plea To Be Entered

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis, the ex-ministerial aide accused of offering a $20,000 bribe in the Rivard affair, appeared briefly in court today and was remanded until July 29.

He entered the plea through counsel Lou Assaly of Ottawa during a brief court appearance after his arrest in Montreal Wednesday night and booking here on charges arising out of the Dorion report.

Magistrate L. A. Sherwood set July 29 as the date for preliminary hearing.

Denis, a 32-year-old lawyer who was executive assistant to then immigration minister Tremblay at the time of the alleged offences, was in the half-filled court room for barely five minutes.

LAWYER COMMENTS

Mr. Assaly, a veteran Ottawa criminal lawyer, told Magistrate Sherwood Mr. Denis "in all likelihood" will choose trial by judge and jury when he appears from preliminary hearing.

The defence elects the trial method at this stage of the proceedings even though the preliminary hearing could quash the charges and result in no trial at all.

Mr. Assaly told The Canadian Press in an interview that he had been "prepared to make an absolute plea and election this morning" but Magistrate Sherwood is about to start his vacation "and would have been seized with the case."

To avoid the delay Mr. Assaly "only indicated my client's intention to plead not guilty and that we will likely elect trial by judge and jury."

Outside the court, Mr. Assaly told reporters he will consider between now and July 29 whether to seek a change of venue on grounds it would be difficult to recruit 12 fluently-bilingual jurors in this city. In

$215 MILLION DEAL

Canada Buys Fighter-Bomber

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved purchase of the U.S. Northrop F-5 fighter-bomber for the Canadian Air Force, the defence department announced today.

It will be built to Canadian specifications and called the CF-5.

A statement by Defence Minister Hellyer said the multi-purpose aircraft will be used primarily in tactical support of ground forces, "and as such will be a new plane for a new role."

Mr. Hellyer later told a press conference that Canadair Ltd., Montreal, will build the airframes and the Orenda division of Hawker-Siddeley the engines.

Canadair will get about $80,000,000 of the total $215,000,000 program and Orenda $35,000,000.

Some $75,000,000 will be subcontracted to United States firms but, Mr. Hellyer said, Canada will get at least this much back through U.S. firms placing defence contracts in Canada.

Mr. Drury said the program will provide about 2,100 jobs during the four-year production program.

The first plane will come off the assembly line in about two years, the last in early 1970.

The Canadian version of the F-5 will have more powerful engines and equipment to refuel in flight. Most of them will be single-seat aircraft, but some will be two-seat machines to be used as trainers.

HAD PLANNED PURCHASE

The defence department earmarked $215,000,000 for 125 tactical aircraft in its five-year re-equipment program outlined in the latest defence white paper. This sum covers necessary spares and support equipment.

The announcement said that as the new CF-5s are received and squadrons formed, the squadrons will be incorporated into Mobile Command. This is the new command in the recent armed forces reorganization which will be responsible for maintaining combat-ready integrated land and tactical air elements, capable of rapid deployment in a wide range of contingencies.

"The CF-5's agility, weapons mix, speed, ease of maintenance and versatile conventional (non-nuclear) capability made this aircraft the logical selection for the new global-mobile role of the Canadian forces," the announcement said.

HAS TWO JETS

In its Canadian version, the Northrop plane will be powered by two jet engines, each with a thrust of 4,300 pounds.

CONG BADLY MAULS LARGE GOV'T FORCES

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas badly mauled two large government forces in widely separated attacks today on the eve of the arrival of U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Government losses were reported from "fairly heavy" in one engagement 33 miles north of Saigon and "moderate" in a battle 30 miles south of Da Nang. Two American advisers were reported killed and four injured in the fighting near Saigon.

Another 100,000 U.S. Troops Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military chiefs have recommended unanimously that the strength of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam be boosted to 179,000 men by the end of the year, it was learned today.

This would be more than 100,000 above the 75,000-man U.S. force now scheduled to be in South Viet Nam.

This recommendation by the joint chiefs of staff will be considered by the government in the light of what Defence Secretary Robert McNamara determines during his week-long inspection visit to Viet Nam. McNamara left Wednesday night.

Sources told The Associated Press the joint chiefs would include the remainder of the 1st Infantry Division in the new projections for a buildup to meet growing Communist strength. One brigade of that division landed in Viet Nam this week after travelling from its home base at Fort Riley, Kan.

A buildup as big as 179,000 men could well bring at least a limited mobilization of reservists and national guardsmen to replace regular troops drawn into the growing conflict in Viet Nam.

The armed services, it was disclosed, are starting to gear up for such a possible muster of guardsmen and reservists.

They have submitted to defence officials tentative estimates totalling more than 200,000 citizen servicemen.

Victory Soon Expected By Viet Reds

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson said today the North Vietnamese declined to talk peace with his envoy, Harold Davies, because they think they are going to win the war against South Viet Nam.

Wilson told the House of Commons the Communist North Vietnamese are convinced "their prospects of victory are too imminent for it to be worth their while to forsake the battlefield for the conference table."

Davis, a deputy minister of pensions in the Labor government, returned Wednesday from a frustrating trip to Hanoi. He was denied an audience by President Ho Chi Minh or any other ranking member of the government.

Harriman Talks With Kosygin

Harriman declined to say later whether Viet Nam was discussed, but belief was expressed in diplomatic quarters that it was the main topic.

Johnson to Attend Stevenson Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military, religious and state honors were planned today with the funeral services for United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

As the presidential jet plane bearing Stevenson's body was flying across the Atlantic, the White House announced plans for tributes to Stevenson, including memorial services at Washington's National Cathedral Friday, with President Johnson attending.

The cathedral services are scheduled for 11 a.m. EDT. A close friend of Stevenson, Judge Carl McGowan of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, will deliver the eulogy.

Officiating will be Dr. Richard Hall Graebel, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Stevenson's home town of Springfield, Ill.

The funeral plans, arranged by the family with government officials co-operating, call for Stevenson's body to lie in repose in the National Cathedral after its arrival late today until the services are completed there Friday.

The body will then be flown to Springfield to lie in state in the Illinois Capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Burial will be in Bloomington, Ill., Monday with a small private family service at the interment. (See stories Page 3.)

WIRE BRIEFS

War on 'Pep Pills'

Nicklaus Takes Lead

Appeal Rejected

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeals today rejected the appeal of Antonio Talbot, roads minister in Quebec's former Union Nationale government, from his conviction on a charge of influence-peddling involving an amount of $47,000.

West Shipyards Guaranteed Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Government shipbuilding contracts will be put up for national competition but with a certain percentage of work guaranteed for British Columbia for five years, it was learned reliably today.

The new policy, expected to be announced formally next week, will apply to all government-purchased ships including naval and transport department construction.

Informants said that because it would be uneconomical to build west-coast ferries on the east coast, British Columbia will consequently always be guaranteed a certain amount of shipyard work.

The special five-year gurantee has been given to British Columbia because its labor costs are higher than in east coast and St. Lawrence River shipyards.

FOUR WOUNDED IN BUTTOCKS

Shotgun Halts Garden Raid

PENTICTON (CP) — Four juveniles bent on stealing from a backyard vegetable patch were shot in the buttocks by the owner, police disclosed.

The juveniles were treated in a hospital and later released.

RCMP said that on the advice of city solicitor F. H. Herbert no charges would be laid.

Frank Czeczei, 74, told police that when he discovered the juveniles in his garden Tuesday night he ordered them to leave. They refused to do so.

Czeczei said he fired a warning shot in the air with his shotgun because he couldn't chase them. He has a wooden leg.

He said he fired a second shot. The spray of shotgun pellets struck all four juveniles, police said.

It was the second recent incident in B.C. involving youths being shot.

Two weeks ago a White Rock trailer camp operator who had been beaten by a gang of youths the previous night shot two youths in the leg when a gang of 50 advanced on him.

Everett Dick said he, too, had fired a warning shot but it was ignored. The wounded youths were not seriously hurt.

Seven of the youths later were charged with interfering with a camp owner and his property.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

This week a spelling error saved a man from jail. Brian Watson, 421 Durban appeared in court on an impaired charge. He has had two previous convictions and as a third-time offender jail appeared a sure thing, if he were convicted.

Well, he was. But in the original charge Brian was spelled Brain. The charge was amended in court and in effect became a new charge.

Before moving for a jail sentence Prosecutor George MacMinn had to prove however, that Watson had been warned by police that the crown would seek the jail penalty.

Watson had been given this warning under the original charge, when his name was mis-spelled. But defence lawyer Owen Flood said this was not relevant to the amended charge and Magistrate Harold Alder agreed.

Watson had to be treated as a first offender.

Who says spelling isn't important?

Former city planner Roderick Clack isn't in favor of a sports stadium complex for a Centennial project. "It may not make me popular, but this area is overdone on the sporting side," he says. "Wherever you go you can see people golfing, playing tennis, fishing, swimming or playing hockey. We have an overabundance of sporting facilities."

Clack

Mr. Clack went on to say that the method of selecting a project for the big year had been wrong from the start. "A project like this needs a great deal of study and checking with the final decision something the entire community benefits from, not just one segment."

The Red Ensign Club's birth pangs have been almost as painful as the long debates that led to the adoption of our new Maple Leaf flag. But apparently all is settling down now.

At latest word, Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire, 146 Simcoe has been named official organizer for Victoria until a branch forms here. She reported 20 paid members.

The B.C. organization has split the provincial jurisdiction into 42 branch areas.

Confusion reigned in June when an Abbotsford founder George Burnham came over to sign applicants and promised a Tory government would return the red ensign to national supremacy.

Tory officials rapped his knuckles and said they would do no such thing. Then B.C. president Douglas Taylor arrived, said Mr. Burnham had no authority even though Mr. Burnham said he had signed 60 members.

Mr. Burnham was banned by the club from further speech-making activities.

Now the group wants some good publicity so it can get down to the job of democratically removing the Maple Leaf which was democratically adopted this year.

★ ★ ★

No one would think of spoiling Victoria's inner harbor vista by erecting billboards along the Causeway. So why does city council permit a certain truck, carrying billboard signs advertising an entertainment, to park all day, day after day, in front of the Legislature, on Belleville?

★ ★ ★

A row of scruffy, beat-up garbage cans along Dallas Road waterfront drive is hardly the best front to put forward to visitors, but that's what Victoria has.

The city parks department's bashed-in, faded blue waste receptacles desperately need a face-lifting or replacement by a type of waste-eating container found so satisfactory by the provincial government along main highways.

"It would be terrific if we could get some of those gadgets," commented Visitors' Bureau president Nick North.

The recreation and conservation department's garbage-gobblers—a copyrighted, gape-mouthed, owlish creature made of concrete or fibreglas—draw favorable comment from tourists the breadth of the continent.

Victoria parks administrator Herbert Warren said he has no budget for anything elaborate, but maybe the cans will get a coat of paint this summer.

He pointed out that special roadside waste containers can cost from $200 to $500 each.

Well, how about this suggestion:

Get the Capital Improvement District Commission, which Put up funds to rebuild Dallas Road, to borrow "gobblers" from the recreation department.

That spare tire you haul around in the trunk of your car can be a real lifesaver when it comes to rescuing people at the lake or seashore this summer, says the B.C. Automobile Association.

Water rescue demonstrations by police and safety groups have shown that a spare tire—wheel and all—can support four grown men in the water, the BCAA says. It is just as effective in winter, too, for rescuing persons who have broken through ice.

In addition to its use as a lifesaver, it comes in mighty handy if you have a flat.

JAPAN FAR ADVANCED IN RETRAINING PROGRAMS

Education Leads to Greatness

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

(Fifth of a Series)

The great difference between Japan and the rest of Asia—and its fundamental meeting point with the western world—is education.

Japan has some 23.5 million students, about 4 million more than the total population of Canada. They attend more than 47,000 schools, including 584 universities, junior colleges and professional institutes.

Canada has about the same proportion of students, one-quarter of the population, but in absolute numbers they only total about 4.75 million—over half a million fewer than the number of girls alone in Japanese elementary schools.

Multi-digit statistics tend to become meaningless, but one of the figures reveals the gigantic size—and success—of the Japanese school system. While Canadians are worried about absorbing 1 million students into the labor market over the next five years, Japan finds jobs for about 1.75 million young persons coming out of the schools each and every year.

Class Tours

School children are easy to spot in Japan because all wear uniforms until they enter university. June and July are the months for class tours, from a few hours' jaunt in a bus to as much as a week. I saw several thousand on my travels, being shepherded through factories, airport terminals, temples, subways, concert halls, hotel lobbies and parks. They are taken everywhere to see the adult world.

Many a time, I would round a corner and see a regiment of black-and-white uniformed boys and girls advancing in column of route, each platoon with a flag-bearer (for use in crossing traffic arteries) chattering like magpies. Seeing my white face and beard, they would break out into a cheerful chorus of "Herro" (one group, inexplicably, called out Herro Canada) and wave their arms, some of the girls smothering giggles with hands over mouths while a few boys would stroke their smooth chins and grin archly.

Started In 1872

Although the importance of education is dawning slowly in the Orient, it is not a new idea in Japan. The modern educational system was begun in 1872 with establishment of elementary schools throughout the country, enrolling about half of the boys and 15 per cent of the girls of school age—an amazing development when it is remembered that only five years previously Japan was cut off from the world and had a feudal society of lords, warriors, serfs and tradesmen.

In 1886, an imperial edict enlarged the educational system and introduced free compulsory schooling of a minimum four years, barely a decade after the idea had caught on in "the new world" of North America.

These developments formed the basis, from the start, of Japan's tremendous leap from obscurity to the status of a world power by the turn of the century. In 1907 the compulsory term was raised to six years and by 1912, 98 per cent of all school-age children, even those in remote mountain villages, were attending class.

Today, nine years is the compulsory minimum, six years of primary and three of junior secondary. Beyond that, there is another three years of senior secondary and two years of junior college, a frequent route for girls, or four years of university.

The average pupil-teacher ratio in primary schools is 34, in junior secondary 30 and in senior secondary 25 — better than in most Canadian provinces.

Free Lunch

Most primary pupils, by law, receive a free lunch at school and PTA groups are active in helping provide kitchen facilities and similar projects. A recent addition, the school lunch program promises to give a new impetus to the general trend of recent years in which the "average" Japanese physique has been growing.

The children go to school from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. weekdays and until noon Saturdays and take home about two to three hours' homework each day, for almost 11 months of the year. Instruction is of a high standard. English is a compulsory second language throughout high school and a third and fourth language often is studied. Algebra is introduced in Grade 6.

"Back home both were A students but here they're finding it a real struggle just to pass," the mother of a Japanese-Canadian family from Victoria, posted to Tokyo for three years, told me of her two boys. They attend a private international school that is a cut, but only somewhat, above the average urban public school.

This year the universities are crowded with more than 1.1 million students, an increase of 700 per cent since 1935. The gross population has only increased 50 per cent during the same period. More than 250,000 attend college with the help of 20-year government loans.

Suicides

Because of the carry-over of the paternalistic traditions of feudalism, resulting in a Japanese spending his entire working life with the same company and his pay depending entirely on starting qualifications and subsequently on seniority alone, there is an almost unbearable emphasis on academic achievement. The graduating marks literally determine the rest of a student's life—although there are signs of a gradual change.

Several dozen students each year commit suicide because they fail or can't take the strain. It is not unheard of for an ambitious student to end his life even on successful graduations if his marks were not high enough to open the doors into a desired career or starting position.

A high proportion of vocational subjects in high school helps Japan accomplish the annual absorbtion of close to two million youths into the labor force. (In fact there is concern that as a result of birth control measures the student population will begin receding in 1967 after the last wave of postwar babies passes out of the schools.)

But another factor is the supplementary training provided as a matter of course by large firms to its new recruits and old employees. Private industry devotes a considerable expenditure for schooling the new comers in their future jobs, retraining those whose jobs become redundant and, latterly, financing promising high school graduates through university, particularly those bent on engineering careers.

Retraining

In one of the large electrical appliance plants which I toured, where a total of 10,000 workers earned their living, there was a school accommodating 450 and it was full at the time, with new and old employees being retrained for new jobs—all at their regular salary.

As a result of centuries-bred traditions, the master-servant exchange of loyalties prevents managements from laying off workers except in the most dire circumstances so retraining employees has developed as the favorite method of keeping them occupied between useful periods. It works in well with the transition to automation and also is justified by companies as a method of retaining a cushion of workers—a concept developed during the years of rapid expansion and labor scarcity.

A firm announced it had to lay off about 1,000 workers in order to survive a potential bankruptcy while I was there and the next day I read that other companies in the same field had immediately agreed to take on a pro-rata share of the persons involved in order to save them a single day of joblessness—an example of both the "cushion" concept and also the ingrained paternalism of the employer class.

More evidence lies in the fact that automation is burgeoning in Japan but there are no visible signs of worker unrest or anxiety about losing their jobs. In fact, some workers in the more boring production line jobs, I was told, welcome automation as the only chance to enter more interesting work.

Loyalty Strong

Why don't they just quit and take another job? Even though there are plenty to be had—unemployment currently is running at .06 per cent of the 50 million-strong labor force—quitting is almost as inconceivable as firing. The master-servant loyalties cut both ways and they've continued for more than 1,000 years because they give security to each side.

When I mentioned the number of jobs I've held, it amazed my listeners, particularly those who had not been abroad. I think they regarded me as an unsteady character, and I'm told that is precisely the social stigma that job-jumping would bring to a Japanese.

Loyalty is expressed at the bargaining table, too. For the past few years, unionized plants—there are more than 47,000 unions with almost 9 million members—have been receiving annual increases averaging about 10 per cent, the employers' expression of loyalty in fantastically good times. This year, amid worries of a recession, the unions reciprocated by asking only 5.2 per cent on the average.

'Very Proud'

Guy Smith, Canada's commercial minister in the Tokyo embassy, told me that the Japanese have an incredible cohesiveness and drive for a national destiny, and this is reflected in the work-a-day world as well as at patriotic events.

"They (workers) held down their demands this year because of the business slowdown and when the economy breaks a record they all take off their caps and cheer the announcement — and so they should when you think of their achievements.

"But this shows that wages are not the most important thing for them. They are very proud of their achievements and these mean a great deal —more than they do to us."

However, now that the material things of life—first radios, then television, refrigerators and washing machines—are becoming common, the old patterns are beginning to break up. More and more married women are going to work (delinquency is rising) and hubby wants more money because eyes now are fixing brightly on a family car or even ownership of a house.

LONDON (AP)—A House of Commons committee today cleared James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor government, of a potentially damaging charge of breach of parliamentary privilege.

The charge was lodged by Conservative Sir Robert Cary after Callaghan made a speech a fortnight ago implying some Conservative members of Parliament are more concerned with the interests of big business magnates than of their other constituents.

In his reply to the charge, Callaghan told the investigating committee:

"I submit to the committee that if political speeches calling attention to such interests are to be regarded as a breach of privilege, then legitimate comment and the rights of free speech will be seriously impaired."

HOME GARDEN

Good Hedge Needs Care and Attention

By JACK BEASTALL

Hedge plants need just as much care and attention as other plants if they are to remain vigorous and attractive.

Jack

As with a lawn, the better the treatment the more trimming is needed, and very few gardeners will permit their lawn to die in order to save work.

While a lawn is considered as lending prestige to a property, the hedge is seldom thought of in the same class, despite the hedge being the only part of the garden visible to outsiders.

The roots head for the lawns and borders where water and food is plentiful, robbing the plants to which the nourishment rightly belongs. After all, the hedge wants to live—if possible.

Regular watering and spring fertilizing will keep the roots of a young hedge close to home, and they will not wander far in later years if their needs are supplied.

Neglected hedges should be well watered between now and the end of the month. After August begins, water must be withheld as much as possible so that this summer's growth can ripen before winter. Fertilizer should be applied in February for the spring rains to wash down to the root area.

Newly-planted hedges should not be allowed to make much height before the plants are touching at the bottom. Growths which have made excessive length this season should be shortened to conform with the average height of the hedge.

All other new growths should have the growing tip removed with the thumb and finger to encourage side-shoots that will keep the base well filled. Striving for height before the base is tight is the first step towards an unsatisfactory and unsightly hedge.

Four Youths Reserve Plea In Camp Row

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Four youths appeared in magistrate's court here Wednesday and were remanded to Aug. 11 without plea on charges of unlawfully and wilfully interfering with a camp owner and his property.

The four released on their own recognicance were William Forney of New Westminster, Ronald Anthony of Burnaby, and Lawrence Forster and Joseph Lamontagne of North Surrey. All are 19.

A fifth youth, Lawrence Eyre, 19, or North Surrey was recovering in hospital from a gunshot wound to his knee and was unable to appear on the charge.

The charges followed a shouting battle at a campsite in White Rock July 4 in which a number of youths threatened operator Everet Dicks.

The camp operator fired several shots, wounding two youths, but was not charged by police.

Suspects Remanded

EDINBURGH (CP) — Two Scots, wanted by Canadian police in connection with the armed theft of some $1,200,000 in Vancouver, have been remanded in custody to await the arrival of details of the charges from Canada.

Joseph Percival, 37, and James McDougall, 31, were arrested in Blantyre, Lanarkshire, last month. Percival is a former member of the Vancouver police force. McDougall was a real estate salesman.

The sheriff's court had been scheduled to decide Monday, on the basis of the deposition of evidence, whether the men should be extradited to Canada. However, Vancouver authorities had reported the legal documents were still not ready.

Fathers and Sons Key Soviet Issue

By STEPHEN S. ROSENFELD

MOSCOW — The Communist Party has decided to tackle head-on a problem which enraged and confounded Khrushchev even while he denied its existence, that of differences between "fathers" and "sons."

The problem is that the "sons," the younger generation, did not know the revolution, sacrifice, terror and war which shaped the "fathers"

KHRUSHCHEV

Elsewhere this dissonance might be dealt with philosophically and privately but here the Communist party's concern that all citizens share the the same values and ideals makes the problem political—one not for sociologists and commencement speakers but for the rulers in the Kremlin.

"There are no contradictions between generations," Khrushchev stormed in 1963, "and the problem of 'fathers and sons' does not exist."

He referred to the title and theme of Turgenev's 19th century novel which stamped the conflict of generations into the Russian scene.

Alluding to youth, he said the "young builders of communism should know very well with what fervent enthusiasm their grandfathers fought for victory in the Russian revolution of 1917, with what unprecedented enthusiasm and selflessness their fathers and grandfathers fought to turn backward Russia into an advanced industrial country."

"Our youth should know that their fathers and mothers not only experienced the joy of great victories, but also had to overcome a great number of difficulties on the road to constructing socialism."

His words suggested that unlike his predecessor he is not starting by denying that the generations rub, but is determined to try to ease the friction.

PREMIER ROBARTS

Messiah Runs Into Color Bar

JOHANNESBURG — The 18th-century composer George Frederick Handel has become a victim of the South African government's apartheid policy of racial segregation.

A performance of Handel's Messiah by South Africa's leading all-Negro choir, a major annual event on Johannesburg's music calendar, was banned by the government for a time because the choir was black and the orchestra white.

Two days before the performance, officials informed the white organizers their application to perform the oratorio had been rejected.

After a last-minute appeal to the minister of community development, Piet Botha, a white organist was allowed to play instead of the white orchestra. The organizers told Botha there was no competent black organist available.

A Sense of Achievement Grows Stronger in Canada

The premier of Ontario, Mr. John Robarts, has emerged as a posible future candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. In a recent speech in Winnipeg he expressed views of interest to all Canadians. The following is an excerpt.

I should like to explore with you those elements in our society that influence the operation of our political process.

There has been a marked shift in our population from a rural environment to urban centres. Even among rural residents in Canada the impact of the modern communication media of television and radio has had an enormous effect on their attitudes and values.

We are, for better or worse, an urban society with urban tastes. This is the result of industrial and social development and change that is common through the whole of North America and Western Europe.

Sophisticated financial systems encompassing all forms of consumer and other types of credit are the basis upon which this edifice is built; a high degree of social and work mobility, and a marked increase in leisure time.

In turn, these factors lead to increased demands for all forms and types of material goods and a broadening out of the cultural interests of our people.

Want Comforts

Our people have gone beyond a bare subsistence level of existence and are now demanding and expecting that life will provide them with such creature comforts as automobiles, television sets, two or three-week paid holidays and a host of other goods and services.

In other words, the very essence and character of our lives — our standards and modes of living, our attitudes —have been radically altered in the past two decades.

I realize that social critics will immediately say this concept of our Canadian society is one of affluence and thus has no meaning for large numbers of our people in all areas of our country.

The essential point is that, within the past 20 years in Canada, the majority of the people have come to earn and to enjoy the fruits, both material and cultural, of our industrial society while the minority, who are not fully participating in these benefits, are asking for and must be given the opportunity to acquire a fair portion of the fruits of this society.

Seek Identity

I also believe that Canadians are beginning to look beyond their immediate domestic concerns and interests and are attempting to find a common identity as Canadians. In the past, Canadian national identity has been dominated by either pride in the British connection or a negative reaction to the attraction of the United States.

Indeed, there have been occasions in our history when anti-Americanism almost took the place of Canadian nationalism. This day is gone. Canadians are now far more positive in their feelings toward Canada.

I believe that we are consciously seeking to find expressions of our common heritage, traditions and experience which bind us together. I believe that today Canadians are seeking their own manifest destiny.

As part of this process, it is my belief that Canadians in all the provinces are rejecting the attitude of mind which dictates an unquestioning adherence to our existing social, economic and political system. As a nation, we are challenging accepted beliefs and attempting to find new and more creative social, economic and political forms.

This does not mean that, as a nation, we should be or are prepared to do away with our traditions and shared experiences just for the sake of change. Rather, we are asking basic questions, and putting accepted beliefs to the test of practicality and rationality and measuring them against the needs of our time.

This is evident in the debates and discussions with respect to our constitution. This is evident in the establishment of the Bilingualism-Biculturalism Commission. It is also evident in the creation of metropolitan governments in the Toronto and Winnipeg areas.

In all these fields we Canadians are building on the past and developing new and imaginative ways of answering questions posed by the needs of the people of Canada in 1965.

Vast Changes

Finally, in my view, we Canadians have never really been able to comprehend the vast economic changes that have taken place in the past one hundred years.

Our continuing fascination with the vast untapped economic potential of this country has blinded us to the reality of what he have actually achieved.

We have in this country, and especially in the past one hundred years, achieved miracles. In 1867 the provnices of Western Canada did not exist. Only a few thousands of people lived west of the Lakehead. There was no adequate means of communication.

Within a few short years a great railroad was built and the west was opened up to settlement by men and women from every corner of the world who came here to build a new life for themselves and for their children. They brought with them the intangible assets of hope for the future and faith in their adopted country.

Over the years, Canada has emerged as a strong and wealthy nation. We have seen the development of our economy and the enrichment of our culture.

In my own province, I have, within my lifetime, witnessed the development of one of the world's largest and most diversified industrial complexes. It is almost impossible to comprehend the changes that have taken place in all aspects of our society.

Benefit All

Canadians today are developing a fuller, prouder sense of their achievements than ever before. They recognize not only the potential of Canada, but also the true magnitude of the economic development that has taken place in this country.

I believe that we are also beginning to be aware that, by our own efforts, we can mobilize the human and material resources of this half-continent for the benefit of all Canadians in all provinces.

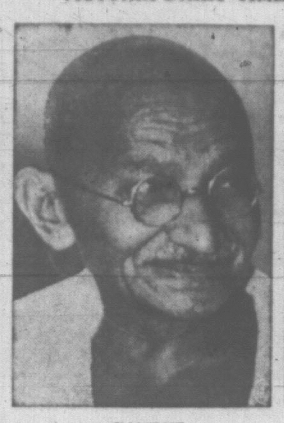

I believe, too, that Canadians are becoming increasingly more conscious of their obligations to the less developed nations of Asia, Africa and South America. We have not yet begun to make full payment on these obligations and I am convinced that this is an area which needs a far deeper and more sincere commitment on the part of Canada.

I also believe that the people of Canada are prepared to make the contributions of material, money and manpower which are so urgently needed.

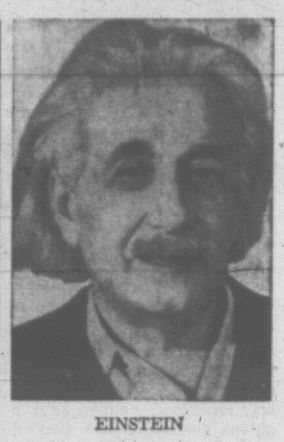

These, in general terms, are some of what I consider to be the major changes in values and aspirations of Canadians in the second-half of the Twentieth Century.

The people of Canada are proud of their country; proud of its rich traditions and heritage; proud of its economic and social development; and proud of its stature among the nations of the world. Beyond this sense of pride in Canada's past is a sense of confidence in its future.

Underlying the uncertainties of today rests a vast reservoir of faith in the ability of Canada to rise above the divisive arguments that sometimes plague our country, a vast reservoir of faith that we will find common goals and objectives which will hold our people united.

Letters Reveal Bond Of Einstein, Gandhi

LONDON — Hitherto unpublished correspondence between Mohandas K. Gandhi and Albert Einstein has become public after nearly 34 years.

The famed physicist voiced approval of Gandhi's policy of non-violence. The Indian leader replied that Einstein's support gave him great consolation.

The letters were published in the Indian Weekly, an English-language publication for the Indian community in Britain.

Einstein wrote in October, 1931, the publication says:

"You have shown by all you have done that we can achieve the ideal even without resorting to violence. We can conquer those votaries of violence by the non-violent method. Your example will inspire and help humanity to put an end to a conflict based on violence with international help and co-operation guaranteeing peace to the world.

Gandhi replied Oct. 18, 1931:

"I was delighted to have your beautiful letter. . . . It is a great consolation to me that the work I am doing finds favor in your sight. I do indeed wish that we could meet face to face. . . ."

The letter was written by Gandhi when he was in London, the Indian Weekly said. Einstein received the letter in Caputh, near Potsdam, Germany. It was found there by Dr. F. M. Friedmann, now a resident of London, after Einstein left Germany.

In the United States, Einstein, the former pacifist, supported the Allies in the Second World War against Nazi Germany. He suggested, in a letter to President Roosevelt, the possibility of building the atomic bomb.

There is no record that Einstein and Gandhi ever met. Gandhi was assassinated in India Jan. 30, 1948, by a Hindu extremist. Einstein died at Princeton, N.J., April 18, 1955.

NATURE on the ISLAND

By Cliff Carl

Sand may not seem to be an ideal material to live in, yet many kinds of animals use it for this purpose. In fact, a surprising variety of creatures spend all or part of their life in this seemingly inhospitable environment, each kind solving the problems involved by various clever devices.

The unsuitability of sand as a habitation is largely due to its unstable, shifting nature. Excavations in it are short-lived because the walls tend to collapse particularly when the sand becomes too dry or too wet. Animals living in sand holes therefore have to clear out the passage-ways constantly or move into sand that is still cohesive or devise some method to prevent sand walls from caving in.

Sand also tends to clog gills, jaws, and other exposed moving joints of creatures digging beneath its surface. It therefore restricts its inhabitants to those animals that have successfully solved the problem by keeping this destructive abrasive from cutting off the flow of water or air or from entering and damaging their vital machinery.

Sand is notoriously poor as a retainer of water. On land it dries out rapidly creating a desert in which only a few drought-tolerant forms can live. At the same time the upper strata may become exceedingly hot by exposure to the sun for prolonged periods which makes these layers practically untenable by animal life.

One might wonder, then, why some animals choose to live in a substance that seemingly is so unsuitable. The reason is two-fold. First, sand offers a ready cover against predators or unfavorable conditions above the surface and second it sometimes contains vast quantities of food materials available to all with the ability to extract it.

As a shelter sand is almost ideal; because of its mobility animals can quickly dive into it and bury themsleves out of sight and they can emerge equally rapidly. The system works both under water and on land. On lakes or sea bottom sand has the properties of a semi-liquid, permitting relatively fast travel beneath its surface. On land there is another advantage; the digger can penetrate below the super-heated layer to levels of almost any desired temperature using the upper strata as insulation. In this situation penetration of the upper layers or actual emergence is usually restricted to night time or periods of dull weather when the surface strata are more bearable temperature-wise.

Its use as a cover works both ways, too. Besides shielding the prey from the predator it enables a hunter to remain concealed until a victim comes within striking distance. Both the pursuer and the pursued seek the shelter provided by layers of sand but for diametrically opposite reasons.

The food resources found in sand are also partly the result of the mobile nature of this material. Decaying plant and animal tissues become ground up by wave action on the beach and the resulting mulch becomes thoroughly mixed with sand by the same water movements. Here the minute particles of organic matter remain trapped until a sand-burrowing animal arrives equipped in some special way to tap this rich resource.

Although sand offers living conditions that are much less attractive than those in other environments it is by no means a desert. In fact it is populated by a large number of creatures that, in some cases, have turned the drawbacks to their own advantage.

Our New Flag Illegal?

TORONTO — A Toronto monthly newspaper, The Independent Businessman, has published a letter which, the paper says, shows "our national flag came about in a way that was unprecedented and so illegal."

The letter, addressed to Prime Minister Pearson from John Fenston, a Toronto lawyer, contains a legal argument which concludes that the recently adopted maple leaf flag is not necessarily Canada's flag in law.

The letter reads in part: "If I am correct, it would appear that having started with some 2,000 flags, having gone through months of agony, distress and anguish in the parliamentary debates . . . we now end up with no flag at all, in law."

The letter quotes British parliamentary precedent to show that Canada's flag which was designated by royal proclamation is not legal since royal proclamations must first be authorized by parliamentary statute.

Western Ideas Seep in Albania

By JOHN RUTHERFORD

VIENNA — Albania has so completely cut itself off from normal relations with other countries that it seems impossible that outside ideas might make their entry. But that is what seems at last to be happening.

For nearly 20 years Albania has been little more than a name to the outside world—a tiny enclave of Communism frowning from a fastness between the Adriatic and the savage mountains which separate it from Greece and Yugoslavia.

Something one can listen to on the radio, as the Tirana shortwave transmitter pours forth its nightly diatribes against Khrushchev, Tito and all the other "revisionist renegades" of the Communist world.

War With Greece

It is still technically at war with Greece. It is at loggerheads with all the Communist East Europeans who were once its allies and, though Khrushchev is out, it still equates Soviet Russia with American "imperialism."

It belongs to the United Nations, yet has trading contacts with only 40 of its 100-odd members and will allow none of UN's purely social-economic agencies to set foot inside its frontiers.

Its only "friend" is distant China—China which came up with $123 million worth of credits to finance its industrialization after Moscow had cut off aid because Albania's incorrigibly Stalinist leaders switched their ideoligical allegiance to Peking when the rift between the Communist giants opened in 1960.

China which saved Albania's five-year plan from collapse and equipped 25 major enterprises all of which will be in production by next year.

China which has just promised more credits—amount so far undisclosed—to help the country through the 1966-70 plan starting next January.

Tirana's politics and ideology, of course, are pure Peking —or the "only genuine Marxism-Leninism" and "proletarian internationalism" in a naughty "revisionist" world, as its party chief Enver Hoxha and Mao Tse-tung would have it.

For two decades, Albania's 1,500,000 people have lived on an economic shoestring and been ruled with a discipline comparable to Stalin's in his heyday.

No liberalization here, no curbing of police power. The mice of Yugoslav "heresy" have nibbled vainly a that mountain wall.

And yet, recent news from Albania itself begins to suggest that it is no more so completely immune from the ideas which have swept other Communist countries and changed them dramatically in recent years.

Youth, it is said, is getting "ideologically soft." Young dramatists are writing plays which flout "our reality." There are complaints of the "danger" of radio and other foreign (western) influences.

One has heard all this before, from Poland to Bulgaria. But not previously from Albania, snug, as its leaders believed, behind their own ideological cordon sanitaire.

Other "new ideas" are cropping up in Albania's economic world. There is some courageous talk going on about improving the quality of Albanian products as a means of expanding trade, not only among the Communist countries but with the few Western countries — principally Italy, France and Austria—which have relations with Tirana.

Lesage Pours It On

OTTAWA—Whenever Prime Minister Pearson's political stock is low, as it is now over influence-peddling in the Rivard case, Mr. Pearson has one political friend on whom he can count to drive it lower.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec seems to pick these times to press demands that can only be satisfied by some further surrender to Quebec City. He has a whole bagful of demands, and has chosen this moment to press the issues of jurisdiction over northern Quebec Eskimos and offshore oil rights.

In so doing, he is jeopardizing the success of the federal-provincial conference scheduled here on Monday. The main purpose of the conference is to forge a united front for Mr. Pearson's War on Poverty. This is a war that cannot be won without provincial co-operation. But side issues like Quebec Eskimos and offshore rights can turn the conference into stark confrontation, and kill the spirit of co-operation.

Pearson and Lesage are more like heads of rival governments than brother Liberals dedicated to the same political ideals and objectives. Between them there are the main elements of a power struggle, a contest of wills, a fight for political domination with a great deal of booty of one kind or another hanging on the outcome.

Because of his political muscle as leader of French Canada, Lesage is the focal point of provincial opposition to and intimidation of Ottawa. More and more Mr. Pearson's "co-operative federalism" has come to mean giving Mr. Lesage what he demands.

Lesage forced out of Ottawa a whopping increase in Quebec's cut of the tax pie. He got an opting-out formula that allows him to reject any federal-provincial program and take cash instead.

He outmanoeuvred Ottawa on the pension plan, thus assuring his treasury of billions in compulsory premiums. He got a formula for amending the BNA Act that will give Quebec a veto on constitutional change. For practical purposes he established Quebec's right to negotiate treaties with foreign states—although Ottawa still insists on counter-signing them.

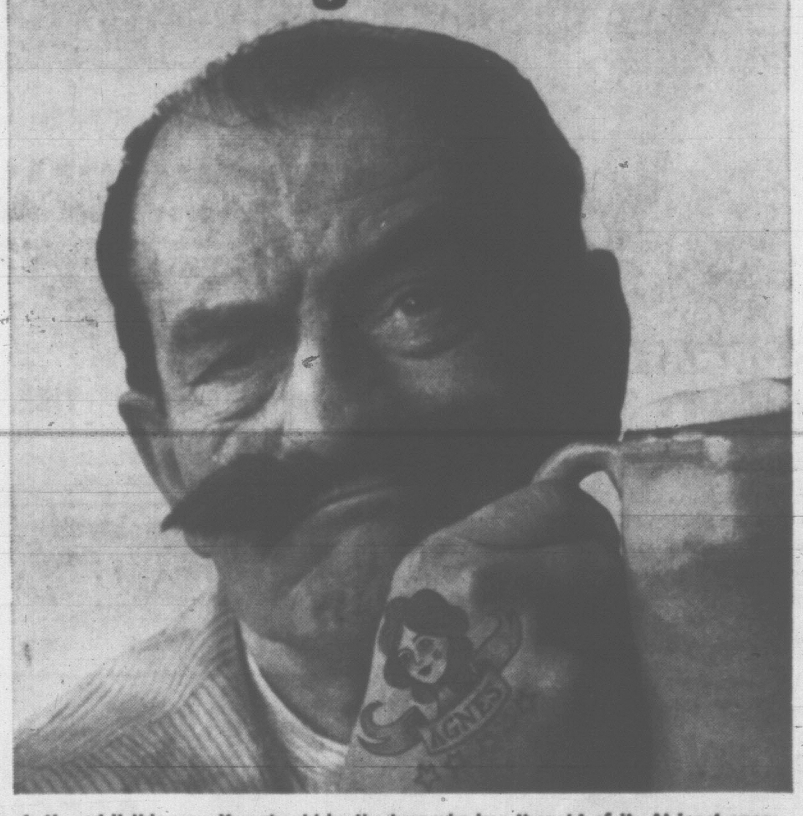

He frightened Ottawa out of any idea of declaring the Churchill (Hamilton) Falls power development to be a project in the national interest. And he intimidated Ottawa into turning a blind eye to his violation of the Constitution in the matter of his petition to the Queen to curb the powers of the Quebec Legislative Council.

It is a commentary on national cohesion that relations between Ottawa and Quebec City are less like those between two levels of government than between foreign states with conflicting national interests, when the greed of the strong is insatiable and the demands on the weak are unending.

So long as the Pearson government remains weak this situation will persist, for Lesage wants more than Eskimos and offshore rights. He wants Labrador power and real estate. He wants to control federal fiscal, monetary, trade and immigration policies so far as they affect Quebec. And if he gets all he demands, the real prime minister of Canada will be the one residing in Quebec City.

Tall, frosty fruit juice coolers to serve when the temperature soars are grape shrub, a honey of a refresher, and apple citrus medley. Each is great afternoon or evening refreshment — after a swim or just for fun.

Refreshing Fruit Sippers

PLAY IT 'COOL' WITH DRINKS

When simmering from summer heat, it's time to head for a shady nook in search of cooling refreshment. Some of the coolest warm weather props are fruit juice coolers. With a canned juice assortment on hand they can be ready whenever the temperature warrants. Enjoy them plain or blended . . . poured over sherbet or cracked ice and garnished with fluffs of whipped cream or skewered tidbits of fruit. To go with "sippin' " refreshment, serve crisp or cake-like cookies and other finger foods.

Following a dip in the pool, you'll most surely enjoy a frosty grape shrub. Prepare a pitcherful ahead, and after the swim pour it into tall, slim glasses over finely crushed ice.

GRAPE SHRUB

One cup water, ½ cup sugar, 1 bottle (1 pt. 8 fl. oz.) grape juice, ⅓ cup canned lemon juice, 1½ cups canned orange juice and finely crushed ice.

Combine water and sugar in a saucepan; heat until sugar is dissolved. Combine chilled juices with water-sugar syrup; mix well. Chill. Pour over crushed ice and garnish with a sprig of mint or melon ball kebob, if desired. Six servings.

The name "A honey of a refresher" aptly describes this duo . . . cranberry juice cocktail and frozen lemonade, sweetened ever-so-slightly with honey. This beverage will be well-received at any time.

HONEY OF A REFRESHER

One can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate, water, ¼ cup honey and 1 bottle (1 qt.) cranberry juice cocktail.

Combine thawed lemonade concentrate with water following label directions. Stir in honey and cranberry juice cocktail and mix well. Chill. Serve over ice cubes in tall glasses. Garnish with lemon slices and strawberries, if desired. Ten servings.

You'll want to prepare apple citrus medley in advance to bring out the touches of sugar and spice. Garnish this one gaily by alternating canned pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries on wooden skewers for "above-the-brim" kebobs.

APPLE CITRUS MEDLEY

One-third sugar, ¼ cup water, 1" stick cinnamon, 2 cloves, 1 can (1 pt. 2 fl. oz.) orange grapefruit juice and 1 bottle (1 pt.) apple juice.

Combine sugar, water, cinnamon stick and cloves; simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Strain out the cinnamon and cloves; add fruit juices and chill. Pour into tall glasses over ice; garnish with long skewers of pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries, if desired. Six servings.

For an afternoon's diversion, relax and contemplate the up and coming activities over a Lemon Scooper. Grapefruit juice with lemon sherbet makes a tangy, but most refreshing treat.

Garden Party

Grounds of the Wardroom, HMCS Naden, will be the scene of a garden party from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., August 7. The event will be hosted by the Naval Officers' Association of Victoria.

SKETCH OF MARINER 4 shows how the 575-pound satellite is sending pictures from Mars to Earth. The satellite was launched last Nov. 28 and has travelled 325 million miles. It will take approximately eight hours and 35 minutes to transmit each of the pictures taken by the space probe.

EARTH RECEIVES 1ST MARS PHOTO

(Times News Services)

Late today or early Friday they plan to make public what should be the first close-up photograph of the unknown planet's surface.

It could indicate whether Mars harbors life, solving a mystery that has intrigued man for ages.

Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday night and its signals hinted at trouble in the camera's tape recorder.

But this morning, transmitting from beyond Mars en route to an orbit around the sun, the windmill-shaped, 575-pound spacecraft began relaying the first of a hoped-for score of photos.

Jubilant scientists at the jet propulsion laboratory, which built and controlled Mariner, said "the raw data is exactly what we expected."

Two hours after the start of signals 35 lines had been received, and one expert said a definite pattern was showing.

The program called for Mariner to take up to 21 pictures as it passed within 5,600 miles of Mars, store them on tape, then play them back starting today.

The pictures were planned to be 100 times better than those from earth telescopes, showing objects as small as 1½ miles across.

The fly-by climaxed a 228-day, 325,000,000-mile curving voyage from earth.

At 6:02 a.m. PDT, an 85-foot dish antenna at Johannesburg, South Africa, caught the first picture signal 12 minutes after Mariner-4 launched it on a record trip from nearly 135 million miles deep in space.

Thus ended a night of agonizing suspense in which scientists had feared the probe's tape recorder might have failed.

Line by line, eight tiny pieces at a time, earth carefully collected the fantastically weak radio pulses that computers would turn into a photograph—a process so delicate that transmission of the first picture would take eight hours and 35 minutes to complete.

As many as 20 other photographs may follow between now and July 24.

Scientists expected to have picture No. 1 fully in hand by about 2:30 p.m. PDT today. Jet Propulsion Laboratory officials said that "if it is good, it may be released late tonight."

Even without pictures, said JPL director Dr. William H. Pickering, the fabulous voyage of Mariner-4 to within 6,013 miles of Mars "is a magnificent scientific achievement" that should pave the way for an attempt to search for life on the surface of the baffling planet in 1971.

As it swung by on the picture-taking mission Wednesday, Mariner-4 also studied the martian atmosphere, its radiation fields and its gravity pull. However, Pickering said, it will take many weeks to completely study the information.

Mariner-4's first picture was believed to be a shot of elysium, an unusually bright, rather circular desert in the planet's northern hemisphere.

If the "cosmic eye" cut its planned 4,000-mile visual swath across the planet's mottled red face—"and we have no reason to believe it did not," said officials—picture No. 2 would show trivium charontis, a so-called "oasis" with six "canals" jutting from it.

Transmission of the second photograph, which may help scientists solve the 88-year-old mystery of the linear formations known as "canals," was scheduled to begin about 4:28 p.m., PDT, and finish by 1:03 a.m., PDT, Friday.

After a balky start because of a blank spot at the start of the tape, the signals began flowing smoothly across the cosmos from the world's first interplanetary television station. "Things look good," a JPL spokesman announced matter-of-factly.

The first three pictures were scheduled to be released between late tonight and late Friday.

As it beamed back its signals, Mariner-4 itself sped beyond Mars into an endless orbit of its own around the sun.

It will return to within 25-30 million miles of earth, perhaps close enough to re-establish radio contact with tracking stations in September, 1967.

Mariner keeps the pictures on tape just as videotape for television shows is stored. A timer starts radioing the data as a stream of digits received at tracking stations at Goldstone, Calif., Johannesburg, South Africa, and Woomera, Australia. The data is relayed here for processing by computers.

"Mariner gave an additional cut-off signal showing the tape had been turned off," aid Pickering.

★ ★ ★

Scientists said this could have meant that the tape had gone around again—putting more pictures on top of earlier pictures in a sort of double exposure. The timing of the additional signals indicated two-thirds of the tape could have been thus ruined, leaving only six or seven of the hoped for 21 pictures.

But another communications system aboard the ship indicated the tape functioned just as planned.

"We did indeed take some pictures," said Schneiderman. "But there was this indication that the picture-taking was not precisely as predicted."

Schneiderman said the tape was so arranged that if only a few pictures were obtained, they will be the first to be relayed to earth.

As Mariner disappeared around the white-capped south polar region, its radio signal waned and faded, giving what scientists said was valuable data on the Martian atmosphere, proving it could bend radio waves.

Scientists said this proves Mars has some atmosphere, something long believed by experts.

Canadian Air Force To Get New Punch

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved purchase of the U.S. Northrop F-5 fighter-bomber for the Canadian Air Force, the defence department announced today.

It will be built to Canadian specifications and called the CF-5.

A statement by Defence Minister Hellyer said the multi-purpose aircraft will be used primarily in tactical support of ground forces, "and as such will be a new plane for a new role."

Mr. Hellyer later told a press onference that Canadair Ltd., Montreal, will build the airframes and the Orenda division of Hawker-Siddeley the engines.

Canadair will get about $80,000,000 of the total $215,000,000 program and Orenda $35,000,000.

Some $75,000,000 will be subcontracted to United States firms but, Mr. Hellyer said, Canada will get at least this much back through U.S. firms placing defence contracts in Canada.

Mr. Drury said the program will provide about 2,100 jobs during the four-year production program.

The first plane will come off the assembly line in about two years, the last in early 1970.

The Canadian version of the F-5 will have more powerful engines and equipment to refuel in flight. Most of them will be single-seat aircraft, but some will be two-seat machines to be used as trainers.

HAD PLANNED PURCHASE

The defence department earmarked $215,000,000 for 125 tactical aircraft in its five-year re-equipment program outlined in the latest defence white paper. This sum covers necessary spares and support equipment.

The announcement said that as the new CF-5s are received and squadrons formed, the squadrons will be incorporated into Mobile Command. This is the new command in the recent armed forces reorganization which will be responsible for maintaining combat-ready integrated land and tactical air elements, capable of rapid deployment in a wide range of contingencies.

"The CF-5's agility, weapons mix, speed, ease of maintenance and versatile conventional (non-nuclear) capability made this aircraft the logical selection for the new global-mobile role of the Canadian forces," the announcement said.

HAS TWO JETS

In its Canadian version, the Northrop plane will be powered by two jet engines, each with a thrust of 4,300 pounds.

CONG BADLY MAULS LARGE GOV'T FORCES

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas badly mauled two large government forces in widely separated attacks today on the eve of the arrival of U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Government losses were reported from "fairly heavy" in one engagement 33 miles north of Saigon and "moderate" in a battle 30 miles south of Da Nang. Two American advisers were reported killed and four injured in the fighting near Saigon.

Another 100,000 U.S. Troops Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military chiefs have recommended unanimously that the strength of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam be boosted to 179,000 men by the end of the year, it was learned today.

This would be more than 100,000 above the 75,000-man U.S. force now scheduled to be in South Viet Nam.

This recommendation by the joint chiefs of staff will be considered by the government in the light of what Defence Secretary Robert McNamara determines during his week-long inspection visit to Viet Nam. McNamara left Wednesday night.

Sources told The Associated Press the joint chiefs would include the remainder of the 1st Infantry Division in the new projections for a buildup to meet growing Communist strength. One brigade of that division landed in Viet Nam this week after travelling from its home base at Fort Riley, Kan.

A buildup as big as 179,000 men could well bring at least a limited mobilization of reservists and national guardsmen to replace regular troops drawn into the growing conflict in Viet Nam.

The armed services, it was disclosed, are starting to gear up for such a possible muster of guardsmen and reservists.

They have submitted to defence officials tentative estimates totalling more than 200,000 citizen servicemen.

Johnson to Attend Stevenson Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military, religious and state honors were planned today with the funeral services for United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

As the presidential jet plane bearing Stevenson's body was flying across the Atlantic, the White House announced plans for tributes to Stevenson, including memorial services at Washington's National Cathedral Friday, with President Johnson attending.

The cathedral services are scheduled for 11 a.m. EDT. A close friend of Stevenson, Judge Carl McGowan of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, will deliver the eulogy. Officiating will be Dr. Richard Hall Graebel, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Stevenson's home town of Springfield, Ill.

The funeral plans, arranged by the family with government officials co-operating, call for Stevenson's body to lie in repose in the National Cathedral after its arrival late today until the services are completed there Friday.

The body will then be flown to Springfield to lie in state in the Illinois Capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Denis to Battle Charge of Bribe

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis, the ex-ministerial aide accused of offering a $20,000 bribe in the Rivard affair, appeared briefly in court today and was remanded until July 29.

He entered the plea through counsel Lou Assaly of Ottawa during a brief court appearance after his arrest in Montreal Wednesday night and booking here on charges arising out of the Dorion report.

Magistrate L. A. Sherwood set July 29 as the date for preliminary hearing.

Denis, a 32-year-old lawyer who was executive assistant to then - immigration minister Tremblay at the time of the alleged offences, was in the half-filled court room for barely five minutes.

LAWYER COMMENTS

Mr. Assaly, a veteran Ottawa criminal lawyer, told Magistrate Sherwood Mr. Denis "in all likelihood" will choose trial by judge and jury when he appears from preliminary hearing.

The defence elects the trial method at this stage of the proceedings even though the preliminary hearing could quash the charges and result in no trial at all.

Mr. Assaly told The Canadian Press in an interview that he had been "prepared to make an absolute plea and election this morning" but Magistrate Sherwood is about to start his vacation "and would have been seized with the case."

To avoid the delay Mr. Assaly "only indicated my client's intention to plead not guilty and that we will likely elect trial by judge and jury."

Outside the court, Mr. Assaly told reporters he will consider between now and July 29 whether to seek a change of venue on grounds it would be difficult to recruit 12 fluently-bilingual jurors in this city. In

FOUR WOUNDED IN BUTTOCKS

Shotgun Halts Garden Raid

PENTICTON (CP) — Four juveniles bent on stealing from a backyard vegetable patch were shot in the buttocks by the owner, police disclosed.

The juveniles were treated in a hospital and later released.

RCMP said that on the advice of city solicitor F. H. Herbert no charges would be laid.

Frank Czeczei, 74, told police that when he discovered the juveniles in his garden Tuesday night he ordered them to leave. They refused to do so.

Czeczei said he fired a warning shot in the air with his shotgun because he couldn't chase them. He has a wooden leg.

He said he fired a second shot. The spray of shotgun pellets struck all four juveniles, police said.

It was the second recent incident in B.C. involving youths being shot.

Two weeks ago a White Rock trailer camp operator who had been beaten by a gang of youths the previous night shot two youths in the leg when a gang of 50 advanced on him.

Everett Dick said he, too, had fired a warning shot but it was ignored. The wounded youths were not seriously hurt.

Seven of the youths later were charged with interfering with a camp owner and his property.

West Shipyards Guaranteed Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Government shipbuilding contracts will be put up for national competition but with a certain percentage of work guaranteed for British Columbia for five years, it was learned reliably today.

The new policy, expected to be announced formally next week, will apply to all government-purchased ships including naval and transport department construction.

Informants said that because it would be uneconomical to build west-coast ferries on the east coast, British Columbia will consequently always be guaranteed a certain amount of shipyard work.

The special five-year gurantee has been given to British Columbia because its labor costs are higher than in east coast and St. Lawrence River shipyards.

GREEK GOV'T TO QUIT IN TIFF WITH KING

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier George Papandreou said tonight after a brief and stormy meeting with King Constantine that his government will resign Friday.

The break came over the ouster of Defence Minister Peter Garoufalias. The premier wanted to fire him and take over the position himself but the 25-year-old king was opposed.

Papandreou had made it clear he would resign unless the king bowed to his desires.

After the meeting, the premier said only "We have a divergency of opinion and I shall submit the government's resignation tomorrow. I will make a statement at that time."

Two-City Talks Report Vague

A meeting of Greater Victoria and Vancouver transit committee leaders and B.C. Hydro Wednesday ended with decision.

The decision was that there will be another get-together soon on future transportation operations.

"As soon as it is appropriate," said Mayor R. B. Wilson, who represented Greater Victoria at the Vancouver meeting.

He said more information is being assembled meanwhile.

The meeting was called by Hydro co-chairman Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, who commented:

"Matters of mutual interest, including transit, were discussed. I can't tell you any more than that."

Also present were Dr. Gordon Shrum, Einar Gunderson and William Mearns, who are Hydro executive; Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and New Westminster Mayor Stuart Gifford.

The municipalities are concerned that Hydro transit operations may be dumped on the shoulders of local authorities when franchise agreements expire between 1966 and 1969.

Nothing Dangerous In Flight Bag

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stewardess' overnight bag, a major clue to the cause of last week's Canadian Pacific Airline crash, contained only personal effects, a friend who packed the bag said Wednesday.

A piece of the bag, owned by stewardess Marlene Brauer, one of 52 persons to die in the explosion and crash, was found fused to a pink nightgown which was riddled with holes.

"I packed the bag," said Gudrun Schroeder, a CPA stewardess and Miss Brauer's roommate.

CAN OF HAIR SPRAY

It contained the things a stewardess needs to stay overnight—about the most dangerous thing in there was a can of hair spray."

Crash investigators, working on the theory that an explosion —possibly a bomb blast—blew the tail section off the aircraft, said the overnight bag showed traces of acid under microscopic examination.

They believe the explosion could have been caused by an acid bomb mixed in the lavatory. They say the flight bag was probably within three feet of the blast centre.

Dr. Warren Lovell, a U.S. pathologist and aviation disaster expert, said the acid-burned holes were not caused by the hair spray.

Ambulance Cutback

VANCOUVER (CP) — Metropolitan ambulance services started plans today to cut back service in the Greater Vancouver area by laying off employees. Mr. Smith said the reason for the cutback was New Westminster city council's decision to cut off ambulance subsidies.

TURIK NAMED COACH

TRAIL (CP)—Frank Turik, a former Trail Smoke Eater, has been named coach of the Western International Hockey League club.

A KISS FROM THE MASTER rewards an outstanding performance during class in the six-week ballet course being conducted by Franklin White under auspices of Women's Committee, Victoria School of Music. Mr. White, solo character dancer in London's Royal Ballet, has attracted students from a wide area of the Canadian and U.S. mainland. He is also to appear as star of an evening of ballet and music, Aug. 18, in Festival Theatre's Show Parade 1965 at McPherson Playhouse.

'Fight to the Bitter End' Says N. Viet Nam Leader

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian-born housewife who succeeded in seeing North Viet Nam's President, Ho Chi Minh, in Hanoi says the Communist leader will never negotiate under pressure and if necessary, is prepared to "fight to the bitter end."

Mrs. Verdun Perl, 49-year-old native of Natal, B.C., who unsuccessfully ran as Liberal candidate for Abingdon, Berkshire, in the 1959 and 1964 British general elections, described the North Vietnamese leader as a "very charming gentleman who spoke English perfectly, so that there was no need for an interpreter."

In a telephone conversation from here Baconsfield, Buckinghamshire, home, Mrs. Perl said she was invited to go to North Viet Nam by the world peace council, because of her long-time interest in Viet Nam and her neutral political position. She said she is not a member of the council.

Mrs. Pearl had a two-hour talk with Ho Chi Minh over tea last Thursday. She said he told her he would be prepared to go to the conference table "if the Americans would uphold the terms of the 1954 Geneva agreement and withdraw their forces."

FIGHT TO BITTER END

"But he will not talk under pressure and if necessary, he is prepared to fight to the bitter end. I got the impression he was very confident."

Asked whether Ho talked about Chinese support, Mrs. Pearl said: "I think we in the West place more emphasis on the Chinese role in this than the people of Viet Nam.

"What the president wants for North Viet Nam is peace and quiet and complete neutrality—with neither Soviet nor Chinese influence."

Mrs. Pearl, who spent five days in Hanoi and travelled outside the city, said she was horrified at the ravages of the U.S. air raids.

"The destruction is unbelievable. It is almost beyond comprehension that the Americans should be doing this."

MINH
. . . 'no pressure'

Mrs. Pearl said her opposition to the U.S. policy in Viet Nam does not mean she subscribes to "the Communist line" or that she is anti-American. She said there is too much tendency for anyone interested in peace to be labelled a Communist.

"My belief is that one only kills people, not ideas."

Describing an all-night trip into the country outside Hanoi, Mrs. Pearl said she and seven other delegates on the peace council trip left the capital at dusk in a heavily camouflaged five-car convoy. Members of the party wore dark clothing.

MEET RAID VICTIMS

They drove 150 miles south of Hanoi into Thanh Hoa province, where they saw bombed villages and met some survivors of the American air raids. They wore bandages but were not badly injured or mulitated.

"There was no question of the government trying to show us horrifying sights so that we would come back here and say 'stop it.' They just asked if we would be interested in seeing for ourselves the results of the bombing and in meeting some of the peasants."

Mrs. Pearl, who is married to a British businessman and has a married daughter, is a member of the Liberal party.

Mrs. Pearl, who came to Britain from Canada in 1934, is vice-chairman of the British branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, founded by the American social reformer Jane Addams, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931 and died in 1935.

Oops, Wrong Blaze Doused by Bomber

Three times he guided his Canso water bomber over a blaze at the northeast arm of Quesnel Lake, and three times he scored direct hits on the fire with his red-dyed water.

Soon the fire was nothing more than a smoking heap of half-charred debris.

"Mission accomplished," he reported to his base.

On landing in another part of the lake, he was met by an irate lodge owner who said the water bomber had just doused hours of hard work. The lodge owner had a burning permit—and had spent several hours building the fire in an effort to get rid of unsightly scrub timber.

"It was rather a comedy of errors," a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said.

He said a spotter aircraft from Kamloops reported the fire. The call went to Prince George and Mr. Davidson loaded up his bomber and took off.

"Then we discovered it was a permit fire," said the official.

He added—a trifle wistfully—that the water drops were "very accurate."

STEADY INCREASE

More Dairy Products Available in Peking

PEKING (Reuters) — About one-quarter of Peking's 6 million inhabitants now get milk on regular home delivery rounds, says the latest official report on the Chinese capital's dairy industry.

No figures for total consumption of dairy products are available, but the report says that 18 times more fresh milk is consumed each day now than in 1949 when the Communists came to power.

This represents a modest increase over figures issued in May last year, when the drink-more-milk drive here was given much - publicized new impetus by price cuts of up to 30 per cent on dairy products.

Fresh milk consumption was then put at 16 times more than in 1949 and about 180,000 families, roughly one-sixth of the city's population, were said to be buying milk regularly.

In addition to fresh milk, which sells here for 23 cents a quart, most food stores stock powdered and condensed milk, butter, cheese and yoghurt as well as ice cream.

The report says there are 30,000 dairy cows on farms in the outskirts of the capital this summer compared with 1,100 in 1949.

PSYCHOLOGIST SAYS

Guitar, Banjo, Harp, Anything; Faddists Sure to String Along

By TERRY IZZARD

Maestro — bring me my harp.

With this delicate instrument and mine dainty fingers I will woo away yon screaming youngsters and entrance them with the wondrous melodies of these magical strings.

This original translation of 1965 vintage psychology means:

The guitar could soon be on its way out and the harp on its way in.

It all depends on the pop groups of the future.

Should they perchance wear white sheets and halos then it's a fair bet the younger generation will do likewise.

Further, if they play harps and didgerydoos the modern set will follow suit.

In theory, at least, that's how the present trend is shaping up, according to Uvic psychologist, Dr. William Gaddes.

Commenting today on the increasing swing to guitar music, Dr. Gaddes said:

"All adolescents have fads and the guitar is the present one.

"As a result the guitar is IN. Next year it could be OUT."

Dr. Gaddes agreed that if a group calling themselves The Angels made a hit with harp music the youngsters would probably follow suit.

Said Dr. Gaddes: "In the '20's the banjo was all the rage. Ten years later there wasn't a banjo to be seen or heard."

Chief buyers of the instrument—which can cost anything from $20 to $500—is the 12 to 17-age group.

The teen-age set bought more than 1,000,000 twang machines in 1964 on the North American continent alone.

In addition, they took extra lessons and one local music teacher has had to increase his guitar teaching staff from one to three this year.

What's in it for the youngsters?

According to the experts most of them play for their own amusement.

But all have a secret ambition at becoming famous like the Beatles or Elvis Presley.

To meet demand a new factory opened in Canada this year to produce guitars to supplement those already flowing in from the U.S. and Japan.

Around 22,000,000 swapped hands last year, along with 2,400,000 organs.

Eyes Popped As Jessie Relaxed

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Eyes popped and traffic halted Wednesday morning as a hippopotamus roamed the grassy plain by a busy bridge approach.

The truck was on a curve approaching a bridge over the Connecticut River when Jessie the hippo apparently decided to move to the outer side of the truck, shifting all the weight there and flipping the truck over on its side.

At first, Jessie stayed inside the toppled truck, but when mechanics attached chains and started to lift it by hoist with Jessie still inside, she saw her chance, butted her enormous head through the side and strolled out onto the highway.

Jessie turned out to be as friendly as could be and with gentle prodding, she moved over to the grassy area to relax while awaiting a new truck.

Delegate Apologizes

TORONTO (CP)—One delegate of the NDP national convention, David Middleton of Toronto, applauded when leader T. C. Douglas announced the death of Adlai Stevenson, U.S. chief delegate to the UN Wednesday.

The NDP leader paused and said: "I hope there will be no more demonstrations of bad taste of that kind."

Mr. Middleton, who has strongly condemned U.S. policies in Viet Nam during the convention, later apologized for "a totally unseemingly and shameful act on my part."
